PRESIDENT OBEYS BRAKEMAN'S ORDER

Directs Mr. Taft to Get Off the Platform of His Special to Avoid Chance of Accident.

PRESIDENT'S QUICK LEAP

On the Way to Summer Capital at Beverly—Cheerful on Leaving Washington.

"Get out of there and into the car," shouted a brakeman to President Taft, as the train to which was attached his special car on which he was traveling to the Summer capital at Beverly, Mass., was being drilled apart in Jersey City at 11:16 last night to be put on the pontoon bridge. The brakeman was afraid the car might slide back and smash the rear platform of the last car. President Taft leaped to his feet and stepped inside the car until all danger of this was past. Then he went out on the platform again, waving farewell to the cheering trainmen as the float started out over the water for Mott Haven. It left Jersey City at 11:43 o'clock.

He watched with interest the manoeuvring of the train from the main tracks to the pontoon bridge and then to the float that was to take it to Mott Haven, there to be transferred to the New York, New Haven, & Hartford tracks. Smiling, he kept up a running fire of pleasant talk to the various trainmen who came his way.

His private car, the "Colonial," was the seventh and last car of the second section of the Pennsylvania's Federal Express. The President, who is usually asleep when he comes on this train, was up last night, sitting on the rear platform.

BUSY DAY IN WASHINGTON.

President at Cabinet Meeting Before Leaving for Beverly.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 28.—President Taft left for his Summer home at Beverly at 5:35 o'clock this afternoon. Secretary Norton and Assistant Secretary Forster went with him, together with a force of stenographers and clerks from the White House establishment.

His last day in Washington was a very busy one for the President. The last Cabinet meeting of the season was held, and many matters were discussed with a view to getting as much work out of the way as possible for the Summer. A number of appointments were agreed upon, and during the afternoon the President signed commissions whenever there was an interval.

He also had conferences with Senators and Representatives who had remained in the city for that purpose. Chief among them were talks with Western Senators who are anxious to have their States get the benefit of the special act authorizing the issue of $20,000,000 in 3 per cent. certificates of indebtedness for the completion of reclamation work for which the regular fund cannot provide. The President will soon choose the army engineers who are to examine the different projects and recommend which are to be completed first. He is anxious to have the work pushed through as rapidly as possible.

There are now in the Treasury several million dollars which can be drawn on for the reclamation work, and this will be used first. It is probable, therefore, that there will be no issue of the certificates, at least before Fall, and Secretary MacVeagh will have opportunity to seek a favorable time for putting them out. The law authorizing these certificates is silent on the question of the circulation privilege, so it will have to be decided by Secretary MacVeagh whether or not he will accept them as security for National bank circulation. His decision will probably be in the negative, because of the failure of Congress to equalize the circulation tax.

Just before leaving the White House the President directed the composition of a letter to Secretary MacVeagh regarding the preparation of the regulations governing the publicity of corporation tax returns. It will probably be some time yet before any of these returns are made public.

The President is not going to take part in the campaign, despite the numerous statements which have appeared recently to the effect that he would do so. He is tremendously interested in the elction of a Republican House next November, but his open assistance will probably be confined to the one speech that he has agreed to deliver. That will be at the meeting of the League of Republican Clubs in New York City in September. On that occasion the President will probably emphasize his hope that the Republicans will control the next House.

Before leaving the White House the President called into his office all the newspaper men who have been writing of the daily doings in and about the Executive Offices, and wished them a pleasant Summer, expressing the hope that he would see them again in the Fall.

His private car was attached to the Federal express. Before getting aboard the train the President stood on the platform for several minutes, chatting and expressing his wishes for a happy Summer to some members of the White House Executive force and others who had gone to the station to see him off. Postmaster General Hitchcock accompanied him to the train.

As he left Mr. Taft wore a broad smile and his air of gayety was accentuated by a vivid red necktie.

FLAGS TO WELCOME TAFT.

But He Does Not Want His Arrival at Beverly Other Than Informal.

BEVERLY, Mass., June 28.—When President Taft arrives at Beverly at 8 o'clock to-morrow morning his only public greeting will be from the Stars and Stripes, which have been ordered raised on all public buildings at sunrise each day during his stay. The city would be glad to show its loyal spirit further, but as he did last year the President specifically requested that his arrival be entirely informal, and his wishes will be respected. Mrs. Taft and the other members of the family will meet him at the station.

The right name of the Italian laborer who was injured by Robert Taft's automobile yesterday was to-day learned to be Michaelo di Grigerdio. He said he was married and has a wife and one child in Italy. His explanation of the accident was that he was crossing the street and became confused when the automobile approached. He said nothing that could be construed in any way as placing any blame on young Taft. Robert visited the hospital once during the day and was permitted to see the injured man. Late to-night the hospital reported that his chances of recovery had improved.

STARTLED THE PARK CASINO.

"Alice Pearce" in Hospital with Alcoholic Hysteria—Out with Actresses.

A woman describing herself as Alice Pearce of Pelham Manor was taken to the Arsenal Station, in Central Park, last evening by Policeman Higgins, who arrested her in front of the Casino, about 6 o'clock, after she had spent about half an hour in abusing the lounging chauffeurs who were laughing at her futile efforts to crank up the big yellow touring car in which she had arrived at the Casino.

When the woman arrived at the Casino early in the afternoon she found there two women friends, both well known actresses. They invited her to join them, and the three sat at a table chatting until the afternoon was almost spent.

When the other women rose to go Mrs. Pearce sprang to her feet, and, laughing at her own prank, began pulling off the tablecloth. A waiter rushed over and removed the china and glasses. Her companions then tried to persuade her to leave the Casino with them in their touring car, which was standing outside. But the woman refused, saying she had her own car and would go in that. Thereupon the actresses departed.

Mrs. Pearce began to crank up her car, but could not manage it. The chauffeurs, looking on, began to offer suggestions, to which she retorted in such vigorous terms that Policeman Higgins admonished her to be more moderate. She then abused the policeman till the Casino management insisted that she be taken away. Then Higgins rapped for assistance, and with three other policemen managed to get her into her car and take her to the station.

Before Lieut. Mason, charged with intoxication and disorderly conduct, the woman refused to give any other information about herself. She danced and kicked merrily around the room threatening to "lick" some of the policemen.

Dr. Bell, called from the Presbyterian Hospital, decided that she was suffering from alcoholic hysteria and took her to Bellevue Hospital, where he filled out a blank containing this information: "Alice Pearce, aged 18, married and divorced; father's name, Arthur S. Rogers; home, Pelham Manor; best friend, William L. Payne, Majestic Hotel, Seventy-second Street and Central Park West; diagnosis, alcoholic hysteria."

The William L. Payne mentioned is the husband of Mrs. Leslie Carter-Payne. Mrs. Payne went to Bellevue last night and offered bail for the woman, but it could not be accepted.

NEW FIRE HELMET TESTED.

Fireman Wears It in Heavy Smoke and Feels No Discomfort.

A new fire helmet designed to protect firemen from inhaling smoke, gas, and ammonia fumes was tested last night in a smoky fire in the basement of a feather warehouse occupied by Charles Forbert, at 6 Bond Street. Fireman Thomas Casey of Truck 9, who was sent into the fire with the helmet, reported that, unlike former helmets that had been tried, it had kept out the smoke without impairing his vision or hampering him by its weight. It will be tested again in a few days.

The helmet resembles a diver's. It fits in the form of a long leather bag over the head, and tightly around the neck. The front is of glass. In the back is a small cylinder containing water, which is made to drop in regulated quantities upon several small cubes of chemicals in a compartment below, thereby generating oxygen by much the same process as acetylene gas is made.

The newly generated oxygen is blown through the helmet by means of a small tube leading from the mouth, and held between the fireman's teeth. The helmet is fitted also with a small bulb horn, like that of an automobile, sounded by hand by the fireman as a signal in case of trouble.

A TRAGEDY AMONG BOOKS.

Writer, Brooding Over Her Baby's Death by Starvation, Dies.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 28.—Paralysis, due, it is said, to brooding over the death of her little son, Warren, from what physicians declared to be starvation, caused the death to-day of Mrs. Estella Backman Brokaw, author of "The Mouth of the World." Mrs. Brokaw at one time was head of the Woman's Propaganda of the Single Tax League, founded by Henry George. Her death occurred at Olive, a small railroad station in Orange County.

At the time of the child's death the parents were writing books on single tax. Starving themselves they gave nearly all the food they obtained to their children. With no income, and no means of obtaining bread, the Brokaws starved, until the Associated Charities forced them to accept attentions for the sake of the children. Despite all that could be done, Warren died.

Sitting among the books they had written and the manuscripts they had prepared, the constant thought of this tragedy, physicians say, produced the paralysis which killed Mrs. Brokaw.

SAVES CONDEMNED MAN.

Justice Catching Train as He Signs Stay for Arthur Rose.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., June 28.—Justice Minturn of Hudson County saved the life of Arthur Rose, condemned murderer, late this afternoon while the Justice was waiting for his train to take him from the Capitol to his Summer home. Counsel for Rose espied Justice Minturn and asked him to sign an order staying the execution, as there was to be an appeal to the Court of Errors and Appeals. The Justice took out his fountain pen and signed the stay as his train came in sight. The notice was served on George O. Osborne, principal keeper of the State Prison, just before 6 o'clock and the execution was abandoned.

Rose lived in Paterson. On March 9 last he went home and accused his wife of unfaithfulness before witnesses, and drew a razor and slashed her in the neck. She fled across the street to the home of neighbors and fell dead across their dinner table. Then Rose fled to Riverside, a suburb of Paterson, telephoned the police he was there, and then attempted suicide.

The reason for the stay is given as defects in the trial and possible application to the Court of Pardons for clemency.

AMATEUR RECORD IN AEROPLANE FLIGHT

PAULHAN'S TIME EQUALED

Harmon and Capt. Baldwin Race Their Machines in the Gathering Darkness—Over-Sound Flight Next.

Special to The New York Times.

GARDEN CITY, L. I., June 28.—Clifford B. Harmon, President of the new National Council of the Aero Clubs of America and Vice President of the older body, established an American amateur record for sustained flight in an aeroplane yesterday. Over the Hempstead Plains here he flew his machine for an hour and five minutes, making thirty-one circuits of the two-and-a-half-mile course before alighting. Mr. Harmon cut corners at times, however, and so estimates the distance he covered at considerably less than the 75-odd miles which exact circuits of the course would have totaled.

"Paulhan at Los Angeles on Dec. 18 last stayed in the air for sixty-five minutes also," said Mr. Harmon afterward, "and he covered only forty-five miles over a measured course. He was competing against a strong wind, however, while conditions here this evening were ideal, there being almost no breeze. I figure, therefore, that I did a little betted than forty-five miles—probably making fifty or more in all."

Mr. Harmon arose at 6:50 o'clock, descending again at 7:55. He said later that he had sought the earth again then only because he realized that he had been aloft for more than a hour, and, having accomplished what he set out to do, felt that a longer flight was unnecessary.

"I could have stayed aloft almost indefinitely," he said. "That is, until my fuel gave out, for my engine was working perfectly. There wasn't a hitch in any part of it. I didn't know what the amateur record for extended flight was, although I was certain that more than an hour in the air would break all American amateur records, and so when I had accomplished that I was content to come down.

"When I went aloft I had no idea of going out for a record. Conditions proved so ideal, however, that I couldn't resist circling and recircling the course.

"I kept an average height of 200 or 300 feet, finding conditions there exactly to my mind, and then simply swung around and around until I was satisfied that I had the record. There was absolutely no incident to the flight. At no time was I in the least danger."

Mr. Harmon indulged in no dips or glides on his flight, contenting himself with steady flying. He traveled swiftly, and those who watched him figured that he had gone nearer to sixty than to fifty miles, estimating his speed as almost a mile a minute.

The amateur aviator arose quickly after a very short run, and, ascending to an altitude of about fifty feet, he made one circuit of the course. Then he jumped his craft upward fifty feet or more, and at this height swept around the course four times. His sixth lap was made at a height of 200 feet, the altitude at which he made most of his laps.

He had been in the air half an hour when Capt. Baldwin had his aeroplane brought from its shed. The craft is a new one and Capt. Baldwin at first made two circuits of the course at a height of about fifty feet to accustom himself to the new machine. He alighted, made adjustments to his engine, and then went aloft again. Harmon by this time had ascended to 200 feet and Capt. Baldwin went up to within about fifty feet of the other flier. Harmon was about half a lap ahead and Capt. Baldwin set out to catch him. Both aviators opened their engines up and sped around the course at high speed. Harmon in the heavier craft could not keep the pace which Capt. Baldwin set and presently the older man caught and passed beneath Harmon's craft. The Captain lapped the other biplane and then came down to earth for the night. It was getting dark then, but Harmon continued in the air until only the whirr of his engine showed the position of his craft. The machine itself was invisible except when exactly overhead.

Harmon made his landing after a two-mile dash and a long glide with his engine shut off. He alighted easily, almost in front of his shed.

Mr. Harmon announced last night that he would attempt the flight across Long Island Sound on Sunday or Monday, according to weather conditions. The start, of course, will be made from here and Mr. Harmon hopes to alight on a small island in front of Commodore E. C. Benedict's place at Greenwich, Conn. The trip is about twenty-seven miles long.

"I shall have pontoons on my biplane," said Mr. Harmon, "and otherwise will have it tuned up thoroughly for the occasion. I anticipate no difficulty in making the flight, although much of it of course will be above the water. However, I am confident of succeeding in the undertaking."

BROOKINS UP 4,000 FEET.

Makes Two Flights at Montreal, One During a High Wind.

MONTREAL, Quebec, June 28.—The third day of Montreal's aviation meet was delayed by a thirty-mile breeze, which continued until 5:30 this evening. The two and a half hours which followed, however, were full of excitement.

Walter Brookins of the Wright team accomplished two notable performances. In the first he started with great daring before the high wind had gone down, and remained up for nine minutes and fifty seconds, under trying wind and sun conditions. He covered seven miles, and in the descent made a striking downward flight before slanting his machine to alight.

In a second ascent he reached an altitude of approximately 4,000 feet, the record being 4,939½ feet, and was in the air twenty minutes and thirty seconds. He received an ovation. During the last flight he attained such a height that the airship appeared at a standstill.

Count De Lesseps made two ascents. On his second he went higher than he has yet done in Canada, and in both descended with his usual grace.

La Chapelle, a member of the Wright team, made good time in speed circles, doing the first lap in two minutes two seconds.

Frank Coffyn, another Wright man, and Walter Brookins went for a trip together at 8 o'clock, staying up fifteen minutes and twenty-five seconds, the first double ascent of the meet.

TWO NAVAL CADETS AND WOMAN DROWN

CLOTHES IN EMPTY BOAT

With Midshipmen Thomas and Nason She Went Out to Sail and Swim—Bodies Not Recovered.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 28.—Mrs. Marie Bowyer, daughter-in-law of Capt. John M. Bowyer, Superintendent of the Naval Academy, and Midshipmen Gilsbeye Thomas and Sherman M. Nason were drowned while on a sailing trip here to-day.

The party left the boathouse mooring point this morning in one of the speedy little sailing craft of the academy to spend the morning sailing and bathing. At 2:30 this afternoon the lookout aboard the station ship Hartford noticed the boat drifting near the shore at Horn Point, half a mile from the academy.

An investigation revealed the fact that the boat was at anchor as if for bathing purposes. Some clothing of the trio was found in the boat, while one of the middies' blouses was floating near by. Capt. Bowyer in his report to the Navy Department and to the relatives of Mrs. Bowyer and the midshipmen expressed the opinion that all were drowned.

As soon as the empty boat was found an organized search was instituted. Capt. Scales, in charge of ships and boats at the Academy, was placed in charge of the water end of the efforts to locate the missing trio, while the commandant of marines at the Academy was ordered to send out companies of marines to scour the shore along the harbor. Every effort, however, proved unavailing and at 9 o'clock every hope that the party would be found alive was abandoned.

The affair has caused the deepest gloom in naval circles at Annapolis, where Mrs. Bowyer had made herself exceptionally popular since coming here to live with her father and mother-in-law following the death of her husband. She was the wife of Joseph Bowyer, who died a short time prior to his father's assignment as Superintendent of the academy. Before her marriage she was Marie Dean of Pittsburg.

Nason, whose home was in Newport, R. I., was an athlete and an expert swimmer. He and Thomas, whose parents live in Union Point, Ga., were members of the academy rifle team, and had remained at the academy with the other middy riflemen for the preliminary practice prior to going to Camp Perry for the National matches in August.

The whole squad was to have left Annapolis to-morrow morning to go to the regular naval range at Wakefield, Mass., where the final practice work is to be done. Nason was at one time the most promising candidate for quarter back, but a serious injury to his knee put him out of the game.

The fact that Nason was one of the best swimmers in the brigade has caused all the more wonder in Annapolis over the affair.

The shore near where the empty boat was found is what the fishermen call "up and down," there being many treacherous holes in the bottom. One theory is that Mrs. Bowyer got into deep water, and in going to her rescue both youths were carried down. Another is that she carried down Thomas, and that Nason, in his efforts to recover them, became so exhausted that he, too, collapsed.

The search of the waters for the bodies of the three will be resumed to-morrow morning by a fleet of small boats and the torpedo boats, Bailey and McDonough.

A DEMOCRATIC FEDERATION.

Organization Intends to Test Party Sentiment and Question Candidates.

WASHINGTON, June 28.—The Democratic Federation of the United States of America has been launched. Its central idea, according to the official pronunciamento, is "a federation of organizations throughout the country, composed of Democrats, that shall stand for the needed improvements in the system of party government and other progressive issues."

One of its purposes will be to choose in each State and in the Nation by postal vote "only those issues upon which public sentiment is agreed or can readily be brought to an agreement." Candidates in the respective States and in the Nation are then to be systematically questioned on these issues and their replies published to the members of the party.

Among the Democrats who have originated this movement are United States Senators Owen of Oklahoma and Newlands of Nevada, Chamberlain of Oregon, former Vice President Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois, twenty members of the Congress from various States, Democratic editors, and others prominent in the party. George H. Shibley of the District of Columbia is the Secretary of the federation.

NEW YORKER HELD FOR ARSON

W. D. Rockefeller Charged with Firing Buildings on Massachusetts Farm.

Special to The New York Times.

WORCESTER, Mass., June 28.—William D. Rockefeller, 37 years old, who says that he is assistant manager of a hotel in New York City, was arrested to-day in Rutland, twelve miles from here, charged with burning with intent to defraud. Last October Rockefeller purchased a large tract of land, containing several buildings, near Rutland, which he named the Rockefeller farm. On Dec. 7, shortly before midnight, the buildings, consisting of a large residence, barn, and several outhouses, containing two horses and five cows, were burned to the ground. Rockefeller has been under suspicion for some time.

The buildings were insured for $20,000, and for that amount Rockefeller had made a claim to the company, but on account of the mysterious fire no settlement has been made. Rockefeller was released in $2,000 bail until July 6.

ZEPPELIN'S AIRSHIP WRECKED BY A GALE

Fights Against Storm in Vain and Lies, Pierced by Tree Stems, in Teutoburgian Forest.

33 PERSONS ABOARD UNHURT

Twenty Journalists Among Them—Motors of Deutschland Undamaged—Frames Broken and Silk Ripped.

DUESSELDORF, June 28.—Count Zeppelin's huge passengers airship Deutschland, the highest developed of all the famous aeronaut's models, lies to-night on the top of the Teutoburgian forest, pierced with pine tree stems, a mass of deflated silk and twisted aluminium.

The thirty-three persons aboard, after a wild contest with a storm, escaped uninjured, climbing down a rope ladder from the wreck on the pine tops.

Herr Colesmann, General Manager of the new airship company; Chief Engineer Duerr of the Zeppelin Company, Capt. Kannenberg, who personally had charge of the crew of ten, and twenty newspaper men sailed from Duesseldorf at 8:30 o'clock this morning for a three hours' excursion. It was the Deutschland's third trip. The objective point was Dortmund, about thirty-five miles from Duesseldorf, but a high head wind prevailed, and an effort was made to reach Münster, a garrison town, so that a landing might be made on the parade ground by the aid of the soldiers, as it was realized that it would require a large number of men to hold the vast contrivance of silk and metal against the wind.

It was dangerous to attempt a landing in an open field, because of the storm, as the metal was likely to pound to pieces. In the high wind one of the motors refused to work, and the others were not powerful enough to make any progress in the gale. The airship drifted, swaying in the violent gusts and sometimes leaning to an angle of forty degrees, and all the while the engineers were at work repairing the disabled motor. When this was done all four screws were driven at their full power, under which, in normal conditions, the airship was capable of attaining a speed of forty miles an hour. But the helmsman was unable to keep his course, and the great craft was swung about at the mercy of the winds.

Herr Colesmann did not dare to turn the ship around, for fear of overturning, and he decided to drift in the gale, which was now blowing at the rate of fifty miles an hour, toward Osnabrück, which is also a garrison station. If he missed that place, he said, he would continue on to Senne.

Suddenly he perceived a whirlwind coming and ascended to a height of nearly 4,000 feet to avoid the worst of it. With the whirlwind came an avalanche of rain. After half an hour the Deutschland came down to permit of observations, and it was seen that the Teutoburgian forest lay below. The forward motor again stopped, and Herr Colesmann sent five of the correspondents to the aft gondola to balance the vessel.

The Deutschland sank rapidly, having lost much gas in the high altitudes, and dragged along the top of the dense forest. A heavy branch of a tree broke through the floor of the cabin amidships, throwing two of the guests to the floor. Other branches ripped through the gas compartments, and the whole great structure settled down thirty or forty feet from the ground.

"It is not the fault of the Zeppelin system," exclaimed Herr Colesmann. "That is all right. It is our own fault and our benzine ran out."

The airship, for which Herr Colesmann's company had just paid $137,500, looked like a wreck. The frames were broken, but the motors were not damaged. The silk was ripped and had fallen in a torn mass on the tops of the trees.

A rope ladder was swung down and every one was mustered below, uninjured except for a bruise or two. Two natives identified the spot as near Wellendorf, eastward of Osnabrück.

Many persons of the countryside saw the descent and reports of disaster, explosion, and death were widely spread. A party of officers and surgeons came by automobile from Iburg. The District Governor and his wife, with first aid for the injured, arrived on the scene within half an hour by special train. A company of infantry was sent from Osnabrück and picketed the wreckage.

The disaster occurred at 5:30 P. M. The early part of the flight was delightful—much like automobiling, without the jarring. The airship maintained an altitude of about 500 feet, and during the first hour or two the passengers felt quite a contempt for the trains rumbling below and spoke of automobiles as out of date. This was when the airship was sweeping gently across the country. During the height of the storm the consciences of those aboard were not so easy.

ZEPPELIN NORTH POLE PLAN.

Prince Henry a Member of Preliminary Expedition to Spitzbergen.

KIEL, June 28.—The steamship Mainz, which will proceed on Saturday for Spitzbergen, carrying Count Zeppelin's preliminary north polar expedition, anchored alongside the Imperial yacht Hohenzollern to-day and was inspected by Emperor William.

It is proposed to erect a dirigible balloon house at Spitzbergen, and Capt. Lau will investigate the possibilities of a dirigible balloon flight in the Arctic to determine whether an air route to the north pole is practical.

The party on the Mainz includes Prince Henry of Prussia, Profs. Von Drygalski and Reich, the oceanographers; Prof. Miethe of the Technical University of Charlottenburg, who will study twilight effects; Count Zedlitz, the zoologist, and Prof. Hergesell of the University of Strasburg, who will make a study of the atmospheric currents.

Inquiry Into Naturalization.

WASHINGTON, June 28.—Under a resolution introduced by Congressman Goldfogle a sub-committee of the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization, headed by Congressman William S. Bennet, has been appointed to investigate naturalization conditions in the County of New York. Mr. Bennet requests that complaints regarding naturalization conditions be forwarded to him at the New York County Court House.

LINER TRIESTE OVERDUE.

Three Ships Search for Austrian-Lloyd Vessel—Has 34 Passengers.

BOMBAY, June 28.—There are no tidings from the Austrian-Lloyd steamer Trieste, which, with her thirty-four passengers and a crew of eighty-five, is eight days overdue from Trieste.

Three ships are searching the Arabian Coast.

The Trieste, a passenger and mail steamer of 5,095 gross tons, sailed on June 4, and was last reported from Aden on June 14.

BOUGHT COFFIN; THEN DIED.

Woman Arranged Her Funeral After a Premonition of Death.

UTICA, N. Y., June 28.—Having a premonition of her death, Miss Hattie Stockwell, 65 years old, formerly of Gloversville, made yesterday all arrangements for her funeral. She selected her coffin and paid the undertaker. She was found dead in bed this morning of apoplexy.

TELEPHONE TRUST FINED.

Mississippi Company Convicted of Trying to Shut Off Competition.

WATER VALLEY, Miss., June 28.—The Cumberland Telephone and Telegraph Company was found guilty yesterday of violating the State anti-trust law by Judge I. T. Blount in the Chancery Court, and a fine of $175,000 was imposed.

The company was charged with entering into a contract with the Oxford Telephone Company in Marshall County to shut off competition.

CLOUDBURSTS IN KENTUCKY.

Houses Swept Away and Timber Destroyed—Damage Will Be $100,000.

LEXINGTON, Ky., June 28.—Cloudbursts in the mountains of Eastern Kentucky caused last night damage estimated at $100,000.

Dwellings were swept from their foundations, standing timber destroyed, and many residents of that section imperiled. So far as can be learned no lives were lost.

The storm vented its greatest fury in Floyd County. The creeks became torrents in a few minutes.

HITCHCOCK LOWERS DEFICIT.

Returns to Treasury $5,000,000 Out of Funds Voted for Post Office.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 28.—Postmaster General Hitchcock has remitted to the Treasury the sum of $5,000,000 of the funds set apart for the Postal Service since the first of the year, according to a statement issued by the department to-day. Mr. Hitchcock completed this amount to-day by returning another million, thus leaving for the deficiencies of the department in the current year only $5,500,000, as against $14,500,000 received and expended on the same account last year.

VETOES LADIES' "TAG DAY."

Of Doubtful Legality, Says the Mayor, and More Than Doubtful Propriety.

Mayor Gaynor sent to the Aldermen at their meeting yesterday a veto of a recent Aldermanic resolution permitting a "tag day" in Richmond for the Day Nursery there. The veto was accompanied by this comment:

"This resolution would authorize the ladies of the Day Nursery in the Borough of Richmond to acost people in that borough 'for the purpose of extracting coin and other monies from every possible citizen on the occasion of a Tag Day.'

"Such an authorization is of doubtful legality and of more than doubtful propriety. The collection of money on tag days is usually made a success by the aid of small children—a practice which should not be permitted."

WEDS EMPLOYE OF HIS MILL.

Alfred Crew, Silk Manufacturer, Married to Miss Vreeland, Forewoman.

Special to The New York Times.

PATERSON, N. J., June 28.—Alfred Crew, head of the Alfred Crew Silk Finishing Company, has married Miss Sadie K. Vreeland, who for years had been employed as a forewoman in one of the departments of his mill, and the couple are now on a honeymoon trip to England.

Mr. Crew is 51 years old and was a widower, his wife having died nine months ago. Miss Vreeland is 28 years old. Her father, a Paterson policeman, died several years ago, and she lived with her mother. She has worked for Crew since she was 15 years old. The wedding took place last week in the Waldorf-Astoria, New York, and the Rev. Dr. Houghton of the Little Church Around the Corner officiated.

Mr. Crew was a silk worker here twenty years ago. He has a son, 20 years old, and a daughter, 22 years old.

FOSS NOT A CANDIDATE.

Congressman Declares He Will Not Seek Massachusetts Governorship.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, June 28.—Congressman Eugene N. Foss received a delegation of newspaper men on his return from Washington to-day.

"I am not a candidate for further political honors," he said. "I consider that my work has been accomplished in that I stood for an idea and have at last aroused the people so that they have spoken an emphatic word to Congress."

It had been understood that Mr. Foss would not run again in the Eleventh District, but plans had been made this year to give him the Democratic nomination for Governor. Mr. Foss declared that as James F. Vahey, who has run several times and been defeated, had refused to withdraw, his entrance would only split the Democratic Party, and he would have no hand in any such plan.

METROPOLITAN PLAN IN DEFINITE FORM

Committee Decides to Go Ahead with Reorganization, Not Waiting for Concessions.

PUBLIC GOOD-WILL SOUGHT

Earnings Justifying Proposed Bond Issues, but There's Nothing for the Stock, Which Will Be Wiped Out.

The Bondholders' Committee of the Metropolitan Street Railroad has decided to put its reorganization plan into definite shape and submit it to the Public Service Commission without waiting for the outcome of the negotiations with the holders of underlying securities for the reduction of the burdensome rentals paid on subsidiary lines or relief from the city from existing taxation. This is the explanation of the statement made in an application for the postponement of the foreclosure sale which Judge Lacombe granted on Monday, that the Public Service Commission would get the reorganization plan by July 11.

The foreclosure sale is ordered for Sept. 27, but it is expected that it will be adjourned until the Public Service Commission has approved a plan of reorganization, inasmuch as it is impracticable, even if the road is sold, to take it out of the hands of the court until a new corporation has been formed to operate the property.

The interest of the public is what moved the Bondholders' Committee to abandon its position outlined in THE TIMES two months ago, and seek to get a reorganization through before the question of taxes and rentals is taken up. Indeed, it was declared yesterday that the committee is anxious to obtain the approval of the public for the basis on which it is proceeding and establish a belief in the public mind that it is in good faith.

Pursuing a Peace Policy.

It is learned that the bondholders intend to approach the Public Service Commission in a very different attitude from that assumed by some of the other traction interests, notably the Third Avenue bondholders, whose relations with the commission have been marked by constant protests and frequent defiance of the commission's rulings. The Metropolitan bondholders intend to present several of the more or less contentious features of their plan to the commission in the shape of suggestions, rather than as cut-and-dried proposals which they must have in toto or not at all.

While the willingness to recognize the public interest in the traction situation has been general among the Metropolitan Bondholders' Committee from the start, it appears that the shifting conditions of the traction situation have operated to change the committee's plans of procedure from time to time. For many months after the committee took up its work it appeared that nothing short of a general disintegration of the Metropolitan system or a readjustment of the underlying guarantees of interest and dividends tantamount to a voluntary disintegration and reuniting of the properties would avail to put the system where it could hope to continue in operation.

Out of that perplexity grew the idea of going through with the negotiations in regard to taxes and a reduction of rentals before the definite plan was formulated, but several developments changed the face of things. In the first place, the earnings of the Metropolitan system increased so as to indicate that the road was reasonably sure, as at present operated, to earn the interest on its two issues of bonds which the Reorganization Committee represents.

Decide to Launch the Plan.

In the second place, it appeared on closer examination that the Metropolitan was in no position to force its subsidiaries to accept lower rentals, both because of its own inherent weakness and because it became obvious that financial interest would stand ready to buy over some of the more important of these subsidiaries if the Metropolitan let them go. Finally, there was the general pressure for an early reorganization of the surface system.

So it came about that in the end the Reorganization Committee determined to put together a plan first and negotiate afterward. As it will be presented to the Public Service Commission, the plan will make provision for the raising of the $12,000,000 new cash which THE TIMES announced as the preliminary requirement, back in April. It will provide for security issues to refund the existing $12,500,000 5 per cent. bonds of 1898, and the $16,000,000 4 per cent. bonds of 1902, and to care for the accident judgments held by the tort creditors of the New York City Railway.

The provision for these tort creditors of the New York City Railway is a voluntary act on the part of the Metropolitan's bondholders, in consideration of the fact that the holders of the tort judgments are victims of accidents on the Metropolitan system, while their legal claims lie against the New York City Railway, which Judge Lacombe referred to as the "impecunious lessee."

Metropolitan Accidents Not Included.

It has been the desire of the bondholders from the beginning, and of Judge Lacombe of the United States Circuit Court, before whom the traction receiverships have been brought, to make provision for the holders of the accident judgments in one way or another, and the plan of the bondholders' committee in taking them in on the same basis as the bondholders of the Metropolitan system was commended by the court in his order of Monday night. The tort creditors of the Metropolitan Street Railway proper, whose claims have grown out of accidents since the receiverships of September, 1907, are not affected by this settlement. Such tort claims are being met, as they accrue, as a part of the operating expenses of the road.

The financial basis of the reorganization plan as it will be reported to the Public Service Commission will be just about the same as that stated in THE TIMES in April in giving a summary of the plans of the reorganization committee at that time. The expectation is for an increase in gross earnings of about 3.5 per cent. a year and for an operating ratio, with the present burden of taxes and rentals, of about 70 per cent. of the gross. That gives the following estimate income, applying the percentages to the figures compiled by Chairman Tripp of the reorganization committee as of Dec. 31 last.

Gross from operation, $13,258,412 for 1909, plus 3.5 per cent.	$13,722,456
Operating cost and taxes, (70 per cent.)	9,605,711
Net from operation	$4,116,737
Interest and rentals on underlying securities	2,353,978
Net income	$1,762,759
Other income	200,000
Gross income	$1,962,759
Interest (6 per cent.) on $12,000,000 new cash	720,000
Balance applicable to existing 4s and 5s	$1,242,759

Nothing in Sight for the Stock.

The interest requirements of the two mortgages at present is $1,281,919, not substantially larger than the balance of income from the system applicable to these issues. The Reorganization Committee is not saying anything at present as to the exact amount of bonds which it is going to ask the commission to allow to be issued, feeling that it would not be courteous to the commission to discuss it until the plan is presented. But it is not considered unlikely in well-informed Wall Street quarters that a comfortable margin between the balance applicable to the old bonds—and to the income for the securities to be issued to the accident victims as well—and the actual fixed charges of the reorganized road, will be created by bringing out an income bond issue from which the bondholders and the accident judgment people will get a part of their principal.

As for the stock one thing is certain—that the present earnings of the Metropolitan system leave nothing whatever applicable to it, and that, considering that the income account just stated makes no provision for depreciation charges likely to be provided for before the stock gets anything, there is no prospect of a return on the stock in the near future. The Interborough-Metropolitan Company, which owns all except about $9,000,000 of the $52,000,000 Metropolitan Street Railway stock, is the interest most concerned, although the remaining $9,000,000 is widely scattered among many small holders.

Assessment on Stock Likely.

What the Interborough-Metropolitan Company faces is a very substantial assessment of its Metropolitan stock, which will probably take the form of an invitation to subscribe to the new bonds. Failing to pay this assessment the Metropolitan's stockholders will, of course, be wiped out; if they pay it by subscribing for the bonds they will be permitted to retain a stock interest greatly scaled down from its present bulk.

The cash requirements of the property, the existing bonds, the accident judgments, and the stock thus constitute the principal features of the plan which the Public Service Commission will receive. There are one or two other factors of importance, among them a prospective settlement for receiver W. W. Ladd of the New York City Railway in the various kinds of litigation that he began against the Metropolitan Securities Company and individuals interested in it. An announcement will probably be made to-day of the terms under which this litigation is to be settled, for the various defending interests have made a joint offer to Receiver Ladd of a very large amount of money, which he, in turn, will pass up to Judge Lacombe for his approval.

Col. Ladd already has a judgment of $5,271,582 against the Metropolitan Securities Company on account of the undertaking of that company in 1907 to provide new money for the rehabilitation of the surface roads. The plan was that the Interborough-Metropolitan should be tapped for $15,000,000 and that the Securities Company was to be the funnel through which the funds should pass to the bankrupt surface system. All Col. Ladd could find in the treasury of the Securities Company, whose $23,500,000 of stock was sold at par between 1902 and 1906, was $1,013,738 in cash and about $500,000 in securities. He obtained the appointment of a receiver for the Securities Company and brought suit against the Interborough-Metropolitan Company and eighty-three other stockholders of the Metropolitan Securities Company to enforce the payment of the $7,500,000 remaining due to make the $30,000,000 Securities Company stock full paid.

Funds Coming from Lawsuits.

In addition, Col. Ladd pressed a suit against the Directors of the Securities Company as individuals to recover $2,197,000 on account of the issuance of notes of the New York City Railway to the Securities Company at 70 and their almost immediate redemption at par, soon after the Metropolitan lease of 1902 was consummated. This suit is now before Judge Ray of the United States Circuit Court awaiting decision, but the pending settlement is expected to cover all this volume of litigation.

Col. Ladd would not discuss the matter in any way yesterday, but it is understood that the Metropolitan Street Railway has an interest in the matter because it is a very heavy creditor of the New York City Railway. A part of its claim is on account of the broken lease and is of the most general character, but the Metropolitan also has claims of a specific nature on account of the $15,000,000 deal of 1907, which was never completed. Hence a part of the cash which Col. Ladd receives will figure in the reorganization of the Metropolitan, as well as in meeting the claims of the preferred creditors of the New York City Railway.

When the Public Service Commission has passed upon the Metropolitan reorganization plan and the road is operating on a permanent basis again, then the negotiations will be taken up for a reduction of the underlying guarantees of interest and dividends to a basis to correspond with what the leased lines are doing. The bondholders who are active in the reorganization have not given up yet the idea of effecting a general scheme of tax reduction with the city in consideration of an offer of profit sharing.

The restoration of the transfer system at various important points still remains a feature of the plans which the bondholders have under consideration. It is one of the evidences that they hope the public will accept as a pledge of good faith in the traction management in future.

PINCHOT FOR GOVERNOR.

Pittsburg Paper Booms Him and Thinks Roosevelt Would Aid.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, June 28.—Gifford Pinchot was put forward as a possible candidate for Governor of Pennsylvania this evening by The Leader, the personal organ of William Flinn, one-time boss of Pittsburg, and Senator Penrose's bitterest political foe in Western Pennsylvania.

The paper intimates that the candidacy of Mr. Pinchot would have Mr. Roosevelt's indorsement, and that Mr. Roosevelt would consent to stump the State for him.

"Mr. Pinchot is the man of the hour in Pennsylvania," it says. "His home is at Milford, Penn., which makes him eligible to the office. Party lines would be eliminated with Mr. Pinchot running on a Roosevelt platform."

Men in the reform movement here recall that Alexander P. Moore, editor and owner of the paper, headed the Pittsburg delegation that went to New York to welcome Mr. Roosevelt home, and that he had a talk with Mr. Roosevelt afterward.

A mass meeting of the reform independent voters is called for to-morrow night in this city, when it is promised the Pinchot boom will be launched.

THIEVES DINE IN STATE.

Help Themselves to the Good Things in Two Roslyn Heights Residences.

MINEOLA, L. I., June 28.—Sheriff Joe Foster is to-day trying to get some trace of the hungry thieves who broke into the homes of two of the wealthy residents of Roslyn Heights and indulged themselves to their full capacity of the good things they found there.

William Armstrong and Daniel Baylis reported to the Sheriff that their homes had been broken into last night. At Mr. Baylis's house they got away with about $15 in cash, leaving behind a quantity of silverware and other valuables.

Mr. Armstrong says the men went into his kitchen and fed themselves on the best he had in the house, not neglecting to sample his wines and cigars.

Mrs. Leavitt's Bequests to Charity.

The will of Mary E. Leavitt, who died June 20 at the Waldorf-Astoria, was filed yesterday. The will, made Dec. 2, 1907, left $7,500 to St. Luke's Hospital and $3,000 to the Sheltering Arms to establish beds in honor of Mrs. Leavitt's mother, Elizabeth Bell Barker; $7,000 to the testator's friend, David Costello; the residue of her estate to Tarrant Putnam, whom she appointed executor of her will, and $1,000 to her brother, Charles B. Barker.

PLAN PRIMARY BILL FITTED TO NEW YORK

Will Exempt County Tickets Here from Its Operations—Griscom's Idea.

ACCEPTABLE TO HUGHES

Tammany Also Said to Favor It—Grady Puts in an Income Tax Measure.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, June 28.—The Cobb Direct Nominations bill, which Gov. Hughes has indicated that he will accept as a compromise in view of the defeat of the Hinman-Green bill which contained his plan for a Statewide application of the direct primaries system, will be further amended when the Senate meets to-morrow. The amendments will be proposed by Senator George B. Agnew of New York on behalf of Chairman Griscom of the New York County Republican Committee. While they have not been submitted to Gov. Hughes for his approval, it is generally believed that he will accept them. The amendments will be satisfactory to Tammany Hall, too, it is said.

One provides for the elimination of the four counties in New York City from the provision of the Cobb bill, which declares for the nomination of county officials by the direct method. This was opposed by Chairman Griscom on the ground that it would render it impossible to fuse in New York County on Sheriff, Justices of the Supreme Court, Judges of General Sessions, and other county officials, and that as a result elections of county officials would be won easily by Tammany Hall.

There is said, nevertheless, to be perfect accord in the ranks of Tammany and the Republican County organization of New York with regard to this amendment. If the Republican organization wants the old system retained because it will permit fusion, Tammany Hall wants it retained because it will enable the Democrats to retain the much cherished county convention, where the nominations are dictated by the leader of Tammany Hall, and the delegates merely join in the chorus.

Other amendments will be proposed to the Cobb bill. One proposes that persons may be elected on committees representing a district at the direct primaries without being enrolled voters in the district. This amendment is said to have been proposed by Chairman Griscom in the interest of a Republican district leader in New York who moved into the district too late to enroll there. Two other amendments propose changes more or less technical, but both in the line of real primary reform. One incorporates the Primary Signature bill into the Cobb Direct Nominations bill. The other makes two election districts instead of one a primary district, with a corresponding reduction in expenses with which the taxpayers are to be burdened for the primaries.

So few legislators are here that it is difficult to predict what effect these changes will have on members who voted first for the Hinman-Green bill and afterward for the Cobb compromise measure.

Assemblyman Perkins, who comes from the district of Senator Harvey D. Hinman, sponsor for the Governor's Direct Nominations bill, said to-day that he would balk at swallowing these amendments. Mr. Perkins has consistently supported Gov. Hughes, not only on direct primaries, but on other policies that were included in his legislative programme.

"I don't see how I can consistently support this proposition," said Mr. Perkins. "Why, they might just as well introduce amendments exempting one by one the other counties, towns, and villages of the State and make the provisions of the bill apply to Labrador or to Pennsylvania."

However, the amendments do not contemplate the exemption of candidates for the State Senate and Assembly and for Congress, nor candidates for Aldermen, and the friends of direct nominations for that reason believe that if the bill should pass it would only be a question of time when all nominations would be by the direct methods, and all conventions done away with.

The advocates of the Cobb measure insist that with the gain of five votes from New York County in the Assembly, they will have a sufficient number of members favorable to the bill to make it a caucus measure in the lower house as it was made in the Senate, where it passed at the regular session.

Both the Senate and Assembly held brief sessions to-day, but with a few members attending in either house. Senator Kissel of Kings, on behalf of Senator Grady, who was absent, introduced a bill providing for a State income tax. After the bill had gone in, men who wield large influence in the Legislature declared that the session would be extended by at least six weeks if the Grady measure were to be seriously discussed, and that it stood no chance of being passed.

The bill provides for one-tenth of 1 per cent. tax on incomes in excess of $2,000, accruing to any person from sources properly subject to taxation. The bill requires a report on incomes to the Tax Assessors before April 15 each year, and establishes as penalty for neglect a fine of $25, with an additional $1 for each day the neglect is continued, with the amount tripled when it can be proved that the neglect has been willful. The bill also provides that personal property subject to taxation must be free and clear and in excess of $5,000.

Senator Kissel added a revenue measure establishing an annual license fee of $2, with an additional 10 cents for a license tag, for all slot machines, the revenue to go to the State, and the police of all localities being authorized to seize unlicensed machines. Substantially the same bill was introduced at the regular session and defeated.

NEW LIQUOR LAW A BOON.

Clement Says Amendments Will Prove a Blow to the Raines Law Hotels.

ALBANY, June 28.—State Commissioner of Excise Clement, in a recent interview on the department amendments to the liquor tax law and on general excise conditions throughout the State, said that the Conklin bills, recently signed by Gov. Hughes, are the most important and beneficial amendments to the Raines law made since its enactment in 1896. He considered that the hotel amendment, prohibiting the renting of rooms more than once between 9 o'clock at night and 6 o'clock in the morning, and doing away with the secret registry of guests under false names, will prove to be a body blow to the so-called Raines law hotels in New York City and elsewhere.

This amendment probably could not have been passed had it not met with the approval and received the active support of the Hotelkeepers' Association of New York City, under the lead of President Boldt of the Waldorf-Astoria, and Mr. Bain of Newburg, President of the State Association; the Anti-Saloon League, many ministers of prominence and influence, various reform associations, labor organizations, and brewers.

The brewers and liquor interests were particularly interested in the ratio restriction provision, which prohibits increasing the number of drinking places until the ratio of 750 of population to each place has been reached.

The Commissioner further said that although he was confident a marked improvement in excise conditions would result from the operation of the Conklin amendments, he was also greatly encouraged by the growing evidence in the form of criminal prosecutions and convictions from all parts of the State, which indicated an improved public sentiment for a better enforcement of the law in several localities, in many of which indictments and convictions for excise violations were unknown in the early history of the Excise Department.

COBALT CENTRAL DEFENSE.

Hitchings's Allegations, Says the Company, Are False and Misleading.

The Cobalt Central Mines Company, against whose officials a complaint has been filed in the United States Circuit Court by Hector M. Hitchings, a lawyer, alleging false dividends, stock juggling, and the election of "office boy" Directors, issued yesterday a reply in which it states that Mr. Hitchings's allegations are "false and misleading."

The statement, which was handed out at the office of the company, said that its officers have had experience with Mr. Hitchings before; that about a year ago he brought suit against Mr. Nevins of the Cobalt Central Mines Company in the name of a former employe, claiming a large sum of money on various grounds. This case, says the statement, was lost.

"The complaint from beginning to end misstates the transactions of the company and evinces either gross ignorance of the facts or reckless disregard for the truth," says the statement. "Without going into details regarding the present attack on the Directors, it is sufficient to say that the charges that the dividends were improperly paid is utterly false, the dividends having been paid out of actual earnings made by the corporation and its subsidiary companies from the operations of the mill and mines. The books were examined a few months ago by a prominent firm of chartered accountants, whose report, showing that everything was in proper order, was recently mailed to all of the stockholders."

BROKER POPPER IN CONTEMPT

Counsel in Lathrop-Haskins Case Will Move to Have Him Punished.

Edward Popper, floor member of the Stock Exchange firm of Popper & Sternbach and James R. Keene's personal broker, was declared in contempt of court by Referee Stanley W. Dexter yesterday for his repeated refusal to answer two questions in the bankruptcy hearing of Lathrop, Haskins & Co.

Mr. Popper did not appear personally, but sent word through his counsel that he would not answer the questions, although he knew that the opposing counsel would move to have him brought up for contempt. The matter had been before Judge Hough for a decision on the pertinence of the questions, and the Judge had declined to give an opinion on the ground that it is the referee's province to decide upon the merits of the questions, and it is the privilege of the court to punish the offender if the court decides to sustain the referee.

Abram I. Elkus, counsel for the trustee for the creditors of Lathrop, Haskins & Co., asked Mr. Popper to state the market value of the securities held by him for Mr. Keene on Jan. 18, 1910, the day before the smash of the Hocking Pool and the ensuing failures of Lathrop, Haskins & Co., J. M. Fiske & Co., and Roberts, Hall & Criss. The other question was as to the status of Mr. Keene's account on Jan. 18.

Mr. Elkus will make his motion for the punishment of Mr. Popper on July 11 in the United States District Court. The next hearing in the Lathrop, Haskins case was set for the afternoon of July 8.

ATTACK VANDERBILT WORKER.

Members of Iron Men's Union Beat Laborer on 52d Street House.

Emil Hubinsky of 184 Java Street, Brooklyn, was at work on the Vanderbilt house at 49 East Fifty-second Street yesterday morning when a man passing in the street called him a scab and threatened him with assault. Hubinsky did not take the threat seriously, but when he stopped work for luncheon several men attacked him.

Policeman Berger arrested one of Hubinsky's assailants, the others escaping. The prisoner said he was Joseph A. Seibold of 108½ Diamond Street, Brooklyn, a member of the Iron Workers' Union. He was locked up in the East Fifty-first Street Station house on the charge of felonious assault. Hubinsky was sent to Bellevue Hospital with a broken jaw and two fractured ribs.

McLAUGHLIN BOY IS SAFE.

With His Mother, the Father Is Informed and Is Satisfied.

Michael L. McLaughlin, the Albany real estate man, whose son was kidnapped from his home on Monday, is convinced that the boy was taken by his mother, his former wife, who is now Mrs. Henry P. Holt, and so far he is satisfied that no harm will come to him. At the Cosmopolitan Hotel last night Mr. McLaughlin said:

"As I believe the boy is with his mother, no great harm can come to him. If the boy has been taken to visit Mrs. Payne I shall not be sorry. It would be a good thing for him to pay a visit, but I want the boy back after a little time. He needs firm handling and discipline, and that he will never get from his mother."

ROOSEVELT IN BOSTON AT CLASS REUNION

Reached Harvard Too Late for the Outing—Received by President Lowell.

ADDRESSES LAW ALUMNI

Attorney General Also Speaks—Ex-President to be a Speaker at Commencement Dinner To-day.

BOSTON, June 28.—Theodore Roosevelt, Harvard '80, was unable to get here in time to participate in the outing of his class to-day, but he joined his friends to-night when the class held its reunion at the Algonquin Club.

Although the time of his arrival had not been widely heralded, a crowd was on hand at the Back Bay station, and when Col. Roosevelt stepped off the train from New York at 3 P. M., he was heartily cheered. The former President at once entered an automobile and was driven to the home of President Lowell of Harvard University in Cambridge.

President Lowell greeted him on the steps of his residence, just within the college yard, and escorted him into the house. He had not been there long before a request came for him to address the members of the Harvard Law School Alumni Association, who were holding their annual meeting in the Harvard Union across the street.

Col. Roosevelt accepted the invitation, and was escorted to the Union by Justice Francis C. Lowell of the United States Circuit Court and Arthur D. Hill, former District Attorney of Suffolk County.

His entrance was greeted with applause, and he expressed his gratification at being at Harvard again, referring to the memorial tablets in the Union to the Harvard soldiers who fell in the Spanish-American war. He said it was gratifying to know that Harvard was always ready when the country called for military or civic service.

Col. Roosevelt then took a short walk about the college yard with E. H. Wells, Secretary of the class of 1880, and Robert Homans. He visited the Porcellian and one or two other smaller clubs.

When asked as to his plans, Col. Roosevelt refused to talk. He will head the alumni parade into Memorial Hall to-morrow afternoon and will speak at the commencement dinner. He will have no part in the commencement exercises, although it is presumed that he will attend.

When told of the result of the Harvard-Yale game, Col. Roosevelt's face fell, but a moment later he laughed and said:

"Why did you tell me anything like that?"

Shortly before 6 o'clock the former President returned to President Lowell's house, and soon afterward returned to Boston in a motor car, joining his classmates at the Algonquin Club. The class dinner was strictly private, and at its conclusion Col. Roosevelt returned to Cambridge, where he spent the night as the guest of President Lowell.

The Law School alumni met in Langdell Hall, and, after holding a brief business meeting, marched to Sanders Theatre. Attorney General Wickersham, the orator of the day, said:

"Contentment with mediocrity is, in my opinion, one of the greatest dangers which confronts successful democracy everywhere. The hope of averting it rests largely with men of sound legal education.

"Contentment with mediocrity breeds an impatience with superiority, a desire to belittle excellence, a readiness to impute wrong motives to things not understood and to accept calumny as truth."

Referring to the desirability of further interpretation of the Sherman Anti-Trust act by the Supreme Court, the Attorney General added:

"During the last twelve months there has been argued before that tribunal this question in its application to two of the largest combinations of corporations existing in this country. The crippled condition of the court, however, prevented a decision, and the cases have been remitted for hearing at the next term.

"It is greatly to be desired that they may be decided at an early date and that the principles of the decision may be so clearly laid down as to afford a practicable standard of conduct, which, while protecting the public, will leave untrammeled avenues for the legitimate development of our commerce."

THANKS FROM THE COLONEL.

Letter to the Reception Committee, Which Ends with $2,000 in Hand.

The reception to Col. Roosevelt on his return to this country on Saturday, June 18, cost the Mayor's Committee a little less than $10,000. When the Executive Committee met yesterday to wind up its affairs the Treasurer reported that about $12,000 had been subscribed by 215 of the more than 300 members of the committee, but that with all the bills paid something more than $2,000 remained. This balance, the Executive Committee decided, should be returned pro rata.

Chairman Cornelius Vanderbilt read a letter of thanks from Col. Roosevelt. Here it is:

> The Outlook, Office of Theodore Roosevelt, 287 Fourth Avenue, New York City.
> June 23, 1910.
> My Dear Mr. Vanderbilt: May I, through you, express my deep appreciation to the members of the committee for my reception? I well know all the trouble and expense which they necessarily incurred in arranging such a reception as last Saturday. Believe me, I appreciate it, and with special thanks to yourself, I am very sincerely yours, THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

Fac similes of the letter will be sent to all members of the committee.

The Executive Committee adopted resolutions thanking the police and members of the General Committee asked to do special work.

A POST FOR ROOSEVELT.

Taft May Appoint Him Chairman of a Peace Commission.

WASHINGTON, June 28.—It is expected that ex-President Roosevelt will be named by President Taft as Chairman of the commission authorized by the joint resolution of Congress to report to Congress plans for permanent and world-wide peace.

Representative Bartholdt of Missouri, who has long been identified with international peace movements, talked with the President about the appointments from Beverly. Members of Congress have requested the President to name Dr. Bartholdt as a member of the commission, and it is understood he will be appointed.

MRS. VON CLAUSEN'S DEMANDS

Wants $1,000,000 from Roosevelt and Others—Makes a Scene.

Mrs. Ida von Clausen, whose difficulties at the Court of Sweden in January, 1907, became almost an international episode, figured in a sensational scene yesterday in the County Court House. She burst into the main office of the County Clerk and demanded that the equity clerk accept service of quasi-legal papers in what purported to be a million-dollar suit against Theodore Roosevelt, Charles Graves, Ambassador to Sweden, and his wife, Alice Wright Graves, and Robert Bacon, Ambassador to France. The papers were marked: "Complaint to the Supreme Court of the United States."

Matthew Halpin, the clerk in charge, refused to accept the papers for filing as irregular, and after a wordy exchange Mrs. von Clausen hurled the papers through the equity window of the filing cage.

The complaint contained these passages:

"I hereby make formal demand of the Supreme Court of the United States to procure me an honest lawyer to plead for justice for me if the United States of America has laws capable to protect me; if not, then legislation must be appealed to. Finding it so far impossible to secure the services of an honest lawyer to conduct my case against the Government representatives who have maliciously slandered me and robbed me of the freedom I am entitled to under the laws of freedom, I herewith file in the Supreme Court this complaint and institute a suit for slander, malice, and revenge to recover $1,000,000 from Charles Graves, Mrs. Wright, now known as Mrs. Graves, and two conspirators and instigators of this moral crime, namely: President Roosevelt and Ambassador Robert Bacon.

"I was denied the recognition of my own country in a foreign land. Thus the Constitution of the United States was broken. I was classed outside the pale of jurisdiction; I was turned out of the American Embassy forcibly when I demanded protection from the representatives of America, Mr. and Mrs. Graves, for publicly insulting me and lying about my credentials.

"This Mr. and Mrs. Graves worked on the ignorance of a stranger. The doors of society, which had been opened wide, were slammed in my face and skirts were pulled aside. Women who were to have been presented with me swept by and ignored me, owing to the dastardly impressions spread broadcast by Mr. and Mrs. Graves.

"These representations were made under the instructions of T. Roosevelt through Robert Bacon and the State Department, who had known of my intended visit to Sweden for over six months. T. Roosevelt had been notified of my intended visit to Stockholm at the invitation of the King, and the letter from the State Department acknowledged this. He also knew I held the King's sent photograph, and a personal invitation of King Oscar to come to Sweden and meet him.

"While the world lauds T. Roosevelt a woman and child are suffering for his political crimes, when only an acknowledgment of their country was necessary."

Mrs. Von Clausen says she met King Oscar through her child and Admiral Palander, and was invited to the Court of Sweden, and a royal marriage promised her "if she would but just go, and see how happy the Swedes would make her."

LOCKS UP THE ALDERMEN.

President Mitchel Keeps Them Prisoners During a Budget Wrangle.

The Aldermen yesterday approved nearly all the items in the new corporate stock budget, the amount of money which the new Board of Estimate has set aside for permanent improvements during the coming year, after a long wrangle. Several of the items were opposed, but they were all finally passed with the exception of four resolutions calling for the appropriation of $1,509,200 to pay for the acquisition of property for the terminals of the new Manhattan Bridge.

The $85,000,000 budget was presented in 169 resolutions. Alderman Johnson, the Republican leader, immediately objected to the two calling for the appropriation of $100,000 for a lagoon in Dyker Beach Park, Brooklyn, and $800,000 for a central public library in Brooklyn. He contended that several public school needs should be attended to before these matters are taken up.

Vice Chairman Bent moved that each resolution be voted upon separately. This was carried and in the next hour the Aldermen sweltered in the hot chamber and had passed only five of the resolutions, among them the two to which Alderman Johnson objected.

President Mitchel saw that at that rate the board would not adjourn until midnight and issued a call of the house, which directs the Sergeant at Arms to call in the members and lock the doors until the business at hand is disposed of. Many of the Aldermen had attempted to escape the heat in corridors or in near-by saloons, and when the President adopted this move to keep them in their seats, something which had never been done before in the recollection of the oldest man about City Hall, Alderman Bent relented and withdrew his motion for a single vote.

Alderman Walsh then moved that the clerk read the titles of the resolutions and that each member be empowered to object if he so desired. All the rest of the resolutions were then passed except thirty-four. Then all but sixteen of these were quickly passed over the dissenting votes. Then nine of these were bunched and passed on a separate vote. Three of the remaining were passed together. Then the board adjourned.

SUICIDE DAY AFTER MARRIAGE.

Wealthy Distiller Brings Home Bride, Then Shoots Himself.

UNIONTOWN, Penn., June 28.—Max Rosenburg, a wealthy distiller residing in this city, was found dead early to-day in his rooms over the First National Bank Building, with a bullet hole in his right temple. At his side lay a revolver. The authorities say he killed himself.

Detectives say that Rosenburg was married last night in Pittsburg and brought his bride here. Mrs. Rosenburg would not talk of her marriage nor of her husband's suicide.

CLARA MORRIS DYING; HER HOME TO BE SOLD

Court Order Foreclosing Mortgage Ends Famous Actress's Struggle to Keep It.

SHE IS NOW TOTALLY BLIND

Husband Says His Wife Is Not Likely to Live to See House Pass Into Other Hands.

While Clara Morris, the famous actress and later a brilliant writer, lay blind and dying yesterday at her home, The Pines, Riverdale Avenue, Yonkers, the house in which she lay and in which she has spent the last twenty-five years of her life was ordered sold by Justice Martin Keogh in the White Plains Supreme Court.

The house, according to the order, will be disposed of within the next few weeks at foreclosure sale. Miss Morris, who in private life is Mrs. Frederick C. Harriott, does not know that her home is in danger, and she will probably never know. According to a statement made at The Pines by her husband last night, the actress is dying of inflammatory rheumatism. She is 65 years old and, Mr. Harriott says, will probably not live three weeks.

Miss Morris's home, The Pines, which consists of several acres and was originally part of the Edwin Forrest estate, has stayed in the actress's possession so long only as the result of a hard struggle on her part. She bought it when she was still one of this country's foremost emotional actresses. When she had to leave the stage because of a nervous breakdown in 1895 she continued to live in it, supporting herself by writing her memories of the stage. It proved to be an expensive place to keep up, and in 1904, while she was still writing for the magazines, she mortgaged the property for $25,000. The Lawyers Title Insurance and Trust Company found the money for her, acting as trustee. In 1908 W. R. Hearst took a second mortgage on the property for $1,800.

About a year ago overwork brought on a nervous breakdown and Miss Morris's eyes began to fail. The interest on the mortgage fell due and could not be paid. Out of consideration for the actress, the Lawyers' Title Insurance and Trust Company suspended all steps in foreclosing the mortgage in order to give her every opportunity to obtain the money. As Mr. and Mrs. Harriott were not able to do this final judgment was entered in the White Plains Supreme Court against them and W. R. Hearst, holder of the second mortgage, as co-defendant, three weeks ago. Under Justice Keogh's order of yesterday the house will be sold next month by Lanman Crosby, the referee, after due notice is published.

"I do not know what will become of my poor wife and me when our home is sold," said Mr. Harriott last night. "I have not been told of Justice Keogh's order. Every night I sit from dusk to dawn by my wife's bedside, sleeping myself in the daytime. I do not believe my wife will live three weeks, in any event. Besides being entirely blind, she is suffering greatly from inflammatory rheumatism. Dr. Belcher, our physician, has entirely lost hope of her recovery."

E. W. Coggeshall, President of the Lawyers Title Insurance and Trust Company, was asked last night whether his company would not hold off for a few months more in view of the fact that the actress was dying.

"No," he said. "We are acting merely as a trustee in this matter. It will be impossible for us to do so, much as we might like to. The sale of the house will take place next month, according to the court's order."

Mr. Coggeshall refused to give the name of the person who actually holds the mortgage on the actress's home and for whom the Title Company is acting as Trustee.

Clara Morris achieved great fame on the stage in "L'Article 47," in "Comtesse de Somerive," and in "Camille." Her memoirs of the stage are among the most interesting volumes of American theatrical bibliography.

MERRITT RENOMINATED.

Convention in His District Opposes All the Primary Bills.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., June 28.—In the Second Assembly District Republican Convention of St. Lawrence County, held at Canton to-day, E. A. Merritt, majority leader of the New York Assembly, was renominated. The convention voted in opposition to any direct primary bill yet introduced.

In the First District Convention, held at Ogdensburg, Assemblyman Fred J. Gray was renominated.

BROWNE JURY OUT 102 HOURS.

No Agreement Yet in Sight on Lorimer Bribery Charges.

CHICAGO, June 28.—The jury which is deliberating on the case of Lee O'Neil Browne, legislative minority leader, charged with bribing C. A. White to vote for William Lorimer for United States Senator, passed the hundredth-hour mark to-night, without showing any indication of an agreement.

At 10 o'clock, when the jury had been out 102 hours, it was announced that there was little chance of an agreement to-night.

Dickinson Sails for Hawaii.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 28.—Secretary of War J. M. Dickinson and party, including his wife and son and Brig. Gen. Clarence Edwards, Chief of the Bureau of Insular Affairs, sailed to-day on the steamer Siberia for the Orient. The Secretary will inspect the fortifications now being erected in the Hawaiian Islands, and will spend some time in the Philippines before returning home by way of Europe.

act beneficially upon the tired city worker, because they serve mainly to increase the appetite and help digestion and assimilation. The Neurasthenia brought on by long hours and overwork is due principally to a starvation of the bodily and nervous tissues caused by the excessive consumption of albumen and phosphorus, which are the elements that serve as fuel to the engine of the human system that produces work, physical or mental. In the country appetite is increased and work is almost nil, consequently the daily food supplies these elements in ample quantity, not only for the little work required, but also to make good previous overdraughts. A prolonged outing is therefore beneficial. How about the worker, however, who must stay in the city or take an insufficient vacation of two weeks or of a few week-ends? The solution of this problem is found in a booklet, The American Disease, issued by The Bauer Chemical Company, 506 Everett Building, Union Square, New York, who will send a free copy on request. The solution given mainly concerns Sanatogen, the concentrated food-tonics, which has simplified the problem for thousands of distinguished continuous workers, including physicians of eminence. A selection of testimonials from such people, illustrated with their portraits, is included in this book, which is written in popular scientific style and will interest greatly the vast army of subjects of almost unbroken toil. Sanatogen meets their needs by supplying a concentrated and immediately assimilable form for the albumen and phosphorus which their overwrought systems demand, and also by increasing the relish for meals through its prompt and continuous tonic action upon the nerves concerned in digestion as well as on the nervous organism generally.

POLICE TO STOP SMOKING AUTOS

New Ordinance Against the Nuisance Will Go Into Effect on Friday.

WARNING SENT TO GARAGES

Offending Chauffeurs Will Be Gathered in and Punished on Misdemeanor Charges.

Automobile chauffeurs who pump oil into their engines in overdoses after Friday will do so at the risk of the law. This has been changed so that it can reach them as they go puffing along the streets, and a large force of special police will take the road to capture smudge makers.

In order that all automobile owners and drivers may be forewarned to clean their engines and adjust their oil tanks to the conditions called for in the new and smokeless era, notices were sent yesterday to all garages in the city.

The National Highways Protective Association, which was active in obtaining an amendment to the Sanitary Code covering the automobile smoke nuisance, sent out the warnings. It will also send out on Friday a lot of special police to assist the regular force in stopping automobiles that offend by trailing a streak of smoke behind.

The new ordinance provides that the chauffeur of an automobile that smokes may be taken to the nearest police station and charged with a misdemeanor. It was passed after representations had been made that there is no excuse for smoke from automobiles, and that every case where it occurs is evidence that the chauffeur is either incompetent or careless.

"Dense smoke" is the only kind that offends the law, and it must not be confused by policemen, according to an official of the Highways Protective Association, with the harmless light blue haze, that is permissible. By careful discrimination on the part of the police and a liberal number of arrests on Friday and immediately thereafter, the new law will end the smoke nuisance, in the opinion of its backers.

"The very worst place in the city for smoking automobiles," said one of those interested in the new ordinance, "is at Thirty-fourth Street and Fifth Avenue. There's a hill there and automobiles taking it usually pull the muffler off, so that all the smoke comes puffing out of one large opening instead of through the small ones normally provided. We expect to make many arrests at that corner on Friday.

"Our chief trouble outside of that point will be among the taxicabs of a certain company which has always used inferior oil and employed poor chauffeurs. The result has been that its cars have contributed more than their share to the unpleasantness of being a mere pedestrian on the streets.

"Because traffic is more congested there than elsewhere Fifth Avenue has felt the smoke nuisance most acutely and will welcome the relief we believe the new ordinance will afford."

Agitation in favor of the new ordinance began several years ago, but at first failed to make a case against the smoking auto, as the smoke seemed to be necessary. As the automobile engines were improved, however, it became clearer that the chauffeur could prevent much of the smoke, and finally, when 100 physicians signed a petition in which they said that the smoke was dangerous to the public health, the ordinance was passed.

Commissioner Lederle of the Health Department will have charge of the watchers who will be in Fifth Avenue on Friday. It is his plan to allow offenders to go with a warning at first and gradually increase the number of arrests as the penalties as old offenders begin to appear in the station-houses.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD
Bulletin.

There are three prime considerations in railway transportation.

SAFETY

The standard railway first of all seeks to safeguard its passengers. This is accomplished by the use of heavy steel rails and a rock-ballasted roadbed; by a regiment of experienced track repairers always on the job; a reliable signal system; a high grade of equipment, and enginemen who are ever alert.

COMFORT

A perfect roadbed and high standard equipment also promote comfort. The new steel coach is both safer and more comfortable than the parlor cars of the last century; while the Pullman cars of the Limited trains with their bath rooms and barber shops; their obliging attendants; their ladies' maids and stenographers; their electric lights, libraries, current literature, drawing-rooms, observation parlors, and buffets, and the dining car service afford the conveniences of the best hotels.

SPEED

The banker, the lawyer, the business man leaves New York on the "Pennsylvania Special" at 3.55 P. M. to-day and arrives in Chicago at 8.55 to-morrow morning. This is speed. It is the result of all the combined efforts in track, signal, and motive power construction, and in alert and skillful operation. It is the climax of the experience of the progressive railroad man.

The Pennsylvania Railroad with its rock-ballasted line between New York and Chicago, and its limited trains, affords the greatest degree of safety with absolute comfort, and the quickest time. And it is a scenic route besides.

JEFFRIES AS RUNNER ASTOUNDS SULLIVAN

Shows Fast Sprinting to the ex-Champion—Fast Boxing Exhibition by Johnson.

FIGHT NOT TO BE STOPPED

Governor Gives Full Assurance to Rickard—Many Women in Reno Reserve Seats at Ringside.

By JOHN L. SULLIVAN.

Special to The New York Times.

RENO, Nev., June 28.—Jeffries had us all guessing this morning. We journeyed out to his camp soon after sunrise to see him repeat the performance he put up yesterday morning, and we were disappointed. He had positively assured me the night before that he was going to box this morning. It had become noised about in the town that the previous day's session was going to be repeated, and the first few cars out were packed to the roofs. That settled it. Nothing doing for Jeff. He scared like a hare.

But he did one thing that repaid me for my early outing and delayed breakfast. After sitting around the lawn for about half an hour, he quietly tipped several of us off to the fact that he was going to do some sprinting on the road. He asked us not to follow him immediately, so that when he and Farmer Burns started down the road the crowd looked him over and allowed him to go quietly on his way. This part of the training doesn't appeal to the sightseers on foot, because they have all heard of the strenuousness of it, and naturally have come to the conclusion that they would see very little if they attempted to follow the tracks of the big fellow.

After he had been gone about twenty minutes I jumped into my auto and went after him. I caught him a mile or so out on one of the byroads, and he and the Farmer were still trudging along.

He said: "John, wait until we get up about a mile before you come close with that auto, because I don't want any dust. Then come up to where we are. I am going to do a couple of miles of sprinting."

When he got out of sight we started up the machine again and followed. We were about two miles and a half away from Moana by this time.

Impressed by the Sprinting.

In the meantime Joe Choynski and Roger Cornell had come along the road to join their principal. As we got close to Jeff, he started on a dead run. He distanced all of them, and then he turned back and repeated this performance, interspersing sprints with a stiff walking gait. This feature of his training probably has impressed me more forcibly than anything I have ever seen him do. You hear a lot about athletes training out on the road reeling off six, eight, and ten miles and the other prodigious things they do on foot, but when a man will allow you to follow him in an auto, and especially Jeff, it is a pretty safe gamble that he isn't going to loaf, nor has he been used to loafing.

This man Jeffries is a wonderful man, whether he wins on Monday or not. He is a corking athlete, and he could have excelled in any other branch of athletics that he might have taken up. He is a wonderful runner, and he can jump and he can wrestle, and the Lord only knows what he could do with the weights if he ever practiced with them; and as an oarsman he would have been a champion long ago. His build and stamina fit him for almost every known form of athletic endeavor.

I trailed along back of him going home to Moana Springs and went with him into his rubbing room. Two big husky helpers rubbed him and massaged him for about twenty-five minutes. He never made a complaint of a sore spot, and I doubt very much whether he has any, although Corbett, Choynski, and Armstrong wear small gloves when they box with him and have given him some pretty hard knocks. As I was about leaving Moana I asked Jeff what he was going to do in the afternoon.

"John I am going to box this afternoon," he answered, and I said: "Now quit your kidding; you're going fishing to-day, you know."

He laughed and said: "Well, as a matter of fact, it will just be about according to how I feel. I think I will box, though."

The day being warmer than yesterday, I had my doubts about his doing any more real work. However, he went on his boxing stage when he heard that Gov. Dickerson was there, and then went through some boxing and wrestling stunts, more to please the Governor than for any real exercise.

As the fight time nears and the crowd of sports increases the arguments about the coming encounter naturally increase. I never heard so much fight talk in all my life, and I don't ever expect to hear as much again, because I think with a lot of my old friends, this will be the last great battle for many a year. Certainly I don't ever expect a future one to create the furor that this has done.

Johnson Gives a Fast Exhibition.

The latest bone of contention, though, concerns Johnson's modus operandi. The newcomers here can't understand his slowness of motion, particularly in the last few days. They should have all been at Ricks this afternoon. Gov. Dickerson went out, and he saw about one of the most strenuous days of training that either of the fighters have put in since they began operations. Whether the big champion wanted to show the Governor a thing or two about the game probably only he knows, but the way he sailed into his partners was well worth the price they charge for the boxing shows in New York or San Francisco.

He boxed four men and put one of them out. He took on Al Kaufman first for four rounds, George Cotton for four, and Dave Mills and Monahan for two each. Cotton and Johnson went at it for keeps right at the start. Cotton caught the champion a peach on the side of the head in the second round; then they tore at each other all through the third round. In the fourth Johnson let up a bit and Cotton kept boring in. He came with a rush once, and Johnson let him into a clinch. The champion's right hand shot upward, in close, and Cotton went down. He hung to the ropes, and then wilted completely. Johnson and the others helped him up, and he was soon revived. The Governor had a good view of the whole proceeding, and seemed to enjoy the show.

I can explain this apparent let-up in Johnson's gait. As a matter of fact, it is only natural. If he feels the way I used to feel at this stage of the game, it is time for him to let up, but the crowd here, with so little to do and so little to see and nothing on their minds but the fight, want to see a real fight every time they go to either one of the camps. Johnson gives this class the impression that he is slow and hasn't a real serious thought of the outcome on Monday. They would rather see him chasing his his sparring partners around like a devil was after them and his brow accordion-pleated with worry wrinkles and a wild, hunted look in his eye. Then they could argue from a positive standpoint. Now the big champion has them guessing. He kids with the crowd as they stand about during the boxing practice, and apparently he isn't paying any attention to his earnest opponent, who is doing all in his power to land a stinging blow on him.

On the other hand the skeptics see nothing but seriousness and reticence at the Jeffries camp.

Governor Reassures Sullivan.

I learned that Gov. Dickerson had arrived in town just after I got back to town from Moana and naturally I was anxious to get at first hand what his latest attitude was in regard to the fight. I can say positively that there will be no interference from the State authorities on this score. The Governor, however, gave out an official statement reassuring those who had any doubts whatsoever.

I met little "Battling" Nelson shortly after he got in here this morning. Nelson is here for the same purpose I am, and he made his first visit to Johnson's camp this afternoon. He will go out to Moana to-morrow morning. The Battler said he wouldn't fight on Labor Day here or any other day, and that he would not enter the ring again until he is right. Then he will meet the champion and there will be no doubt about the winner being really entitled to the decision. Nelson thinks that the betting, which has been quoted as 2 to 1 in some cases, is distorted. He thinks the money should be nearer even, and says that the wagers made at long prices will have a bad effect on the proportion of the other bets made.

The strong breeze of yesterday is lacking to-day, and the sun is just as hot as ever.

Might Have Two Referees.

There was some talk this morning about the referee question. Rickard is credited with the announcement that he would have a substitute referee named in case the businss of the fight, which is of no mean proportion, will be too strong for him right up until the time of the opening of hostilities, which by the way has been fixed at 1:30 P. M. This little rumor, of course, got its share of attention out of all proportion to its importance like anything else does here in connection with the coming battle.

The situation of two referees for one fight seemed to strike many as unusual and illegal. As far as this is concerned, there is no reason why there shouldn't be two referees actually serving on the day of the fight. However, in this case there will only be one, and he will be the third man in the ring. But whether or not Rickard is really serious in his intention to delegate that office to some other man need not have any material effect on the fight itself, except as a new incident or as a piece of news to the world at large.

There was all kinds of talk about how two referees could serve. With a Queensberry contest it might present a complicated situation in case the bout went the limit with one referee in the ring and one outside, for, of course, it would be impossible for two referees to be in the ring. In this case, if the bout was at all close there might be a wrangle which probably never would be settled, but the idea of two referees in a championship fight is not at all new. When I fought Ryan there were two referees because I wouldn't agree to Ryan's choice, who was Jack Hardy. Mine was Alec Brewster. But for the simple reason that I knocked Ryan out, there was no question about the result of the battle.

There need be no worry about this feature of the coming fight. No matter who serves, he will have very little to do. I don't think there is a chance in the world for either man to commit a foul or for the fight to go forty-five rounds. If the latter contingency presents itself, one of the men will be hanging on and a baby could decide who was the better man.

GOVERNOR NOT TO STOP FIGHT.

Gives Positive Assurances—Many Women Will See the Battle.

Special to The New York Times.

RENO, Nev., June 28.—All doubt about the Jeffries-Johnson fight taking place in Reno was set at rest this morning when Gov. D. S. Dickerson, on his way from Ely to Carson City, stopped here and discussed the coming fight, and saw both fighters in action.

"I don't expect to be at the fight on the Fourth," he said on his arrival. "Fights are allowed here by law, but it is within my power to stop the fight if it is in my opinion a fake."

"Well, Governor, if you do not expect to be present, how do you expect to tell whether it is a fake? To whom do you expect to delegate the power to decide for you?" was asked.

"Capt. Cox of the State Police has assured me that the fight will be on the level," he replied. "He is the official in charge of this affair as far as the State is concerned in it. I personally believe in his assurance that there will be nothing wrong with the conduct of this fight; therefore I can say that it will not be necessary for me to use my authority to stop the contest in any way whatsoever."

The Governor arrived from Ely on an early train this morning. He went at once to his hotel and left orders that he was not to be called until almost noon. When he came down "Tex" Rickard and Capt. Cox were on hand to meet him.

"I have heard no rumors recently that the fight was apt to be stopped," said the Governor as he clasped hands with Rickard. "I do not know how rumors of possible action by myself against the fight have got out. I wish to state again that I have not considered such a thing at any time. My previous statement I made on the matter stands to-day. The State of Nevada will not interfere, as the laws of the State have been complied with."

Rickard beamed in response, and the Governor and promoter strolled across the street to a café and had luncheon. As they came out Gov. Dickerson turned to a newspaper man and said:

"The Jeffries-Johnson fight will positively will be held in Reno on the afternoon of July 4, with no intereference from any one. Mr. Rickard, as referee and promoter, has assured me that the fight will be honestly conducted. Beyond this I have no concern with it. I have known Mr. Rickard for seven years, and his word is sufficient for me."

Afterward the Governor saw both fighters box, and had a talk with Jeffries.

Real Crowd Now Gathering.

This probably will set at rest any more talk about interference with the fight. Certainly there is no indication here of any doubt existing, and by the way the trains are pouring their multitudes in an already crowded town there don't seem to be any doubt among those who ever had any intention of coming to the fight. So far as the Renoites are concerned, they are willing to sit around and have no thought except of the spectacle of the fighters actually stepping into the ring. The sale of seats goes merrily along in "Jim" May's main gambling hall. Yesterday more than $3,000 worth of tickets were sold. Not one of the cheaper priced ones has been put on the market. These have all been held back for the day of the fight, and there is every indication that the final sale will be a record breaker.

The construction of the arena goes along in leaps and bounds. It looks as though it would be ready by Thursday night. Rickard and Gleason will be perfectly satisfied if the contractors have completed their work by Saturday night. This will give them a day to drill their ushers and complete the preliminary arrangements and attend to the fighting. The plans call for a seating capacity of about 17,000, but according to Rickard heavy orders for tickets from the East point to the possibility of a much larger attendance. To be prepared for such an emergency lumber will be hauled to the site and held in readiness. If necessary another platform will be placed behind the rear top seats providing standing room for about 4,000 persons.

If it is a hot day Monday, the spectators will come in for an awful scorching. That arena site is about the hottest place in civilized Nevada according to many experts who have seen fights in other parts of the State. There is not a shade tree or a blade of grass within a mile of the place. It is hoped on all sides that a friendly rainstorm will come along within in the next few days so that the atmosphere will be cooled somewhat. There is no complaint about the nights. They are delightful, but if it is a hot day on Monday there will be more than a little discomfort in the arena. It is understood that no drinks of any kind will be sold.

The vital subjects that occupied the time of the sidewalk conventions this morning were the probability of another referee being named in case Rickard found that his many other duties are taking up too much of his time and attention from the fight and speculation as to who will be Jeffries's chief second.

Those who appear to be very close to Jeffries have intimated that "Gene" Van Court, the boxing instructor at the Olympic Club in San Francisco, will be Jeffries's chief adviser on the day of the fight. Van Court has been with Jeffries all during his training, and they have had many private talks together. Jeffries, however, has not even hinted who will be the boss of his corner.

Coffroth, the fight promoter of San Francisco, left this morning. He made his short stay here felt in more ways than one. It is the first time he has been in Reno for any great length of time, and he gave Rickard a few tips on the arena construction which were very readily accepted.

Many Women Will Be There.

Judging from the talk in social circles here every woman in Reno who has the price of a ticket will be at the ringside. This will probably be one of the striking features of the contest. Rickard and Gleason will put no obstacle in the way of the women who want to attend the fight. Rickard says that he will welcome every one of them, save those who want to get in for nothing. It is understood that one prominent member of the divorce colony has ordered half a dozen fifty-dollar seats for herself and five friends, who will occupy a box and cheer on Jeffries.

The most interesting features of the day at the two camps were the Governor's visits and Johnson's cutting loose on one of his sparring partners. Otherwise it was a quiet day, but this is to be expected from now on. Jeffries's most interesting performance was his sprinting on the road several miles away from his cottage for John L. Sullivan's benefit. The old champion was simply astounded at the way Jeffries ran away from his companions in the sprints.

Jeffries Not a Hard Drinker.

"Jack" Grant of Portland, famous as a referee on the Pacific Coast and an intimate friend of Jeffries, has a story that upsets all the wild rumors of dissipation on the part of the big boilermaker in the five or six years' interval just past in which he has done no fighting.

"The stories about Jeffries being a hard drinker are false," snapped out Grant when the subject was broached at a gathering of sports here to-day. "I have known Jeff for a number of years and in all that time he has taken pretty fair care of himself. You hear frequently of the amount of drinking Jeff indulged in, although the statements are mostly speculative. There is this to be said of Jeff and drink: I have seen the big fellow take a couple of highballs and then chase across the street and order a big steak. Some afternoons he would eat a couple of these steaks. Now, any man who eats that well and retires at an early hour suffers little effect from a few drinks.

"There is a little incident that occurred at Carlsbad that ought to give you a fair line on Jeff's condition. When he arrived at the springs he was met by the principal doctor there, and without wasting words explained his reasons for visiting Carlsbad and his natural desire to get back into fighting condition. The doctor looked Jeff over from head to foot and then said he would like Jeff to take a run up to his office in the morning. This office was, by the way, at the summit of a hill and about a mile up from the resort. When the morning came Jeff started on a jog, and with very little effort arrived at the office right on time. In the examination that followed the doctor expressed himself as highly pleased at his patient's looks and straightway pronounced him a perfect man, organically and muscularly. He informed the retired champion that he could easily bring about a return of form, and the two parted. It was this consultation that caused Jeff to announce his return to the ring."

Some one asked Grant if he really thought Jeffries had his old staying power, and Grant replied: "Jeff is just as good as he ever was. The fighter isn't born who can take a good solid punch from Jim. When he hits once it is good-bye; and, mark you, he will hit this fellow Johnson several good wallops. I cannot see anything to it except Jeffries."

Gambling Houses are Crowded.

The Sunday closing law here in regard to gambling is the one ordinance that is strictly enforced, but at all other times gambling places are crowded to the limit. Among the hundreds of men—no women being permitted in the gambling saloons—who swarm the places of chance of Jim May, Miller & Stout, the Golden Hotel, the Sage Brush Club, and others, the student of human nature could find almost every known type of the winner and loser. Millionaires in high boots and dusty clothes, rich men's sons, perfect tonsorially, mingle with the riffraff of the West, who in turn cry words of encouragement to the flashily dressed, diamond-spattered gentry of uncertain livelihood and liabilities. Once in a while, when things look blue for the players, the house orders a drink, and many times one sees sheep herders and waifs of the world quaffing champagne with those who have had it all their lives.

"This is all small money," explained one gamekeeper, apologetically, as he raked in possibly $5 or $6 on one turn of the wheel, "but we will do big business for the rest of this week. The big money should be hitting town about to-night, and from then on I guess we will be busy every hour of every twenty-four."

One effect of all this gathering of athletic talent here will be to draw the principal trainers at the two camps toward the East. They are about all Western men. Farmer Burns, for one, will very likely go to Yale. He has had several long talks with "Mike" Murphy, and Murphy thinks a great deal of the Farmer's ability as a physical director. Burns made a hit with Murphy away back in 1892, when the old wrestler went to New Haven and threw every member of the football team, taking just nineteen minutes to complete the job.

Little Betting on the Fight.

Betting on the fight has been remarkably light here. With only six days left to get the money down, mighty few wagers have been recorded. We hear of bets being made in the East and on the Pacific Coast, but there is no indication of any big money being chanced here as yet. Some have tried to explain this by reasoning that the Johnson adherents are waiting for a drop of 2 to 1 from 10 to 6, but sporting men as a rule don't wait for the drop of a dollar point in a gambling proposition that looks good to them. Several large bets are on record at 2 to 1 and several more at 10 to 6. The largest bet which has come to light here was made last night, $2,000 against $1,200, with Johnson at the small end, of course.

BETTING IN SAN FRANCISCO.

Odds 10 to 7—Much Canadian Money Wagered—Little Betting Here.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 28.—Betting at odds of 10 to 7 with Jeffries on the long end continued at a lively rate here to-day in the poolroom of the official betting commissioner for the Jeffries-Johnson fight.

"Tom" Corbett received large sums from Canadian points, which he placed at the prevailing odds. The bulk of the money continues to be furnished by local fight followers, but much betting was done to-day by visitors, waiting here preparatory to their trip to Reno. Corbett will leave to-morrow for Reno, where he will take personal charge of the betting.

The absence of big betting on the prizefight of July 4 was a matter of comment yesterday at the hotels and cafés of this city where betting has been very brisk previous to other pugilistic encounters. A canvass of fifteen of the prominent hotels and cafés along Broadway and Fifth Avenue revealed a decided falling off in betting activity over former years, and not one bet has been recorded for more than $10.

At the Hoffman House café, which has heretofore been the scene of some lively betting rallies, it was said that not one bet had been recorded so far. A Broadway café proprietor asserted that he had never in his experience seen so little betting on a big fight with the contest less than a week away.

A rumor was going the rounds at the Holland House yesterday that somebody had placed a bet of $100 to $500 that Jeffries would knock out Johnson in the first round, but the rumor waned with the day, and no confirmation could be had. The small bets recorded here were mostly at even money. Several bets were made for dinners, but altogether it was declared that there had been more argument than the noise of money. One man wanted to bet 7 to 10 that the fight would never take place.

There was plenty of talk over the fight heard at the café at the Waldorf-Astoria, but no money was brought into the limelight. If it was, the quotations were too small to attract attention. Several women here, it was said, had bet even on a box of chocolates against a box of marshmallows, but their names were not disclosed.

At the Café Martin it was said that $1,000 had been laid aside by a man there two months ago to lay on Jeffries at odds of 6 to 10, but so far no one had come forward to take any chances. The same lethargy in betting was reported at the Knickerbocker and Astor, no bets over one figure having been recorded. Nobody at the Plaza had heard of a bet being talked about, much less recorded.

It was pointed out yesterday that the betting here will not begin until Saturday. The lack of record of any big wagers so far is laid to the absence from town of the wealthy sporting class, or the "better-million" magnates, who generally make their wagers at the hotel cafés. Critical observers declare that no one here will risk large sums of money on the outcome of the fight this year, and that the betting, when it begins in earnest, will not soar above two figures at 2 to 1.

Burns Arrives to See Fight.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 28.—The steamer Wilhelmina arrived to-day from Honolulu, bringing well known sporting men from the antipodes to see the Jeffries-Johnson fight on July 4. Among them are Hugh McIntosh, an Australian fight promoter; Tommy Burns, former champion, who lost his title to Jack Johnson, and Bill Lang, a heavyweight.

Western Union and the Fight.

General Manager Brooks of the Western Union Telegraph Company issued notice yesterday that the company would not furnish news bulletins either by special wire, by messengers, or on its tickers relating to the progress of the Jeffries-Johnson prizefight at Reno, Nev., on July 4. Many applications have been made for such service in various parts of the country. The Western Union Company will confine itself to the handling of such messages as may be filed for regular transmission in the ordinary manner at Reno by press associations, by newspapers, and by individuals.

Bill Against Fights in Georgia.

ATLANTA, Ga., June 28.—A bill intended to knock out prizefights and glove contests of any kind in Georgia was introduced in the upper branch of the General Assembly to-day. Boxing contests at present are staged in this city, Savannah, and Macon.

NEW PLAN FOR COURT HOUSE.

Architects Would Build a Skyscraper on Duane Street Site.

George and Edward Blum, architects of 505 Fifth Avenue, filed yesterday with the Board of Estimate their plans for the erection of a "skyscraper court house" on the so-called Duane Street site, which has the approval of a large number of the persons interested in the selection of a site for the proposed new structure. In their prospectus the Blum brothers say:

"As to the cost of the court house itself, we would state that without going into elaborate details, general practice shows that an estimate of $10,000,000 is about right. The foundations are always a question, but could not cost more than $2,000,000 with modern methods of caisson construction."

The matter will undoubtedly be refered to the Mayor's Court House Commission, which, when last heard from, was still in favor of the present site in City Hall Park, with the taking of a small amount of additional ground space.

POLICEMAN MANN HAS BRIEF TRIUMPH

Dismissed Last January for Clubbing, He Is Reinstated and Dismissed Again in a Day.

MAKING IT MORE BINDING

Mann Had Appealed to Court on a Technical Error, Which Commissioner Has Now Corrected.

Patrolman John W. Mann, who was dismissed from the Police Department last January for intoxication and assaulting a citizen without provocation, was reinstated yesterday by Police Commissioner Baker. The Police Commissioner discovered that he had made a technical error in the dismissal proceedings.

The lawyers who have been trying to get Mann back on the force for the last five months were jubilant, but their rejoicing was short lived. Within a few hours after the Commissioner had posted the order of reinstatement a new order of dismissal followed and Mann was again an ex-policeman. This much he had gained, in all likelihood: He would recover his back pay from January, since he had been restored with the acknowledgment that his discharge at that time was in error, technical, as the Commissioner explained, but effective none the less in re-establishing Mann as a full-fledged member of the force for all the time that he was out.

Mr. Baker's mistake, which he realized when it was called to his attention, was in dismissing without reading a transcript of the testimony in the policeman's trial, which the law required him to do. Mann's lawyers were quick to learn that this had not been done and they sued out a writ of certiorari. When the writ was served on the Commissioner he had a lengthy consultation with Corporation Counsel Watson.

It is understood that the Commissioner was recently advised by the Corporation Counsel that the technical error acknowledged by the Commissioner would result in Mann's reinstatement by the courts.

The "clubbing" of which Mann was found guilty was regarded at the time as a flagrant abuse. Mayor Gaynor was so aroused by the reports of it that he wrote to Commissioner Baker directing that the accused patrolman be brought to trial without delay.

According to the evidence, on the evening of Jan. 6 Patrolman Mann was seen by several witnesses in an intoxicated condition at the corner of Broadway and Thirteenth Street. He set upon William J. Houston, an engineer of 66 Pierrepont Street, Brooklyn, and gave him such a beating that another policeman telephoned to Commissioner Baker about it. Mann was arrested and taken to the Mercer Street Station, to which he was at the time attached. He was suspended from duty.

The ill-treatment of the engineer so aroused Mayor Gaynor that he wrote this letter to Commissioner Baker:

> Jan. 10, 1910.
>
> Sir: My attention has been called to the case of Patrolman Mann, accused by many eyewitnesses of being drunk and committing unlawful batteries on several persons in the streets.
>
> Please see that there is no delay in bringing him to trial, for the quicker all men, capable of such things be got off the force the better, and if he be innocent let him be vindicated. Yours, W. J. GAYNOR,
>
> Mayor.

Mann was put on trial a few days later before Third Deputy Commissioner Walsh. The charges against him were intoxication and assaulting a citizen. The Deputy Commissioner, after hearing the evidence, recommended to Commissioner Baker that Mann be dismissed. It was here that the technical error was made under which the dismissed patrolman has been enabled to get back upon the force.

When one of the Deputy Commissioners recommends the dismissal of a patrolman the Commissioner, before dismissing the patrolman, is required, under the law, to read the minutes of the testimony in the case and review the evidence for and against the patrolman.

Commissioner Baker, it turns out, in the Mann case, neglected to do this. After a talk with Deputy Commissioner Walsh the Commissioner signed the order for Mann's dismissal. He affixed his signature to it before the stenographic minutes of the trial had been transcribed, and thus obviously before he had himself had an opportunity to read them and review the evidence.

Commissioner Baker sent out the following Special Order, No. 171, yesterday, being assured it was the proper legal step:

> Reinstated as Patrolman—John W. Mann, having been restored to the office of patrolman as of Jan. 19, 1910, is hereby assigned to Twelfth Precinct, (Mulberry Street Station,) to take effect 10 A. M., June 27, 1910.

Just before Police Commissioner Baker's office at Headquarters was closed for the day yesterday, Sergt. Ben Mallon made the announcement that Commissioner Baker had put in the best part of the day reading the now typewritten minutes of Mann's trial and that having completed this task he had signed another order dismissing Mann from the department. The Commissioner's order of Mann's dismissal will be posted and published to-day.

Some question was expressed around Police Headquarters last night whether Commissioner Baker's act in "reinstating" Mann in order merely to circumvent a technicality and dismiss him legally, would be upheld by the courts. In the Commissioner's favor, however, it was pointed out that Mann's first "dismissal" being illegal, was not a dismissal at all, and that Mann was really dismissed from the department for the first time yesterday.

DRISCOLL AFTER POLICEMAN.

Says Paolucci Offered Him Money After a "Short-Weights" Arrest.

Police Commissioner Baker has suspended Patrolman Bartholomew Paolucci of the Sixth Precinct and ordered him brought to trial on charges of attempted bribery in connection with the arrest of Vincent Guerrie of 79 Mulberry Street in the crusade which Chief Driscoll of the Bureau of Weights and Measures has undertaken against the usage of short weights and measures by small dealers.

The matter was called to the Police Commissioner's attention by Mayor Gaynor, who has an affidavit from Chief Driscoll in which he says that the policeman approached him after the arrest of Guerrie and "offered him money" to drop the case, and that later he approached one of the Inspectors of the bureau with a similar proposal when the man was arraigned in court.

The case has been turned over to the District Attorney.

THOUGHTFUL SHOES
AN ADVERTISEMENT BY ELBERT HUBBARD

Feet are like People—they vary.

If all feet were "standardized" there would be no Shoe Problem. You could simply designate the material that pleased you most—and never mind the "make."

But each and every one of us have feet with Personality plus—peculiar, particular feet—and Any Make of shoes will not do.

To shake in Powder and then jam home your foot in an unfitted and unfitting shoe is a sin against Commonsense.

And to wear shoes that pinch just the least leetle bit, or rub, or suffocate the feet, is to make every minute miserable.

There can be no annoyance equal to a hurting shoe.

"Trifles make perfection, but Perfection itself is no trifle," admitted Michael Angelo five hundred years ago.

All the little niceties that go to make livable shoes are "trifles"—to makers who consider them so.

The Coward Shoes are Thoughtful Shoes. They have width where width is needed, and snugness where snugness helps. They are friendly. If your foot sags or spreads, or bunches or chafes or grows tired too soon—or if you are hard to fit—you need the Coward Shoe.

'T is one thing to be a Capitalist employing Workmen to turn the handle and grind out "factory" shoes; and 't is quite another thing to be a Practical Shoemaker and an Expert in Foot Anatomy as is James S. Coward.

Many of Coward's Shoes anticipate Serious Foot Trouble, and remedy it before the ailment becomes chronic.

TRACED FOR FORGERY BY FALSE LEG WRENCH

One-Legged Man Arrested for Cashing Money Orders on Which He Got $20,000 in a Year.

THEN HE BOUGHT A RANCH

Left a Wrench for His Artificial Leg Behind Him in a Hotel, and This Led to His Capture.

Carelessness in leaving at a hotel a nickel-plated wrench, used in fitting an artificial leg, brought Thaddeus E. York from his Washington ranch, 150 miles from a railroad station, to jail on the charge of forgery. The Pinkertons arrested him on Monday evening in Seattle after a search of more than a year. They first wanted him on the charge of breaking into the office of the Northern Express Company at Oakdale, Wash., and stealing fifty-seven money orders, and they succeeded in arresting him through investigating a fraud on the American Bank and Trust Company of Klamath Falls, Ore., of $7,000. In addition they think that York is responsible for other robberies and forgeries, which would bring his plunder up to some $20,000 in a year.

York, the Pinkertons say, appeared in Klamath Falls, Ore., at the beginning of March under the name of Frank B. Houston. He met a number of business men who were thinking of putting up a large hotel, and got on well with them. After a few days he obtained an introduction from one of the prominent citizens to the American Bank and Trust Company, where he opened an account. He induced that concern to allow him to overdraw to the extent of $7,000 and then disappeared on March 10.

The case was put in the hands of the Pinkertons, and they proceeded to investigate. The only clue they found was a curious nickel-plated wrench, which he had left behind in one of the hotels in which he had stopped. They inquired about it and discovered that it was of special make for men who use artificial legs or feet. They had already been informed that Houston walked with a limp, and this explained his gait.

The makers of the wrench were discovered and from them it was learned that they had turned out only thirty-seven nickel-plated wrenches in all. Of these some had been sent to the Chicago Artificial Limb Company's office in San Francisco.

The Pinkertons also learned that as artificial limbs wear out it is customary for their manufacturers to keep a record of them with the names of the persons to whom they are sold. They went through the list and soon came upon the name of Thaddeus E. York, for whom they had been looking for several months on account of the robbery from the Northern Express. He was set down as living at Reno, Nev., and inquiries there established the fact that he was an expert telegraph operator, who had been employed on various railroads in the Northwest, and had a mother living in Los Angeles. Later the identity of Houston and York as the same person was established.

Next the detectives learned that York had bought a ranch at Chelan, Wash., 150 miles from Wenatchee, the nearest railroad point. He had a naphtha launch, which he used to carry up and down the Columbia River his produce to market. It was also learned that he was expecting his mother from Los Angeles to come to his ranch. So a watch was kept for him at Seattle, and he was arrested.

York's record according to the Pinkertons begins with his appointment in 1890 as a clerk of the Republican County, City, and State Committees in Indianapolis. After two years he was made a clerk in the Post Office of that city, but he lost his job for political reasons. From 1894 to 1899 he was again a clerk in the employ of the Republican County Committee of Indianapolis, and for three years after that he was a solicitor for The Indianapolis Press and News. In 1902 he became a telegraph operator for the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Indianapolis Railroad at Connorsville, Ind.

It is thought he is the man who, as John W. Lee, in May last broke into the office of the Northern Express Company at Oakdale, Wash., stole fifty-seven money orders, and cashed a number of them. Lee, to establish his identity, showed a United States Government passport, No. 13,077, in that name. To the orders the name of the Express Company's agent at Butte, Mon., was forged, and they were put through at such widely distant points as Toledo, Cleveland, Painesville, Ashtabula, and Conneaut in Ohio; Buffalo, and Erie, Penn.

The same man is supposed then to have passed himself off as N. N. Sutherland, and to have swindled on May 19 last year the American Savings Bank and Trust Company of Seattle out of $1,339 on two certificates of deposit. The real Sutherland lives at Malta, Col., and is a railroad employe. The certificates had been mailed to him, and Lee, it is alleged, abstracted the envelope containing them from the railroad station at Malta.

On Feb. 5 last York was introduced to the officials of the State Bank of Chicago by one of its depositors as George W. Hampton. He attempted to get $5,000 on his certificate of deposit, which was later, the Pinkertons say, proved to be a forgery. When he could not get the money, the depositor withdrew $900 from the bank and gave it to Hampton.

The last exploit attributed to York by the detectives was that which led to his capture. At the beginning of March, under the name of Frank B. Houston, he is accused of having defrauded the American Bank and Trust Company of Klamath Falls, Ore., out of $7,000. Considering the number of orders of the express company which were cashed for varying amounts, the detectives believe that he cleared up not far short of $20,000 in a little more than a year.

Immigration Officials Make Clerk's Companion Tell Where Loot Is Hidden

The Immigration Inspectors are looking for a young German who arrived here on June 16 on the Hamburg-American liner Graf Waldersee, and who is wanted in Cairo, Egypt, for stealing between $40,000 and $50,000 from a bank there. With the young man, who was listed in the first cabin as Herr Paul Webber, there traveled a handsome young Roumanian woman, who was listed as Frau Marcelle Webber. Both wore costly garments, and found no trouble whatever in passing themselves off as persons of culture and wealth.

Monday night the Immigration Inspectors at Ellis Island traced the woman to a boarding house in Brooklyn. They went to the boarding house yesterday morning, found the young woman, and brought her back to Ellis Island, where she went before the Board of Special Inquiry. Every effort was made to get from her information which would lead to the arrest of her companion, but the immigration officials could not trap her into divulging that secret. She declared over and over again that she had no idea where Paul Webber was.

Then the Inspectors began questioning her as to the disposition Webber had made of the money. At first the young woman was just as uncommunicative as she had been concerning the whereabouts of Webber, but under the severe cross-examination she finally wavered, and consented to lead the Inspectors to where the money was hidden.

The woman, accompanied by Inspectors, went to the boarding house in Brooklyn, where she said the money was hidden in a bed.

The woman had told the truth about the hiding place of the money, and it is believed that the Inspectors recovered about $40,000 of the stolen money, which was in German bank notes. The money was put in a safety deposit vault yesterday pending instructions from the German bank in Cairo from which it is said to have been stolen.

The fact that the young Cairo bank clerk had arrived in New York was communicated to the immigration authorities soon after the Graf Waldersee arrived on this side, but not until after all the passengers from the vessel had landed. It is said that the request for Webber's arrest came from Washington as a result of information imparted to the State Department by the German Ambassador.

The Immigration Inspectors got to work immediately, and so secretly did they operate that less than half a dozen officials on Ellis Island knew until yesterday that Webber was in this country. Day and night the Inspectors worked, but no trace was found of Webber. Then in some way that was not disclosed they got information that the woman who had come over with Webber was staying in Brooklyn.

A house-to-house canvass of hotels and boarding houses was made, and late Monday night the house in which the woman was stopping was found. Early yesterday morning two Inspectors called there and took her to the island, where the Board of Special Inquiry was waiting to conduct the examination.

When the news got out that the Immigration Inspectors were hunting for an embezzler who had got away with a large sum of money became known, the Ellis Island officials denied that there was any truth in the report. Finally they admitted that such a man as Webber had arrived on the Graf Waldersee and that there was reason to believe that he was now hiding somewhere in this city. They would not give out the amount of the money the man was accused of stealing, beyond the statement that it was a large sum.

The woman is still on Ellis Island awaiting final disposition of her case. Last night it was said that there was no doubt that she would be deported.

L. H. STEVENS A SUICIDE.

Coroner's Verdict in Case of American Who Died in London Hotel.

LONDON, June 28.—A Coroner's jury to-day returned a verdict of "suicide while temporarily insane" in the case of Lyndon H. Stevens, a wealthy resident of Greenwich, Conn., who died at the Grand Hotel here on June 21.

Letters addressed to Mr. Stevens's wife and daughters showed he imagined himself to be in financial difficulties.

Mr. Stevens was found dead in bed under circumstances indicating poisoning. An autopsy failed to substantiate this theory, and the Coroner's inquiry was adjourned pending an examination of the contents of the stomach. At the resumed inquest this afternoon the verdict of suicide by poisoning was determined upon.

Mr. Stevens had been abroad for several months and he is said to have broken down from overwork.

CAPTURED BOMB EXPLODES.

Kills a Passer-by in Barcelona—Police Charge a Crowd at Bilbao.

BARCELONA, June 28.—The police today found a bomb in the streets.

While they were conveying it to the city laboratory in a patrol wagon it exploded, killing a passer-by and seriously injuring four policemen.

BILBAO, June 28.—There were further disturbances here to-day growing out of the strained relations between the Government of Premier Canalejas and the Vatican.

A crowd composed of Carlists and Nationalists surrounded the palace of the Governor of the Province of Biscay and shouted "Down with the Governor!"

The police were summoned and charged the demonstrators with drawn sabres, wounding a number of them.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

BUENOS AYRES, June 28.—The Senate today passed the bill adopted by the Chamber of Deputies designed to suppress anarchy. The residence of Anarchists in the republic is rigorously interdicted. Representatives of navigation companies, Captains, or agents who knowingly engage in the bringing of Anarchists to this country will be liable to heavy fine or imprisonment. Capital punishment is provided for those who are responsible for any Anarchistic movement resulting in death.

WASHINGTON, June 28.—On account of the ambiguous reports received at the State Department in regard to the arrest of William B. MacMaster, American Vice Consul at Cartagena, the department has asked for more detailed telegraphic reports. It was reported that Mr. MacMaster's arrest resulted from enmity toward him for pressing cases against two Colombians who stabbed him last year.

EXPUNGE ATTACK ON CHURCH IN OATH

Premier Asquith Introduces Bill Modifying King's Religious Declaration at Coronation.

DOES NOT ALLUDE TO ROME

New Form Simply Statement That Sovereign Is Faithful Protestant—Bill Passes First Reading.

LONDON, June 28.—Premier Asquith introduced in the House of Commons today the promised bill altering the form of the religious declaration required of the sovereign upon his coronation.

In the proposed text the doctrine of the Roman Catholic Church is not singled out for repudiation. It is simply affirmed that the sovereign is a faithful Protestant. The paragraph is made to read:

> I do solemnly and sincerely, and in the presence of God, profess, testify, and declare that I am a faithful member of the Protestant Church as by law established in England, and I shall, according to the true intent of the enactments which secured the Protestant succession to the throne of my realm, uphold and maintain the said enactments to the best of my powers and according to law.

The old form of the King's declaration, a relic of the days of the bitter conflict between Romanists and Protestants of the seventeenth century, is as follows:

> I do solemnly and sincerely, and in the presence of God, profess, testify, and declare that I do believe that in the Sacrament of Our Lord's Supper there is not any trans-substantiation of the elements of bread and wine into the body and blood of Christ at or after the consecration thereof by any person whatsoever, and that the invocation or adoration of the Virgin Mary or any other saint and the Sacrifice of the Mass, as they are now used in the Church of Rome, are superstitious and idolatrous; and I do solemnly, in the presence of God, profess, testify, and declare that I do make this declaration and every part thereof in the plain and ordinary sense of the words read unto me, as they are commonly understood by English Protestants, without any evasion, equivocation, or mental reservation whatsoever, and without any dispensation already granted me for this purpose by the Pope or any other authority or person whatsoever, and without any hope of such dispensation from any person whatsoever, and without thinking that I am or can be acquitted before God or man of any part thereof, although the Pope or any other person or persons or power whatsoever should dispense with or annul the same or declare that it was null and void from the beginning.

This form was embodied in a clause of the Bill of Rights of 1689, when England was in the throes of bitter anti-Papal agitation, following the deposition of King James II. and the accession of William and Mary.

After a brief debate in the House of Commons to-day the declaration measure passed its first reading by a vote of 383 to 42.

T. F. RYAN IN LONDON.

Will Be Away a Year If He Goes to the Congo—Talks on Politics.

Special Cable to The New York Times.

LONDON, June 28.—Thomas F. Ryan, who arrived in London to-day in good health, says he is going to stay here a little while, and then will go to the Continent in odrer to conserve his energies at various health resorts, in view of his proposed trip later in the year to the Congo Free State, where he has interests. If he makes the Congo trip he will not return to New York for a year.

Mr. Ryan says he has intended to go to the Congo for a long time, but ill-health has forbidden it.

Speaking of affairs in the United States, he said business was very prosperous, but he believed a political change was about due. The Democrats ought to win the Presidential election of 1912, the only danger being Mr. Roosevelt's popularity, which might wane before then, besides which, if the Democrats used common sense, they might overcome it.

HEARING IN FRANCKE'S SUIT.

Claim Against Peary in German Court—Judges Said to Have Decided.

Special Cable to The New York Times.

BERLIN, June 28.—The claim of Rudolph Francke, Dr. Frederick A. Cook's German fellow-excursionist in the "north pole" expedition, against Commander Peary for the recovery of $5,000 worth of arctic material of which Peary is alleged to have despoiled Francke at Etah, came to trial before the Judges of the Provincial Court in Berlin to-day.

Commander Peary's counsel, who acted on a commission from the American Embassy, made a formal protest against the jurisdiction of the German court on the ground that Commander Peary was neither a German subject nor the possessor of German property. The contention of non-jurisdiction, however, was eventually withdrawn, because, as counsel stated, Commander Peary wanted to avoid the suspicion that he had any reason to fear risking his case in a German court.

Francke took the stand in support of his claim and reiterated his story of how Peary declined to take him back to civilization unless Francke handed over Dr. Cook's collection of walrus tusks, narwhal horns, and polar bearskins.

Herr Schneider, Commander Peary's lawyer, who is counsel to the American Embassy, informs me to-night that the court has reached a decision, but that it will not be formally made known for a day or two.

GERMAN-FRENCH CABLE DEAL.

Reported in Berlin—Does Not Affect Rates, Managing Director Says.

Special Cable to The New York Times.

BERLIN, June 28.—The Berliner Tageblatt publishes a statement to the effect that the German and French cable lines have entered into an agreement whereby they are to work together intimately, to use each other's lines in case of interruption, and otherwise to enjoy the advantages of a "community of interests."

When asked by The New York Times correspondent to-day regarding the agreement and how transatlantic cable rates would be affected by it, Herr Moll, the Managing Director of the German-American Cable Company, said:

"We are not acquainted with any Franco-German cable agreement. Whatever it is, it does not affect our rates."

BOUTROS'S ASSASSIN HANGED.

Murderer of Egyptian Premier Pays Penalty of His Crime.

CAIRO, June 28.—Ibrahim Wardani, the assassin of Boutros Pasha Ghali, the Egyptian Premier and Minister of Foreign Affairs, was hanged to-day.

Wardani was an Egyptian student and a member of the Nationalist Party. Last February he shot the Premier as the latter was leaving the Ministry of Foreign Affairs. His victim died on the following day.

At his trial the murderer said his motive was to avenge various acts of the Government which the Nationalists attributed to Boutros Pasha personally.

In the course of his visit there Mr. Roosevelt addressed the students of the University of Cairo and roundly denounced the assassination, saying that those who condoned the act stood on a pinnacle of evil and infamy. Subsequently some of the students affiliated with the political opposition to British rule in Egypt gathered before Mr. Roosevelt's hotel and made a rather mild demonstration of dissent from the sentiments expressed by the ex-President.

Another Cholera Death in Germany.

BERLIN, June 28.—Another death from cholera has occurred among the immigrants at the Ruhleben station. The victim is a sister of the Russian immigrant who died at the station two days ago.

BIG PENNA. TERMINAL READY IN AUGUST

Official Announcement Made That Long Island Passenger Traffic Will Begin Then.

WONDERS OF THE BUILDING

Hundreds of Trains to be Operated Daily, with Every Convenience for Travelers.

Announcement was made yesterday when members of THE TIMES editorial staff were guests of the Pennsylvania Railroad at a private inspection of the new Pennsylvania station in Seventh Avenue, that this greatest train terminal in the world would be ready for handling Long Island traffic in August.

The fact is, the station is practically ready now, but only about 65 per cent. of the steel cars ordered for the tunnel service have been delivered because of strike troubles in the car factories. Little remains to be done on the big station itself; nothing, in fact, which could not be completed in a few days if a sufficient number of cars to handle the business could be obtained.

No definite announcement was made regarding the opening of the station for the Pennsylvania's traffic from the West for the same reason that has held up the passenger use of the tunnels under East River. Cars in large numbers cannot yet be obtained, and the company deems it unwise, it was explained, to give anything but an ample service from the beginning. Of course no delay greater than a few months at most is expected.

Excepting for the sense of massiveness, of great heights, long distances in every direction, and of correct proportions, one inspecting the station for the first time is likely to be most impressed by the completeness and convenience of arrangements for handling passengers. Everything one can think of seems to be there, and many things not usually thought of by any but a modern station builder are there as well.

Plans Well Made.

Of Mr. Mehaffey, who conducted the party through the station yesterday, was asked all manner of questions about entrance and exit of passengers, the arrangement for handling their baggage, ticket windows, announcement of trains, and every other question likely to suggest itself to persons on such a trip, and in every instance he was able to reply, "Oh, it's over there," or "it's right here," or "right there." Always it seemed to be at hand in spite of the great distances in the station. In fact, what the traveler really needs most is at hand despite the great size of the building.

While there are ample entrances in Thirty-first and Thirty-third Streets, the main gateway to the station lies between the classic columns of the Seventh Avenue front. One enters first a great, high-pitched court, and beyond is a lofty arcade, or concourse, 340 feet long and 210 feet wide, on each side of which are spaces for numerous small stores, or shops, where almost anything a traveler needs can be bought.

Beyond the arcade is the grand stairway leading to the main waiting room, which is 277 feet long, 103 feet wide, and 150 feet high. On the left as one enters the waiting room from the concourse is to be a bronze statue of A. J. Cassatt, late President of the Pennsylvania Railroad, who not only evolved the plan for tunneling the two rivers and Manhattan Island, and the erection of the station, but devised the financial plan which made the undertaking practicable without a severe drain on the road's finances. This statue, which will occupy a niche in the stairway wall, was designed by Adolph A. Weinman of this city, and is now being erected.

The main waiting room is to be supplied in the middle with seats for thousands, while at each of the four corners of the great room are ticket and telegraph windows. In this room also are the indicators of trains leaving, giving name and number of trains, and the time of departure.

Separate Waiting Rooms.

On either side of the hall leading west from the main waiting room are separate waiting rooms for men and women. Both are spacious, the men's room being for smokers. The station restaurant, which is as large as a hotel dining room, and equally well appointed, is at the south end of the main waiting room, and the men's lunchroom and bar at the opposite end.

There are storage rooms, linen rooms, refrigerating plants, and a kitchen of the size and equipment found only in the largest metropolitan hotels. It is the purpose of the railroad company to cater to the city trade for breakfasts, luncheons, and dinners, as well as to the traveling public, and this was considered when the size of the dining room was determined.

Elevators and stairways carry passengers from the waiting rooms to the train platforms, which are about eighteen feet below the floor of the main waiting room. But by an ingenious arrangement there is a three-quarter story room between the waiting room and the train platforms for the exit of incoming passengers. In this manner there is no confluence or collision of currents of passengers moving in opposite directions with a consequent delay and confusion to both.

The train platforms are concrete like the Subway platforms, and, again like the Subway stations, are on a level with the train platforms, so there will be no steps to climb to board the trains. There are eleven such passenger platforms, with an aggregate length adjacent to passenger trains of 21,500 feet, or a little more than four miles. There are also twenty-one tracks under the station, and the area of the station at the track level is 7.74 acres. The complete storage capacity of the station yard tracks is computed to be 386 cars.

Handling of Trains.

By arrangement, though not by physical construction, the station will be divided into two, one for Long Island traffic, the other for the Pennsylvania Railroad traffic proper. The Long Island trains will enter and leave near the north side of the building, using the first several platforms nearest Thirty-third Street almost exclusively. The proposed initial daily service on the Long Island tracks will be 600 trains.

The four central tracks will be reserved exclusively for the Pennsylvania express trains and those on the Thirty-first Street side for the Pennsylvania local trains.

No freight trains of any kind will enter the station. Freight for New York and Long Island points will be ferried on floats in carloads or on ferryboats in dray loads, according to quantity and destination, as at present. The station is to be free from smoke and from the deafening noise of the exhaust of the locomotive, for no steam motors will enter the station from either end.

Each track is equipped with the third rail, and electric locomotives will pick up the incoming trains from the east at the Long Island portal, Woodside Avenue, Long Island City, and from the west at Harrison, N. J., and their movement will produce a minimum of noise.

Elaborate arrangements have been made for prompt handling of baggage, both from the trains and by express wagons from the station. These include twenty-five baggage and express lifts, with baggage, express, trucking, and pipe subways 5,200 feet in length. The passenger bringing his baggage will find facilities for checking it with little loss of time.

The only reason a stranger need be confused in the building lies in its great size, making it difficult for him to take its plan in if the building is crowded and his view is obstructed. On the other hand, the size of the building is such that it will take a very large number of people to seem like a crowd or interfere with easy movement from one division to another. In addition there will be many attendants.

MOVE TO END TONG WARS.

Chinatown Residents Appeal to Mayor Gaynor for More Police.

Mayor Gaynor was appealed to yesterday as a last resort in the effort by reputable residents of Chinatown to wipe out the frequently recurring tong wars Father Diamond of the Catholic Church of the Transfiguration, in Mott Street, called at the City Hall in the afternoon and was closeted with the Mayor for half an hour. He explained that the conditions in Chinatown had become unbearable and that something ought to be done about it.

"The shootings there have become so frequent that the lives of innocent and reputable residents are endangered," said Father Diamond. "I have come to you, Mr. Mayor, because I know that you are a man who can do things. In the last few months the tong wars have resulted in many of my parishioners being kept away from worship on the Sabbath. Conditions there now are worse than ever."

"What would you suggest?" asked the Mayor.

"Better police protection, especially on Sundays," said Father Diamond, who pointed out that most of the tong war shootings have occurred on Sunday. "In normal times in Chinatown there is only one policeman to three blocks. After a shooting the police swarm into Chinatown, and remain there for a few days, then are withdrawn, and after a little while another shooting occurs."

Father Diamond said that if a policeman would be stationed on every corner in Chinatown on Sundays and holidays there was small likelihood of the tong men taking the chance of shooting at each other.

Mayor Gaynor told the priest that he would speak to Police Commissioner Baker about the matter. Father Diamond said upon leaving the City Hall that he thought the end of the tong wars may be in sight.

"I did not need my arguments to convince the Mayor that better police protection is needed," he said. "The Mayor has been through Chinatown himself and knows the conditions there."

TALE OF A BIG HEINZE FEE.

Rumor Puts Stanchfield's Remuneration at $800,000—Emphatic Denial.

A report was in circulation in the financial district yesterday that John B. Stanchfield, the lawyer, had received a check for $800,000 from Fritz Augustus Heinze as a fee for Mr. Stanchfield's defense of the copper man in the recently ended trial in which Mr. Heinze was charged with overcertification and misapplication of funds of the Mercantile National Bank while President of that institution.

While no denial of this report was forthcoming from Mr. Stanchfield's office, he having left for the day when reporters arrived, an emphatic denial came from the law firm of Levy, Rosenthal & Heermance, the attorneys of record in the Heinze trial, and Mr. Heinze's personal attorneys.

A representative of the firm said that Mr. Stanchfield had appeared in the case because of his friendship for Mr. Levy, and that Mr. Stanchfield's remuneration was only nominal.

Mr. Heinze is now abroad, having sailed from here about three weeks ago. He went first to Holland to confer with some of the large stockholders in the United Copper Company who live there. It is said that Holland investors hold about $10,000,000 of the $45,000,000 common stock in the United Copper Company.

LANGDON CAN'T BE FOUND.

Attachment Against Manufacturer Reported Missing Since April.

Deputy Sheriff Harris has received an attachment for $2,833 against Charles H. Langdon, former President of the Langdon Manufacturing Company, cotton bags, 219 Centre Street, in favor of the Merchants Exchange National Bank for balance due on two notes of the company, dated March 14 and March 21, which he indorsed.

The attachment was granted on the allegation that he has either departed from the State or keeps concealed to avoid a summons. Representatives of the bank were informed at the office of the Langdon Manufacturing Company that he had not been there since April, and at his home in Fishkill, N. Y., his wife informed them that he left home about the middle of April and has not returned.

Since his disappearance several meetings of creditors of the company have been held. The business was started in 1904 and the company has a capital stock of $100,000.

CAMPAIGNING FOR FOLK.

Missouri Men Having a Dinner at Democratic Club on Their Way East.

There will be a dinner to-night at the National Democratic Club in honor of a visiting delegation from Missouri which is to tour New England in the interest of the Democratic Presidential candidacy of ex-Gov. Folk of Missouri. These delegates go to Boston to meet fifty of their home friends and neighbors.

Among those to speak at the dinner to-night are Senator Thomas F. Grady, ex-United States Senator Watson C. Squires, and ex-Senator Thomas Creamer. The Missouri Democrats expressly disapprove a propaganda in the metropolis out of respect to Mayor Gaynor, who is regarded a Presidential possibility. It was in the town of Springfield, Mo., that the Gaynor Presidential campaign is said to have been started.

WOMAN INVENTS A GARBAGE CART

One Made in Sing Sing from Mrs. Spiegelberg's Plans Tested by Street Department Here.

SHUTS IN DUST AND ODORS

Some Defects Found in It, but They Can Be Easily Remedied—Costs Only $25 Extra.

Mrs. William Spiegelberg of 67 Riverside Drive has invented a covered garbage cart for the Street Cleaning Department, which has been fitted up at her own expense. The new cart had a trial yesterday, Assistant General Superintendent Wallace and District Superintendent Stackpole watching it under actual working conditions. Their verdict was that while, as at present built, the cart will not do, it is capable of a few simple alterations which may make it serviceable.

The cart used is one of the ordinary iron garbage carts of the department, to which has been fitted at Sing Sing Prison, according to Mrs. Spiegelberg's specifications, a curved iron cover. In this at either side and at the rear are cut three elliptical openings to which lids are fitted. These are about two and a half feet along their greater and eighteen inches along their shorter axis. They can be fastened down.

In loading the cart only the lid on the side of the cart near to the sidewalk is used, and the driver is expected to keep the lid shut as he passes from house to house. In this way Mrs. Spiegelberg says that she will prevent the noxious dust and odors which have been such an unpleasant incident in the removal of garbage from the streets. The rear lid is designed to act as the aperture through which the garbage is shot in the dumps. Its theory is that when the cart is tipped up in the usual way the weight of the load will throw the lid open and keep it open till everything has been shot out.

It was here that one of the weak points of the device developed yesterday. Commissioner Edwards, who attended the beginning of the trial yesterday along West Seventy-eighth Street, ordered that the garbage man should throw into the cart a large tin which had been placed outside one of the houses. The rest of the load was made up of rubbish. When the cart arrived at the Seventy-ninth Street dump it was found that the rear lid was not nearly large enough and the material stuck in the cart until it was pried out with a shovel.

Another trial was made, the driver being instructed to go around and collect a load of garbage. This was taken to the Forty-seventh Street dump and here it was found that the same trouble arose. The curved covering of the cart caused the garbage to bind. Bumping the cart against the stringpiece did no good, and it needed a pitchfork from the men trimming the scows below to clear away the obstruction.

On the other hand, when the cart was tried a few days ago with a load of dry ashes the material ran easily out and demonstrated another advantage of the device. The dust, which generally arises from the deposit of the waste and which Mrs. Spiegelberg, who lives on Riverside Drive near the Seventy-ninth Street dump, knows from experience, often blows all over Riverside Park, was prevented from spreading with an almost total absence of unplasant odors.

Mrs. Spiegelberg suggested and the department officials agreed that this difficulty in the dumping might be overcome by increasing the tail aperture. She proposes now to have the entire back half of the covering move on a hinge under the control of a device worked by the driver from the seat in front. This will raise and keep open the lid and will allow the refuse to fall as easily by force of gravity as it does in the ordinary uncovered cart.

Another defect in the experiment cart was the weight of the lid, which made it impossible for the driver to haul unaided the cart back after it had been tipped. It was reckoned that the cover at present weighs more than 300 pounds. Mrs. Spiegelberg hopes to get over this by having the lids made of tin or wood, which should reduce the weight by 25 per cent. at least.

Some of the points which Mrs. Spiegelberg pointed out yesterday in favor of her device, in addition to the reduction of dust and odors, were the provision of a decently clean seat for the drivers and the abolition of the sideboards of the carts. At present the drivers are forced to sit on the garbage they collect and to stand in the carts as they return empty from the dumps. Such a system is unhygienic and filthy, but Mrs. Spiegelbarg allows for a wooden seat outside the cart, where the men can sit.

The sideboards, she pointed out yesterday, just add enough to the height of the cart to make it difficult and dangerous to the men to heave the garbage cans up to empty them. Quite as much material can be carried in her carts without the sideboards as in the present ones, by reason of the curve which she has given to the covers.

Speaking of the test yesterday, Mrs. Spiegelberg said:

"I have demonstrated that the carts are dust proof, easily laden, and of good appearance. I admit the need of a larger lid at the tail, but this can be remedied. It worked quite satisfactorily in the gathering of refuse, and it only failed in the dumping from removable causes."

Among those who watched the test were Mrs. Julius Henry Cohen, Miss Day, and Miss Morgenstein of the Women's Municipal League. The cost of the covering is reckoned at from $25 to $30. The department now has 2,000 carts at a cost of $120 each.

BANDIT EXPECTS TO DIE.

Man Who Took Part in Killing of Two Bids Mother Farewell.

LYNN, Mass., June 28.—Believing he will be executed for his part in the killing of Thomas A. Langregan and Policeman James H. Carroll on Saturday, Wasili Iwankowski to-day wrote a letter to his mother in Russia in which he said:

> I have been arrested and in quick time will be sentenced to death, but for what cause I will not write you. So I bid farewell to you. Please forgive me for not obeying you, but now it is too late.

The condition of Andy Abson, one of the bandit trio who is now in the Lynn Hospital suffering from half a dozen bullet wounds, is unchanged, and he may recover.

Many people have an erroneous impression of a "liquor cure." They fear a "hospital," with burly attendants, isolation, possible rough handling, and unpleasant notoriety. They find here, instead, comfortable surroundings, trained nursing, expert medical attention, and the same privacy they would have in their own homes. They can, if they wish, keep in constant personal touch with friends or business. A call at our Institute will verify these statements and involve for the inquirer no obligation and no publicity.

THE GOVERNOR'S TASK.

On Monday we printed the almost incredible statistics of the Legislature's activities. It considered 4,360 bills, and there were 1,425 changes, including reprintings, in the 957 bills which passed both houses. This accumulation of projects of law came to the Governor's single desk for his discriminating attention. He has not been satisfied to sign or not sign in the exercise of his best discretion, although that alone would have been a hard task. He has accompanied his action with notes of explanation as to why he signed 705 bills, and withheld approval from 252.

Whatever may be said about his action on any one bill, his action on the mass indicates conscientiousness and industry in a task which ought not to have been put on him. Take for example a random selection. It is one of a series of laws designed to be enacted by as many States as possible in the interest of uniformity. Its body contains concealed in its vitals references to two sections not contained in the bill, and one clause contains a "not" which exactly reverses the intention of the law. It is a reproach to every one concerned that the bill should be sent to the Governor in such a condition as to attest the slovenly performance of legislation. Yet he mildly remarks "it is better to wait a few months, and to have the statute in proper form, than to place it upon the books as it is proposed by this bill." It is so indisputably true in this case that the impulse is strong to ask what proportion of the new laws is exempt from the imputation of careless preparation, and how great the damage to the public interests would be if more of them had been postponed indefinitely.

SUFFRAGISTS SNUBBED.

Mr. ASQUITH refuses to give a chance at this session to the Compromise Woman Suffrage bill recently introduced by the Radical Mr. SHACKLETON. This practically "puts to sleep" the most promising measure of its kind that has ever been brought before the British Parliament, for there is no hope for action in the next session, which will be crowded with contentious business, and little hope in the next Parliament, even if a very strong Liberal majority be returned. The Suffragettes are furious and threaten another campaign of extreme agitation. The Woman's Suffrage League, whose motto is "No vote, no taxes," has organized a passive resistance movement, and its President, Mrs. DESPARD, will go to prison to-morrow for refusing to pay her rates. But the decision of the Government is doubtless final, and nothing but continued agitation and disturbance is likely to ensue.

The attitude of the Ministry is the more significant because the proposed bill was unquestionably most favorable to the working classes of women. In substance, as our readers are aware, it gave votes for Parliament to those women who already have the right to vote in municipal elections. Of these it is conservatively estimated that some 82 per cent. are either self-supporting or are housewives with a very modest income to depend upon. In London, for instance, according to BOOTH's authoritative work, "Life and Labor in London," the women "occupiers" eligible to municipal suffrage numbered nearly 190,000, of whom nearly half were housewives, four-fifths of whom kept no servant, while a little more than 95,000 did other than domestic work. Among these latter there were 2,198 teachers, only 144 "literary workers," and 140 civil service employés.

Not only is the proposed measure, which the Ministers have practically strangled, distinctly a working-class measure, but it is logically democratic and in strict accordance with the professed principles of the ruling party. It is in the direct line of all the suffrage extension measures for the past eighty years. The House of Commons, in every Parliament for nearly twenty years, has voted for the principle, though it has never been carried out. A strong majority of the present House have committed themselves individually to it. What, then, is the motive of Mr. ASQUITH in smothering the measure? It is not easy to say definitely, but probably the working classes are not very much in earnest in this matter. If they were, they would be listened to. If they really wanted, for example, the 100,000 or more votes for their wives, sisters, and relatives which the bill would give in London and the far greater number in the industrial centres of the North, they could make a demand that would not be easily resisted. Perhaps they do not feel quite sure what their women, or women of their class, would do with votes if they had them. There is pronounced opposition among English workingmen against extending the employments open to women and a feeling that the competition of women lowers wages and makes harder the lot of workers of either sex. There are indications, too, that self-supporting women, who would get the vote under this bill, are prone to conservatism and would not be at all sure to sustain the policies of the Labor Party. Moreover, if they had votes for Parliament, it would be harder to keep them from the trades unions, where at present they are not wanted. Whatever the reason, the fact is plain that the working classes cannot have pressed Mr. ASQUITH very strongly for the Woman Suffrage bill.

Meanwhile a new movement in opposition to woman suffrage has been started to which Mr. ASQUITH and his more moderate associates are likely to give attention. Its aim is to secure a distinct referendum to the present electorate of any measure giving Parliamentary suffrage to women. For a long while it has been a sort of fashion to meet—or to evade—the proposition of votes for women by the concession that women can have votes when the great body really wish them. The present movement is based on the idea that no such fundamental change in the British Constitution should be made without the distinct approval of the voters now entitled to exercise the sovereignty of the nation. This right to pass definitely on the proposed change is supported by the plea that the present electors, being men, can be called upon, and, indeed, compelled to defend the nation from invasion or insurrection by force and at the risk of their lives, and that it would be a vital wrong to require them to share the suffrage with a class, equal in numbers, who would thus possess equal power to shape the policy of the nation, but could not be made to sustain it by any such sacrifice. Whatever may be the ultimate strength of this plea with the electors, there is no doubt that it will serve as a plausible, and even as a valid, justification for refusing any grant of suffrage by Parliament unconditioned by a specific reference to the people.

SIR CASPAR PURDON CLARKE'S RETIREMENT.

The retirement of Sir PURDON CLARKE from the post of Director of the Metropolitan Museum of Art has not been unexpected. For a year or more bad health has kept him in Europe and his duties as Director have been performed by Dr. EDWARD ROBINSON, his chief assistant, as acting Director. The Museum Trustees have doubtless been hoping against hope that Sir PURDON would sufficiently recover his health to endure the rigors of the New York climate in Winter. It is gratifying to know that Sir PURDON's services will not be altogether withdrawn from the Museum. As honorary European correspondent, salaried, he will doubtless be able to advise the Trustees and their subordinates. His taste and his knowledge of the arts and crafts are exceptional.

But there is no hint of the early appointment of a permanent occupant of the post from which he has been compelled to withdraw, though there is a suggestion that Dr. ROBINSON's services as chief Director will be only temporary in the semi-official statement that he will perform the duties of that office "for the present, at least." He is in the prime of life, a Bostonian by birth, a graduate of Harvard, who has lived and studied much abroad, and filled many important positions. His specialty is classical archaeology. The admirable collection of casts of antique sculpture in the Museum was selected and purchased by him. He may prefer to stick to his specialty.

In the great European institutions corresponding to this art museum men are always in training for advancement to the higher posts. There is rarely any doubt about who will succeed a retiring Curator or Director. It would be well for the profitable conduct of our own museums of art and great libraries if the same system of thorough training and advancement could prevail here.

HAPPINESS THROUGH TAXATION.

The theory of happiness through taxation is suffering a test in this State similar to that which it previously experienced in the Nation. Gov. HUGHES expressed a general disinclination to the stoppage of the many beneficial activities of the State. He declared that fresh taxes would be preferred. Thus far three are pending, to wit: An inheritance tax, an income tax, and a revival of the direct tax. When they are all imposed and paid there will be opportunity to learn whether the taxpayers want more or less benevolence at their cost. Of course there cannot be too much benevolence at the cost of somebody else, and the people who never see a tax bill are inclined to believe that the indirect taxes fall mostly upon somebody else. When bills such as the corporations have been paying come to individuals the depth of the sentiment toward the State's beneficent activities will be tested as it has not been recently.

The embarrassment of the State is not due to ordinary administration expenses, but to objects admirable in themselves, and which all humane or public spirited persons rejoice to see dealt with liberally. Generosity toward the dependents of the State is such an amiable virtue that caution in its practice seems the reverse. It would be impossible to object to any degree of benevolence by "the State" if, in fact, the State had any existence apart from ourselves. If the State had any wealth or income of its own nobody would object to old-age pensions, nor even to an endowment for the improvident. The proposal of these taxes brings home to each of us that there is no such easy solution of the problems of poverty. We are the State, and we must foot the bills for the many admirable objects which have exhausted nearly fifteen millions of surplus in the State Treasury, and have swollen the State budget beyond an extravagant income. The levying of these unpopular taxes is likely to cause some searching of hearts regarding the true popularity of the beneficent things done hitherto without realization of their cost.

A WISE DECISION.

There is a detail of the plans of the Bondholders' Committee for reorganizing the Metropolitan Street Railway system, which the public of the whole country ought to know. The 8,000 widows, cripples, and orphans who hold claims for personal injuries amounting to $1,500,000 against the New York City Railroad are to be satisfied. In his order adjourning the reorganization sale until Sept. 27, when the plans shall have been maturely considered, Judge LACOMBE said:

> The application particularly commends itself to the court because of the statement in regard to the provision for the Metropolitan Street Railway personal injury claims. From the very inception of the receivership the situation of this group of creditors has been a matter of much concern. It is well settled under the authorities that they are not preferred creditors; moreover, they are not creditors of the Metropolitan Street Railway, which owns the property, but only creditors of the impecunious lessee which operated the road.

The claimants in suits for personal injuries not only against the New York City Railroad, but also against the Metropolitan Street Railway, are, by the voluntary decision of the committee, to be regarded as creditors holding a first mortgage on the property of the reorganized system. This is a notable step in advance of the original suggestion that the settlement of these pitiable cases be contingent upon this city's remitting a part of the company's franchise taxes.

Corporations may be soulless. But when they derive their franchises from the people they know that it will not profit them to establish an inhuman policy. Legislatures are in session every year. It is already a law of this State that workmen's wages shall constitute a first lien upon property. Had the Bondholders' Committee of the Metropolitan ignored or slighted these unfortunate claimants, a bill might be introduced in the next Legislature making such claims a prior lien against property. A law like that might seriously disturb the values of mortgages throughout the State.

CAMPAIGN THROAT.

Campaign throat the eminent hay-pitcher and woodchopper of Oyster Bay denominates the trifling ailment which afflicted him toward the close of his travels abroad. The name is admirably descriptive. Actors' throat, singers' throat, preachers' sore throat, campaign throat, the malady is the same whatever it is called. It is not dangerous and is never fatal. It requires next to no medicament. Gargling is sometimes efficacious, but perfect silence is better as a curative. The actor thus afflicted gives his understudy a chance for a few nights, the opera singer is officially "indisposed," the preacher gets a substitute.

The case of the campaign orator is more serious. He can have no satisfactory substitute. Temporary inability to utter pregnant truths and invincible arguments in tones now softly persuasive, now trumpetlike, may bring him quickly to calamity. But Col. ROOSEVELT is not a campaign orator now. There is no campaign on in which he is interested. Temporary speechlessness (comparatively speaking) ought to be beneficial in his case, and stimulative to public interest. When he speaks the Nation hangs on his words. When he is silent it waits eagerly, impatiently, still in listening attitude. What is he going to say next? is the absorbing question of the hour. Col. ROOSEVELT is ever lucky. Ailments when they fall upon him are transformed into blessings.

A VAST ENTERPRISE.

Few persons who confess to some small measure of interest in the forthcoming public trial of the pugilistic skill, strength, and endurance of two men at Reno, Nev., have a clear idea of the magnitude of that event as a financial and commercial enterprise. The money stake in the prizefight is $101,000. Of this sum the victor will get 75 per cent. and the vanquished 25, while two-thirds of the receipts of the sale of the moving pictures privilege will be divided equally between them. So that the man who is whipped will get at least $75,250 to console him for his wounds and his loss of prestige. For the picture privilege has been sold outright to a syndicate for $150,000.

The potentialities of wealth which this forehanded syndicate faces show the enterprising spirit that pervades the modern world and the faith of financial adventurers in the continued public interest in a generally condemned form of "sport." It has been offered $150,000 for the Canadian rights, $100,000 for the English rights, and $50,000 for the Australian. The estimated value of the American rights is $250,000, while $100,000 is expected as payment for the privilege to exhibit the moving pictures in various countries of Europe and South Africa. The total, largely estimated, of course, is $650,000.

The proceeds from the sale of tickets will be enormous. Large sums of money will be lost and won in betting. Reno merchants, caterers, and speculators in various fields will make big profits. Transportation companies will carry thousands to and from the scene of the battle. As a business venture this prizefight will surpass all others. These facts seem worth a little thought.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Journalism on a Big Scale.

Certainly with the result, and probably with the purpose—among many others—of proving that a great newspaper can be made in a small city, The Nashville American on Sunday last celebrated its ninety-eighth anniversary by issuing an edition of which each copy contained 180 pages! If this is not the record for size the approach to it must be very close, and as each one of these pages would make at least four of a big book, and carries more than enough of printed matter to fill them all, the magnitude of The American's achievement can be computed, and to some degree realized, even by those who know nothing about the mechanical difficulties that had to be overcome in producing and distributing a paper of such enormous size, or of the amount of labor, all added to that of getting out daily the regular edition, involved in preparing the articles and pictures required to fill the multitudinous pages.

A better special number of this particular kind we do not remember to have seen, for it is well written and well printed, and while, properly enough, The American has much to say about itself, it also presents a wealth of information about the City of Nashville and the State of Tennessee. There would be difficulty in thinking of anything in relation to either—anything commendatory, that is, and of course nothing else could be expected—that is not told by one or another eulogist. There is something of history, much about advantages and resources, and literally hundreds of Tennessee's eminent sons and daughters, past and present, are portrayed with abundant and unwearying enthusiasm.

Whether it was really worth while to do all this in just this way is a question that receives varying answers from journalistic experts. The American itself feels sure that the big number will have a permanent value—that it will be long preserved and often consulted—and The American may be right. There are difficulties, however, in the way of preserving wood-pulp paper, and some of us have more than a suspicion that the newspaper laid away for future reading is but rarely, if ever, disturbed again. The same material put in book form would have a better chance to escape destruction. Newspapers are things of to-day, and one bearing yesterday's date is older than an inscribed brick from Nineveh.

Grave News Comes from Cuba.

It is to be noted with satisfaction that when one Cuban statesman expresses political disagreement with another by shooting at him with a revolver at the door of the chamber where the island's lawmakers are in solemn session, the irregularity and impropriety of the act receive instant recognition and nobody in Havana doubts that the consequences will be very serious. A dispatch from that city gravely says: "It is believed that a duel between SAN MIGUEL and LORES is inevitable."

Note the strength of the words "believed" and "inevitable." MANUEL LORES, the Representative from the Department of Oriente, is the man who tried to kill ANTONIO SAN MIGUEL, his colleague from Pinar del Rio. The two had disagreed as to the terms on which the Government should exchange an arsenal site for that of a railway station, and LORES, naturally enough, had been annoyed because SAN MIGUEL charged him with having in the transaction an interest too direct. Up here, at Albany, say, or Washington, the result of such an accusation would be the appointment of a committee to investigate the matter, and the inquiry would be made with a rigor delicately proportionated to the vehemence of the public demand for a full disclosure of the facts. In Cuba, where blood runs hotter and even legislators see red when charged with theft, the affair takes another turn.

As the first attempt to kill has failed, another opportunity for slaughter is to be given. It is not quite obvious why Señor SAN MIGUEL, having escaped assassination, should now be obliged to risk murder with no compensation except the privilege of himself taking a shot at his foe, but the logic of the situation, so obscure to a cold Northern observer, is clear enough in a land that thinks itself Latin, and therefore to all practical intents and purposes is so. Apparently the Cuban Congress, as a body, does not feel called upon to take any action. It is enough that a duel is believed to be inevitable.

Well, this conviction is convenient in that it leaves more time for dickering with American syndicates for gambling franchises and a revival, too long delayed, of that noble sport, cockfighting. That there is a difference between Cuban customs and our own is not in itself proof that ours are better than theirs, and the present positions of Messrs. CONGER and ALLDS, for instance, are no more logical than are and will be those of Señors SAN MIGUEL and LORES. Everywhere the point of honor is full of mystery—though, when one comes to think it over, a point, by definition, cannot contain anything.

Why Must Reform Be Deferred?

Realizing, as President TAFT evidently does, the unwisdom of spending public money on unrelated bits of waterway improvement, it is rather hard to understand why he contented himself with making public announcement of a vow never to sign another bill of the kind to which the inelegant term "pork barrel" has long been applied.

The next Congress has as much right as this one to solidify the bond between its members and their constituents in the old-fashioned way, and every argument in justification of vetoing the next River and Harbor bill applied to the bill just signed. If a Congressman cannot work with an eye single to the interests of his district—and his own re-election—who will, and whereby shall the district profit and the Congressman go back to Washington after his two years are up?

Of course, theoretically, appropriations for the improvement of waterways ought not to be used for the very different purpose of adding to the supply of ready cash in this or that needy—or hungry—group of patriots, but that has been "the usual thing," and it behooves a critic of the custom to be consistent. Votes will be needed as much in the future as in the past, and the excuses for condoning an ancient abuse were not particularly or peculiarly good this Summer. They were just what they always have been and just what they always will be.

Everything considered, it is doubtful if the Congressmen lose much sleep because of the President's threat to turn over a new leaf. Had he utilized his first opportunity to turn it they would have been really frightened.

THE CHARM OF WALKING.

The Undesirable Person Never Joins an Outdoor Club.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

"D. A.'s" letter of June 21 in reference to walking clubs strikes me as being particularly timely. An educational campaign started and fostered by THE NEW YORK TIMES might go a long way toward awakening in the urban mind a desire for something more restful and responsive than stone and brick walls and concrete sidewalks, more aesthetic and uplifting than the cubby holes of apartment houses and crowded offices, and more pleasant to their nostrils than the thick, noisome atmosphere of the dark tunnels of the subways.

The writer speaks as a stranger, as one who has come to New York to live, and who finds that her Western mode of life will not be dominated by conditions that prevail here. "The call of the woods" is strong, and in a brief stay of little more than a year she has found that there are many places of charm and beauty within easy reach of New York City to satisfy that call—places that the most limited in pocket can aspire to reach.

If the walker does not know anything about the mystery and enchantment of the trails of the West he can get great enjoyment and recreation out of the fine roads, delightfully wooded and shaded, that form a perfect network of Westchester County and skirt the Palisades for many miles.

For years the writer was a member of the Sierra Club of California and repeated experiences give her the right to confirm "D. A.'s" assertion, "the truly undesirable person never comes." As many as 125 men and women have camped together in the mountains of the Sierras for a month at a time—there was good fellowship, good comradeship, but always respect for privacy and proprieties. A stone wall might have been built around the T tent or sleeping bag of each walker, so foreign would it have been to the mind of any one to cross that imaginary line without permission.

The Sunday walks, sometimes Saturday and Sunday walks, were another feature of the Sierra Club. These walks were planned to places easily accessible from San Francisco. A leader, elected for the year, mapped out the route and conducted the walks, and his band of followers, men and women, was never disturbed by an "undesirable."

To the man shut up in an office all week a tramp in the woods on Saturday, (in the West we should say Sunday,) inspired by a few enthusiasts who know how to enjoy that sort of diversion, would do him immeasurable good; it would be relaxation for his mind and rational exercise for his body; it would better fit him for his week's work. If the women would learn to walk along they might possibly prove themselves part of that inspiration and bestow on themselves at the same time an undisguised blessing, but they will have to learn that high heels, hobbled skirts, and huge hats cannot be part of their equipment. F. T.

New York, June 27, 1910.

BLACK HORSE CAVALRY.

Would It Participate In Our Celebration of the Fourth?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mayor Gaynor's idea of an old-fashioned celebration for the coming Fourth of July seems to be well received throughout the city. In the proposed military and civic parade there will no doubt be found many independent organizations, and in order that the parade be made as interesting as possible, I would suggest that the committee in charge extend an invitation to the famous "Black Horse Cavalry" of Albany, asking them to participate.

This unique body of men, besides attracting unusual attention, would give to the people of the metropolis an opportunity of seeing an organization which has been in the past so closely identified with the political legislation of their State. No organization in line would meet with the reception that would be accorded to these old "warriors." Even his Honor the Mayor would like to look upon the weather beaten faces of these battle-scarred heroes. By all means let the "Old Guard" be on hand.

New York, June 27, 1910. J. K. D.

A Prohibitionist on Environment.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In THE TIMES of to-day, speaking of alcohol and heredity under Topics of the Times, you say: "* * * It is early environment rather than heredity that counts. * * * The Prohibitionists will not welcome these conclusions. * * *"

As one who has been associated with the Prohibitionists for over twenty years, and for five years the Chairman of the Prohibition National Committee, permit me to suggest that you are mistaken. The chief argument we make is that the enactment and strict enforcement of prohibition would profoundly change the environment in which, as it is now, thousands are foredoomed to drunkenness.

I believe it can be truthfully said that among Prohibitionists ten arguments are made on the environment side to every one on that of heredity. We cordially welcome all such information. OLIVER W. STEWART.

The Price of Lamb.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A Brooklyn dealer in meat to-day told me that he had just met a man from Utah whom he surprised with the information that he paid $18 a hundred for his lamb.

"The producer must receive a large proportion of this," said the Brooklyn merchant.

"Not so," replied the Utah man; "I am a sheep raiser myself, and the highest price I can get for lamb is $4 a hundred."

Who are these useful men who get the $14? How would we fare should they turn their talents to the handling of the vegetable supply? WILLIAM S. HARPER.

Brooklyn, June 27, 1910.

Men Slaves of Fashion.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There is no reason in the world why men should wear their coats during hot weather, nor do I believe that women are responsible for the foolish custom. I am a woman myself, and it has always made me indignant. How can men consistently rail at women for being slaves of fashion when they themselves are slaves to the extent of sweltering in a sizzling hot day in a stiff, high collar, and a woolen coat? If some woman in a peek-a-boo waist, with a "Dutch" collar, objects—let her. She is only making herself absurd. C. P. H.

Lowest Practicable Bank Balance.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As a small depositor in a business bank I am desirous of obtaining some enlightenment as to the justice of the average balances required of me by my bank and of my friends and acquaintances. What is the lowest average balance at which a bank can handle an account without loss? DEPOSITOR.

Vermont's Model Savings Law.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Whenever any reference is made to savings banks I notice that THE TIMES as well as other papers mention New York, Massachusetts, and Connecticut as having the safest laws covering savings banks. Is there any reason why Vermont should not be included in the list of States that have laws fully protecting savings deposits? HENRY STEPHENS.

YACHT OWNERS PROTEST.

Their Answer Filed to Suit for Tax on Foreign-Built Craft.

James Gordon Bennett, owner of the yacht Lysistrata; Mrs. Harriet Goelet, owner of the yacht Nahama, and H. Clay Pierce, owner of the yacht Yacona, filed amended answers yesterday in the Government's suits to collect the annual tonnage tax of $7 per ton on foreign-built pleasure boats owned or chartered for six months by Americans provided for by the act approved on August, 1909.

Mrs. Goelet says she is a permanent resident of Paris, France, and that her yacht has a permanent station within the jurisdiction of the Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland; Mr. Bennett says that the Lysitratia, which has not been within the jurisdiction of the United States since 1904 has a permanent station within the jurisdiction of the Republic of France.

The answers also say that the law should be prospective and operate only on the future use of foreign-built yachts, and that the annual tax will not accrue and cannot be levied and collected until Sept. 1, 1910. It is further asserted that the Tonnage act is unconstitutional because it is not a general law.

QUEER WALL STREET.

Speculations on the Reasoning Powers of the Speculative Community.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have just read with keen enjoyment THE TIMES's editorial article on "That Queer Wall Street," having long looked in vain for some such exposition by an influential newspaper of that particularly dense stupidity which prevails among the rank and file of stock market speculators.

After reading the article that caused all the commotion, which I relished none the less because it was directed against the party with which I am affiliated, I stepped into the local branch office of a New York brokerage house, where there was assembled the usual bunch of sitters. Almost the first remark that greeted me was: "Say, did you see that editorial in THE TIMES?" "Yes, what of it?" "Why, it predicts a panic." Hastily I replied, "Why, don't you understand; that's pure sarcasm," and then recollected that probably not more than two or three would know what I meant. So I proceeded laboriously to make a verbal diagram of the intentions of the writer of the article, and gradually I made some slight impression. With one individual I labored several minutes, but the task was like trying to drive a wire nail into lignum vitae. What amused me particularly was to see the "boss of the shop" wake up and corroborate my explanation, as if that had been all clear to him at once when he read the article. "But," he remarked, "it's dangerous even to mention the word 'panic.'"

Later a message came from the New York office conveying the information that the article was not to be taken seriously, and that that was "official." There is less reasoning power in the speculative community, I think, than in any other class of American citizens. Possibly, if the folly and unreason that prevail in stock market circles were more frequently exposed and lambasted a gradual effect might be produced. And the task would be worth while, not for the sake of the traders, but because thus one of the factors that produce causeless movements of prices would be mitigated. L.

ADVERTISING.

Raises the Standard of Living and Consequently Its Cost.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The amount of misinformation that a little thoughtlessness will enable one to disseminate on a given subject is amazing. A day or two ago a correspondent took issue in THE TIMES with the report of the Senate committee, stating that advertising was one of the things that helped to increase the cost of living. As a matter of fact, if advertising didn't increase the cost of living the whole fabric of that business would fall to pieces in a year.

The purpose of advertising is to sell things. If it is to sell the absolutely necessary things that the public must have, then in the last analysis advertising is waste, the public would go somewhere for the goods, anyway, and buy them without the cost of advertising added. But if it is to sell things that would not otherwise be bought, that is, to create new business, as much advertising does, then it would appear that every cent thus spent must be added to the cost of living.

The Government is probably right, and its critic entirely wrong, but under our present system, which isn't a half bad one, taking it "by and large," there are few things more necessary to the progress of the world than that same advertising. It isn't a question whether advertising, the selling of things that the public does not need, adds to the cost of living, the real query is, Is it worth it? And the answer comes back clear and strong: "Sure Mike!" F. L. ORTON.

The Cooling of Buildings.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your correspondents discussing the cooling of houses only have to visit any brewery in the city to examine the fermenting rooms. About twenty-five years ago the process of necessary reduction of temperature went into operation by installing a plant for conversion of liquid ammonia into gas. This gas circulates through pipes and absorbs the heat and returns condensed to be volatilized repeatedly. Before this process was adopted the brewers bought vast quantities of ice to attain the same object. I am surprised that architects have not put this in practice in public as well as in private buildings. Possibly it is too expensive. T. L. M.

A Forgotten Country.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is curious to note that in reviewing the work of Congress the comments are based on the query, "What has it done for the party?"

But the good accomplished for the country—the benefit to the people from Congressional deliberations—that is entirely lost sight of. The possible advancement in educational and material interests is wholly ignored.

Has it helped the party? Has it injured the party? How much good to the party? Are party promises made good? Not once how much good to the country.

The country entirely forgotten. E. T. W.

ST. PAUL'S ADVICE TO THE LADIES.

How oft have ladies silenced you—
  When to their hats you raised objections,
As shutting off in church the view—
  By reference to Saint Paul's directions?

'Tis true the Saint told womenkind
  Not to be seen in church bareheaded
"Because of angels"—but we find
  That these no longer are much dreaded.

Besides, he laid an equal stress,
  Amongst the things that I could mention,
On great simplicity in dress—
  This seems to have escaped attention.

Come, Ladies! Read his words once more
  And try, if after deep reflection,
And pondering all his teachings o'er,
  You cannot make a fresh selection.

Perhaps some form of veil, or hood,
  Might be arranged to look attractive—
Then the "recording angel" should
  'Mongst those behind you prove less active.

SAFE, SANE FOURTH IS NOW ASSURED

City Committee's Plans Complete for Official Fireworks Display and Parade.

PUBLIC CONTRIBUTES $5,531

And the City Will Spend $15,000 for Pyrotechnics in the Parks—Elks Commend It.

The "safe and sane" Fourth of July Committee announced its plans yesterday for the setting off of the fireworks, which will be the only part of the celebration for which the city will pay. The displays will not be held on the East River bridges as was originally planned, but in the parks—Mount Morris, Hamilton Fish, Seward, Thomas Jefferson, Carl Schurz, De Witt Clinton, Tompkins, City Hall, Battery, Madison Square, Riverside Drive, and the public playground at Eighth Avenue and Twenty-fifth Street in Manhattan.

According to the allotments for the expenditure of the $15,000, the fireworks for Manhattan will consume $5,750. Besides this $4,500 will be similarly expended in Brooklyn, $2,500 in the Bronx, $1,500 in Queens, and $750 in Richmond. The places where the displays in these boroughs will be held will be announced later.

The programme for the exercises to be held in the public school playgrounds and vacation centres under the auspices of the Board of Education was announced yesterday. It reads:

"DREAM PALACE" SOLD.

L. G. Tewksbury's Famous House Included in a Big Realty Deal.

The name and financial difficulties of Lewis G. Tewksbury, once a frenzied financier, were revived yesterday by the sale of his former "dream palace" at 29 West Seventy-second Street. The house, which was erected by Tewksbury shortly after his marriage to Mrs. Mary Mills Greenhut, widow of Louis G. Greenhut, a New York lawyer, in 1900, long since passed out of his hands, and it has recently been owned by the City Investing Company. As a residence it was one of the wonders of the city, containing few windows, and being filled with the most elaborate and expensive decorations and bric-à-brac.

This sale of the famous house formed only a part of one of the largest real estate transactions in recent years in that section of the city between Central Park West and Columbus Avenue. Included in the deal were the present residences of Congressman J. Van Vechten Olcott, at 31 West Seventy-second Street, adjoining the Tewksbury house, and the next house, No. 33, owned by the estate of the late Dr. Charles F. Hoffman, for many years rector of All Angels Church.

With these three houses, having a frontage of 75 feet in Seventy-second Street, was sold a seventy-five-foot plot in the rear, comprising a vacant plot and the residence at 22 West Seventy-third Street formerly occupied by W. MacNeil Rodewald. Lewis B. Preston was the broker in the sale. He would only say that the property was sold to a client for investment. The entire plot was held at $500,000.

"DRYS" WIN IN PECONIC.

One Moves a House So as to Bar Out a New Saloon.

RIVERHEAD, L. I., June 28.—The "drys" won, but not until the case was carried into the County Court. The "drys," consisting of the old-time residents, opposed the erection of a saloon in Peconic, while the would-be proprietor was backed by almost the entire foreign population of the community.

Joseph M. Victoria was the man who wanted to start the saloon. A building within 200 feet of the site is owned by a temperance advocate, but is leased by a man who believes that saloons are not necessarily an evil. Victoria got the consent of the lessee to open the saloon, but inasmuch as he failed to go before a Notary Public and have it acknowledged, it has been declared illegal.

In the meantime the owner of the house on the other side of the proposed saloon, who is also a temperance man, was wondering how he could aid in the fight against the saloon, as he was more than 200 feet away. Overnight he had one of the smaller buildings on his farm moved within the 200-foot limit, and he immediately moved into it, thus converting it into a dwelling. Victoria, however, was not to be outdone, so he erected a small shack alongside his saloon, into which he put a "wet" advocate, thus retaining two-thirds of the consents of the residents within 200 feet.

However, he had all his trouble and fight for nothing, as County Judge Griffing to-day announced that he would not allow the man to open the saloon, because of the illegal consents he obtained.

THRONG TO SAIL FOR EUROPE TO-DAY

ADRIATIC'S CABINS FULL

Col. and Mrs. William Jay and Bishop Hartzell Booked on White Star Liner—The Bluecher's List.

MRS. SHERMAN BETTER.

Is Lying Ill at Baltimore Hospital, Where Vice President Visits Her.

BALTIMORE, June 28.—Mrs. James S. Sherman, wife of Vice President Sherman, who is a patient at the Johns Hopkins Hospital, was to-night reported in an improved condition. All information as to her illness is refused at the hospital and by her physician, but it is understood that she is suffering from a nervous breakdown.

Vice President Sherman spent several hours at the hospital this afternoon, returning afterward to Washington.

PUT POLICEMAN IN HOSPITAL.

East Side Gang Leaves Him Unconscious on Tunnel Stairs.

Members of the "Terry Reilly" gang, which makes its headquarters in the neighborhood of Forty-second Street and Second Avenue, beat up Policeman John Daily of the East Fifty-first Street Station so badly last night that he was taken to Flower Hospital for treatment.

He had ordered a group of four men, standing on the corner of Forty-second Street, to move on, and one of them, known as "Smuck," resisted. Daily arrested him, and immediately his three companions attacked the policeman. Daily went down in the scuffle, and the gang, taking his club, and revolver away, ran east toward the tunnel at First Avenue, Daily pursuing. On the landing half way up the stair beside the tunnel there was another clinch. This time Daily was thrown down eighteen steps and landed unconscious, while his assailants, none of whose names are known, escaped.

Policeman McCormack helped Daily to the station, where Dr. Newcomb of Flower Hospital dressed a scalp wound on his head. Later he was taken to the hospital in an ambulance. He will be unable to do patrol duty for several days.

SOCIAL NOTES.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Munn, Jr., who have been abroad since their marriage last year and who are now on their way home, have taken the Gordon-Prince cottage at Manchester, Mass., for the season. Mrs. Munn was Miss Mary Astor Paul.

Mr. and Mrs. Granville Fortesque have returned from their wedding trip and are at their home in Washington.

Mrs. Everett Lincoln Judkins and Miss Phoebe Judkins sailed yesterday on the Kronprinz Wilhelm for Paris, where they will join Mr. Judkins. They are to be abroad all Summer.

W. Wetmore Cryder is in Boston after spending some weeks in town. Miss Mary Cryder has gone to the Hawthorne Inn, East Gloucester, Mass., where her father will join her in a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Roland Dickson (Miss Julia Sands) are booked to sail for Europe on July 20.

Mr. and Mrs. Royal Phelps Carroll will go to Newport on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ledyard Stevens sailed yesterday on the Rotterdam to spend the Summer abroad. Their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Tilton Bowen, who were married last week, are sailing to-morrow.

Mr. and Mrs. John J. Wysong are leaving to-day for Newport and will be at Greystone for the Summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Courtland Penfield are at Oberammergau, where they witnessed the Passion Play.

Mr. and Mrs. Don C. Seitz of 310 Stuyvesant Avenue, Brooklyn, will leave on Thursday for Seattle, sailing from there on a three months' visit to Japan.

FISKE—BROWN.

The marriage of Miss Lydia R. Harman Brown, a daughter of Mrs. William Harman Brown, and Henry Mctcalf Fiske of Boston took place yesterday afternoon in the Church of Zion and St. Timothy. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Henry Lumbeck, assisted by the Rev. Gibson Bell, and was followed by a small reception at the St. James Hotel, West Forty-fifth Street, where Mrs. Brown has made her home for several years.

The bride wore a gown of white satin, and a point lace veil, which had been worn by her grandmother, Mrs. Stuart Brown, at her own wedding. Miss Davison Brown was her cousin's only attendant, and the best man was Edward Q. Sylvester of Boston. The ushers were William Emerson, I. Manser Beard, W. Harman Brown, and F. B. White, the latter of Boston.

After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Fiske will make their home in Concord, Mass.

RICHMAN—PERITZ.

Daniel W. Richman and Miss Ella Peritz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Peritz of 110 West 111th Street, were married yesterday at the home of her parents, where the reception was held. The Rev. Dr. I. S. Moses officiated. Neither the bride nor bridegroom had any attendants. Mr. and Mrs. Richman will make their home in New York after their honeymoon, which they will spend at the Thousand Islands.

MacLEAN—McMAHON.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. MacLean of 59 West Eighty-seventh Street announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss May MacLean, to John McMahon of this city.

CLOSE CALL FOR FAST TRAIN.

One Pullman Car of the Pennsylvania's Federal Express Jumps the Track.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., June 28.—One of the sleepers attached to the Federal Express, from Boston en route south on the Pennsylvania Railroad, jumped the track near the Clinton Street station this morning. One woman, Margaret P. Jackson of Dorchester, Mass., was injured, but was able to continue her journey. Passengers in berths were thrown around the car in confusion.

Though the car went off the track it did not part company with the rest of the train, nor telescope. Traffic was delayed nearly two hours.

SUES FOREST COMMISSIONER.

Glens Falls Man He Charged with Cutting State Timber Wants $100,000.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., June 28.—Counsel for George N. Ostrander of Albany has brought suit for $100,000 libel against James S. Whipple, State Forest, Fish and Game Commissioner. The action grows out of a charge of fraud made against Ostrander in a suit the State has brought against Ostrander for $200,000 for removing timber from State lands.

On June 18 the Forest, Fish and Game Department issued a statement that Ostrander offered to sell land to the State which the State owned.

Ostrander replied that the land in question was for a time designated as "No Man's Land," and that the courts had passed upon the question of title.

ALBANY, June 28.—When asked about the suit Commissioner Whipple said the action against Ostrander was brought by the department of which he is the head and that the papers were signed while he was out of the city by the Deputy Commissioner. He said the action was brought against him probably because he was the head of the department.

For several months the Governor's special Commissioners have been investigating affairs in the Forest, Fish and Game Department, especially in connection with the purchase of land for the forest preserve.

WANTS HODGSKIN REMOVED.

Watson Says Lawyer's Absence Delays Condemnation Proceedings.

Supreme Court Justice Marcus, in Brooklyn, was asked yesterday by Corporation Counsel Watson to remove Lawyer T. Ellett Hodgskin as a member of the commission which has been assessing the damages to property in Joralemon Street, Brooklyn, caused by the construction of the Manhattan-Brooklyn subway.

Although Mr. Watson protested that he should remain that the work of the commission might not be delayed, Mr. Hodgskin went to Europe in the Spring. Mr. Watson said that the interest on the claims was piling up, and that Mr. Hodgskin's trip abroad would thus cost the city dearly.

The motion was opposed by Gen. George W. Wingate, of whose firm Mr. Hodgskin is a member. Decision was reserved.

REVISING THE BIBLE.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., June 28.—After having been in session for ten days the conference of the editors of the commemorative tercentenary edition of the English authorized version of the Bible adjourned here to-day. The work is now nearly completed, and what remains will be accomplished by a sub-committee of editors which has not yet been announced.

The purpose of the committee which adjourned to-day is to bring out a new edition of the King James version, correcting obsolete words, infelicitous expressions, and misleading translations.

The American committee, which is acting jointly with an English committee of seven clergymen, has been working under the general supervision of the Rev. C. J. Scofield, D. D. The new edition will be printed by the Oxford and Cambridge University Press in England in May of 1911, 300 years after the printing of the first edition of the Bible.

A reception was given to the American editors yesterday by Mr. and Mrs. M. Taylor Payne at their country seat, Brumthwacket.

Lieutenants Quit Naval Battalion.

Trouble in the Second Naval Battalion in Brooklyn has led to the resignations of Lieut. Walter R. Griffith and Lieut. Arthur Cohen. It was said yesterday that the immediate cause of Lieut. Griffith's resigning was the refusal of Commander Robert P. Forshew to have dishonorably discharged a member of the First Division whom Griffith charged with mutiny. In sympathy with his immediate commanding officer, Lieut. Cohen also resigned.

AMERICAN DANCERS SHOW THEIR SKILL

ENCOURAGE THEIR TEACHER

Dancer Famous in Her Day Says in Two Years She Can Supply All the Demands of Opera Here.

The Metropolitan Opera House is to have a ballet composed entirely of American girls inside of two years. Mme. Cavallazzi, the head of the ballet school of that institution, said so yesterday at the exercises terminating the first year of the school. Twenty-four girls, most of them just 16 years old, showed that it is not only Italians and French and Russians who can stand on their toes and pirouette.

"Mr. Gatti-Casazza came to me just before he sailed," said Mme. Cavallazzi, "and engaged ten of my girls after seeing them dance. He is only bringing eighteen girls from Europe this year, and next season the ballet will almost surely be made up entirely of American girls. Mr. Dippel came to me yesterday for girls for his Chicago opera company. I had none ready then which were not promised, but I'll have more in the Fall.

"I am greatly pleased with the success of my school, and I am sure that it will be even more of a success when I have had the girls longer. It is impossible to take girls here before they are 16 on account of the law, and it is difficult to train premiere danseuses at that age, but it is possible to make the girls into coryphees if they are studious, and mine have been of that class."

The twenty-four girls in the class went through a regular programme yesterday in the rehearsal room of the Metropolitan Opera House, which was filled with spectators for the occasion.

Each of the girls was dressed in the conventional white ballet skirt, and most of them wore fillets of pink in their hair and pink tights. They were all of them pretty, and as the dancing took place in the daylight none of them was made up.

At the command of their instructor the girls lined up on the stage, and first went through a drill showing the first elementary exercises. Then they went on through various stages of dancing, and the audience greeted every pause with enthusiastic applause. Balancing on one leg they twirled the other through the air with remarkable lightness, and they bounded about the stage as if they had been doing it all their lives.

The conclusion of the afternoon's entertainment was a small divertissement, in which Miss Eva Swain, one of the youngest of the pupils, did a solo, after which she was greeted with such insistent applause that she came very near having to do it all over again. In the course of this dance Miss Swain jumped backward on one foot, with her other foot pointed at right angles behind her, one of the feats with which Pavlowa aroused great admiration last Winter.

After it was all over Mme. Cavallazzi received the congratulations of those present, and ice-cream and cake were served by the ballet girls.

Mme. Cavallazzi was a famous dancer of her day. She appeared one year at the Metropolitan Opera House about twenty-five years ago, and her elopement with Lionel Mapleson, a son of the famous impresario, was the cause of much excitement at the time. The dancer never returned to this country after the elopement until she came to open this ballet school last Fall. She intends to stay near New York in the Summer, and will reopen her school in the Fall.

FROHMAN'S MUSICAL SHOWS.

Thomas Reynolds Appointed General Stage Director—Two Circuits.

Thomas Reynolds, an English stage director, was appointed yesterday general stage director of musical comedies for Charles Frohman, an indication of Mr. Frohman's intention of producing more than his usual number of musical plays. He announces that he will put into operation a system of two distinct circuits for musical pieces, one Eastern and the other Western, in which the same musical plays will be presented simultaneously. Chicago will be the producing point of the Western circuit and New York the centre of the Eastern. The latter circuit will extend as far as Illinois and the former will extend to the Pacific Coast.

Mr. Reynolds began yesterday to form the "Our Miss Gibbs" company, which will open at the Knickerbocker Theatre on Aug. 29, and in which Pauline Chase will appear later in the season. Next week he will begin to gather second companies for "The Dollar Princess" and "The Arcadians" for the Western circuit.

Mr. Frohman intends to have six musical companies in the field at the beginning of this coming season, with at least 100 people in each company. Later in the year he intends to produce other musical plays.

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

Bobby North and the Lambs' Quartet have been added to the programme of the performance to be given at Arverne, L. I., on July 10 for the benefit of the Hebrew Infant Asylum.

The American Music Hall at Seaside Station, Rockaway Beach, under the management of William Morris, will open for the season next Saturday night with an elaborate vaudeville programme.

Bertha Kalich, who is to star next season under the management of the Shuberts in a repertoire of three plays, has invited her company to Highmount, N. Y., her Summer home, for preliminary rehearsals. Julia Marlowe, who has a Summer home at the same place, will invite a number of her principals to visit her there when she returns from Europe.

Blanche Walsh will be seen in New York this season for the first time since she played in "The Straight Road" at the Astor Theatre. She will have a new play by J. Hartley Manners, called "Barbareza," and will open in town on Sept. 15.

Members of the Yale and Harvard baseball teams attended the performance of "The Follies of 1910" at the Jardin de Paris last night.

Walter C. Jordan of the firm of Sanger & Jordan, play agents, will sail for Europe this morning with Mrs. Jordan to make his annual visit to his clients in London and Continental cities.

FATHER CAMPBELL HONORED.

Priest Is Chosen Head of the House of Jesuits in Washington Square.

By direction from Rome of the Father General of the order, the Rev. Thomas J. Campbell has assumed charge as Supervisor of the House of the Jesuits, 32 Washington Square West, and editor in chief of America, the National Catholic weekly review that is published there. He is a well-known Jesuit writer, preacher, and educator. He is a native of this city and a graduate of St. Francis Xavier's College.

Father Campbell took the usual preparatory courses of the Jesuit order and then finished his studies in Europe. Returning to the United States, he taught in the colleges of his order in this city and was successively President at St. John's, Fordham, and St. Francis Xavier. He was then appointed by the General to the office of Provincial of the New York-Maryland division of the order, which includes all the Eastern States. This post he held with signal success for two years.

After a brief time on the missions he became one of the editors of The Messenger, and then went to Canada, where he spent two years collecting material for a history of the pioneer Jesuit missionaries of North America, two volumes of which have already been published. He has recently returned from this task and his appointment from Rome as editor in chief of America has followed.

GOULDTHRITE MAY BE DEAD.

Indications That Fugitive Canadian Printing Chief Has Drowned Himself.

DETROIT, Mich., June 28.—F. S. Gouldthrite, the missing Chief of the Canadian Printing Bureau's purchasing department at Ottawa, is believed to have committed suicide to-day by leaping from the steamer Eastern States when it was coming up the Detroit River from Buffalo. A bloodstained shirt found in the man's stateroom was taken to indicate that he had first attempted to kill himself with a knife. No one, however, saw the man jump overboard, and there is a possibility that the evidence of suicide may be a cleverly arranged plan to checkmate the Canadian police.

The missing man's hat, found on the stern of the vessel, contained a note stating that there were letters in his overcoat pockets and that his body would be found in the river. Two letters were found in his stateroom, one addressed to Mrs. Abaleene Gouldthrite, Rock Cliffe Park, Ottawa, and the other to Miss Abaleene Gouldthrite. The letters were mailed here without being opened.

Gouldthrite has been sought by the police for nearly a week in connection with serious irregularities discovered in the Canadian Government's Printing Bureau. He had been for twenty years head of the purchasing department. Warrants had been issued for his arrest.

DE HIRSCH SCHOOL CLOSES.

Has Educated the Children of Immigrants for Twenty Years.

The Baron De Hirsch School, which has been educating the children of immigrants for the last twenty years issued diplomas to its last graduating class yesterday morning. The Trustees of the fund left by Baron De Hirsch have decided that there is no longer any necessity for continuing the school, as the public schools of New York are now doing the same work.

The graduating class numbered forty-five pupils, many of whom have been in America only for a few months. The exercises opened with the singing of patriotic songs, after which a programme consisting of essays and singing was given. Most of the essays were of a patriotic character.

Isidor Straus presided and addressed the class. There were also present S. Sabowitch, manager of the De Hirsch Fund; Miss Julia Richmond, District Superintendent of the schools to which the pupils will be transferred, and Henry Fleischman, administrator of the Educational Alliance.

The address of Mr. Straus was an appeal to the pupils for the uplifting of their race. "The position of the uneducated immigrant in this country," he said, "is not one to be envied. This country needs educated men, and these schools were established to give the immigrant a start and a chance to make something of himself. There are those who are in favor of restricting immigration. These men are not living up to the standard of the American Constitution, which establishes liberty and freedom for the oppressed. It is for you to show that the immigrant is not a burden to this country, but rather an asset."

The Baron De Hirsch School was founded under the terms of the Baron's will, which left a fund of $12,000,000, the interest of which was to support a number of such schools. The school which closed yesterday confined itself to the teaching of American history and language. The fund has been under the control of the Educational Alliance of New York, of which Isidor Straus is President and Dr. Henry Fleischman is administrator. The money will be devoted to other work under the direction of the alliance.

Besides the graduating class, the school has about 600 pupils, who will be transferred to the public schools at the beginning of the next term.

WOULD MOVE ELEVATED.

Louis Stern Submits a Plan to Improve Sixth Avenue.

Another plan to relieve congestion in Fifth Avenue has been submitted to Mayor Gaynor, this time in the form of a suggestion from Louis Stern of Stern Brothers. Mr. Stern suggests that a new avenue be cut, running, however, between Sixth and Seventh Avenues instead of between Fifth and Sixth.

The kind of avenue Mr. Stern would have differs materially from the one proposed by Mayor Gaynor, as the latter calls for a finished street that can in itself care for traffic and become a business thoroughfare. Mr. Stern, on the other hand, would make a new avenue capable only of caring for the Sixth Avenue elevated tracks and move them over to it.

"The real relief to traffic," he said, in discussing the plan with Mayor Gaynor, "would be in making Sixth Avenue an attractive driveway. At present it is ugly and disfigured by the elevted road, and this fact has much to do with the failure of people to make general use of it.

If the city would purchase a fifty-foot strip between Sixth and Seventh Avenues from the point where Sixth Avenue elevated road enters Sixth Avenue at Third Street and continue it to Fifty-third Street, it would soon be followed by the diversion of much traffic from Fifth to Sixth Avenues, and thus the congestion problem would be solved.

"In Germany, especially in Berlin, the elevated roads have not been allowed permanently to disfigure the principal avenues, and they have been recently moved into narrow strips between the principal blocks."

Mayor Gaynor promised to take Mr. Stern's suggestion under consideration.

BROKER AND COACHMAN FIGHT

Driver Objected Because L. F. Hepburn Kicked His Dog at Oyster Bay.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., June 28.—Lively fisticuffs between a New York broker who has a Summer residence here and his coachman afforded the villagers unusual entertainment and gave them something new to talk about to-day. The broker is L. F. Hepburn, who has a handsome residence on the West Shore Drive, and the coachman is Daniel Young.

The trouble was all about a dog which was given to the coachman by Mr. Hepburn as a Christmas present last year. When Mr. Hepburn drove to the village to-day to take a train for New York he stopped on the way to the station at a harness shop in South Street, the main thoroughfare of the village. Young didn't like his treatment of his dog, and he shouted to his employer:

"What are you kicking my dog for?"

"I'll kick you, too, if you give me any more impertinence," Mr. Hepburn is quoted as retorting.

Then there was a fight, and the broker is alleged to have struck the first blow, landing on the coachman's face. Young proved the better fighter, however, and Mr. Hepburn was being worsted when the onlookers, who had been hugely enjoying the fight, interfered and separated the men. Deputy Sheriff Dan Smith started to arrest Young, but several men told him that Mr. Hepburn was the aggressor and he let the coachman go.

Mr. Hepburn did not go to the city, but Young did. He said he would look for another job.

CITY BREVITIES.

A Supreme Court jury in an inquest before Justice Gerard gave Sarah Lacey a $15,000 award yesterday for breach of promise to marry against Joseph Moritz. He did not defend the suit.

A meeting of New York trade unionists, held in Arlington Hall, last evening decided to work and vote for the nomination and election of Congressman William Sulzer for Governor, and unanimously adopted a resolution to that effect.

A. M. Schultz, founder and President of Branch No. 2 of the Civil Service Employes' Retirement Association, will resign to-day on account of age. He is 70 years old. A meeting will be held at the end of this week to appoint his successor.

James Sherlock Davis, President of the Cross, Austin & Ireland Lumber Company of Brooklyn, wrote yesterday to Fire Commissioner Waldo, sending the company's thanks to the Fire Department for its "very able and efficient work" in controlling and extinguishing the bad fire in the company's lumber yard last Thursday.

SENATOR M'ENERY DIES IN NEW ORLEANS

AN INDEPENDENT DEMOCRAT

Voted Frequently with Republicans, Particularly in Tariff Legislation—Gov. Sanders to be His Successor.

NEW ORLEANS, June 28.—United States Senator Samuel Douglas McEnery died at his home here this morning shortly before 10 o'clock. Senator McEnery arrived from Washington yesterday morning, suffering from an attack of indigestion. The Senator rallied somewhat after treatment, but late last night his condition took a turn for the worse, and early this morning he lapsed into unconsciousness.

Senator McEnery was in his seventy-fourth year, and his health had not been good for several years. At his bedside at his death were his wife, who before their marriage was Miss Elizabeth Phillips of Monroe, La.; his daughter, Mrs. Warren B. Park, and one of his sons, Charles P. McEnery. Dr. Douglas W. McEnery, another son, of Washington, D. C., is on his way to New Orleans.

Gov. Sanders probably will succeed Senator McEnery as Senator.

Samuel Douglas McEnery was born in Monroe, La., in May, 1837. His father, Henry McEnery, a native of Limerick, Ireland, emigrated to America, and was appointed by President Taylor Register of the Land Office at Monroe. Samuel, his son, was for three years in the Naval Academy at Annapolis. He then spent two years in the academic department of the University of Virginia, and afterward attended the National Law School at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., where he was graduated. He then went to Nottoway County, Va., where he practiced law one year. His health failing, he returned to Monroe in 1860.

When the civil war began, Mr. McEnery was appointed a Lieutenant of an infantry company attached to the Second Louisiana Regiment, and took part in Magruder's campaign on the peninsula.

Immediately following the war he was conspicuous in the work accomplished by the "White League" in overthrowing the "carpetbaggers" and negro rule. In 1867 he began the practice of law at Monroe. In 1879 he was elected Lieutenant Governor on the Wiltz ticket. On the death of Gov. Wiltz in October, 1881, he became Governor of the State, and was elected Governor in 1884.

Gov. F. T. Nicholls appointed Mr. McEnery to the Supreme Court bench for a term of twelve years. In 1892 Justice McEnery was defeated for Governor by Gov. Foster. He was elected to the United States Senate in 1896, was re-elected in 1902, and again in 1908. He was the only Democratic Senator who voted for the Payne-Aldrich Tariff bill.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 28.—The death of Senator McEnery removes a unique figure from public life in Washington. An ex-Confederate soldier, who had accepted all the offices he had held of the Democratic platform, Mr. McEnery on many questions, largely of a partisan sort, voted regularly with the Republican majority. His stand on such matters was taken as a commentary on the one-party system obtaining in the South.

At the special session last Summer Mr. McEnery was counted on unvaryingly to vote with the regular Republicans against the Democratic and insurgent contentions for reduced rates on imports. In return for this Mr. McEnery demanded protection on such Louisiana products as sugar and lumber. It was Mr. McEnery who introduced the resolution in the Senate pledging the United States to take the Philippines under its care to fit them for self-government. The effects of our assumption of sovereignty over the islands, Mr. McEnery had been fighting ever since.

Vice President Sherman has designated the following Senators to attend the funeral of Senator McEnery, which it has been learned, is to be held at New Orleans at 10:30 A. M., Thursday: Messrs. Foster, Dolliver, Bailey, Gamble, Clay, Bradley, Johnston, and Chamberlain.

Speaker Cannon named the following committee to attend the funeral on behalf of the House of Representatives: Messrs. Broussard, Watkins, Ransdell, Wickliffe, Pujo, Estopinal, and Gilmore of Louisiana; Taylor of Alabama, Beall of Texas, Macon of Arkansas, Sisson of Mississippi, McKinley of Illinois, Grant of North Carolina, and Barchfeld of Pennsylvania.

BISHOP W. N. McVICKAR DEAD.

Rhode Island Prelate Dies at His Summer Home, Aged 67.

BEVERLY, Mass., June 28.—William Neilson McVickar, Protestant Episcopal Bishop of Rhode Island, died at his Summer home at Beverly Cove late this afternoon after a lingering illness.

Bishop McVickar has been Bishop of Rhode Island since 1903. He was the son of Dr. John A. McVickar of this city and was born in 1843. He was graduated from Columbia College in 1865 and from the General Theological Seminary in 1868. He was then rector of Holy Trinity in Harlem for seven years and of Holy Trinity in Philadelphia for twenty-two years more. He then became Bishop Coadjutor of Rhode Island until the death of Bishop Clarke.

Charles Philip Armstrong.

Charles Philip Armstrong, for many years a member of the West India sugar importing firm of L. W. & P. Armstrong, died on Monday at his home in Belle Haven, Conn., of arterial sclerosis, aged 68. He was born in New Haven, Conn., being the son of Lorenzo and Charlotte Alling Armstrong. He married Sarah A., the daughter of the Rev. John E. Searles. He was formerly Vice President of the Bowling Green Trust Company and was a member of the Produce Exchange. He was a Director of the Fajardo Sugar Company, the Standard Milling Company, the East River Savings Institution, the Kings County Refrigerating Company, and the New Amsterdam Casualty Company. He leaves a widow and two sons.

The Giants took a full measure of revenge from the Quakers yesterday afternoon for the defeat of Monday, when they trounced the players from the City of Brotherly Love by a score of 9 to 1. And it was Mr. Louis Drucke who was the prime factor in the downfall of the visitors, for he held them safe at all times, there being but five hits gathered from his pitching in the nine innings, and then it was a three-bagger by him which brought in the first runs of the game for the McGrawites. The bases were full when he came to the plate in the fifth, and to the surprise of every one he smashed the sphere out to right field for three of the coveted sacks, sending in Bridwell, Fletcher, and Meyers. This was the start of a batting rally that drove Ewing out of the box in the sixth inning after five successive hits had been made off him in that session alone. McQuillan succeeded him and finished the inning, when Foxen went on the slab for the Quakers. The latter met with almost the same reception as Ewing.

In the first inning Merkle made a mess of Grant's grounder that should have been an easy out. Even after he had fumbled the sphere, he proceeded to make matters worse by doing a jugling act in picking it up. Then in the third Seymour made Ward a present of the initial sack when the latter sent a long fly to the Giants' centre fielder. He had only to walk about five steps to get under the sphere, and then dropped it. These two bits of poor work gave the spectators a chill despite the warm weather. It looked as if trouble was brewing for the New Yorkers. Ewing was sending over the benders in a puzzling fashion, and the hits were so few that it almost seemed as if there were none. Just what was happening might be stated in the fact that in the first four innings there were but twelve men to face the Quaker twirler, and in that time there had been but one hit. That came in the fourth inning, when Devore sent a hot one past Grant. He followed it, however, by a stupid play. Doyle, the next man up, laced out a hot one that looked as if it would pass Titus in right field. The latter, however, gave a leap and pulled it down with one hand. Devore was well on his way to second, but got back safely. Titus, however, had thrown to Ward. Devore evidently forgot this, and took a lead from the sack and was tagged out.

The hit, if it did nothing more, gave a taste of what was coming, for in the next inning it was that the Quakers received a good beating. Seymour was the first to face Ewing, and he could not do better than fly out to centre field. Bridwell, however, drew a pass, and went to second when Fletcher placed one in a safe position in left. Merkle flied out to the same point as Seymour, and it began to look as if the rally were not going to happen. Then after two strikes had been called on him Meyers pounded one down in front of the plate, which carromed high in the air. Ewing made a desperate try for it, but there was time enough for the slow-going Indian to reach first, and the bases were full. Then Drucke walloped the ball for a three-bagger, which set the crowd in a happy frame of mind, for Bridwell, Fletcher, and Meyers crossed the plate.

The next inning started auspiciously when Doyle singled to right. Murray then got the three-bagger habit, placing one in left field, Doyle scoring. Seymour then added to Ewing's discomfort by singling to right, and Bridwell doubled to left. Seymour, however, was held at third. Fletcher dropped a Texas leaguer behind first, and Seymour scored. Then came a wild pitch, and Bridwell walked in. Fletcher had gone to second on the throw to catch Bridwell at third, and took third on the wild pitch. He was run down, however, between third and home after Merkle's hit to Grant. Meyers flied out, and Drucke walked. After Fletcher's single McQuinlan replaced Ewing, so that the start of his work in the box was rather effective.

In the seventh inning Foxen faced New York. Devore struck out, and then came another series of singles that spelled greater disaster for the Quakers. Doyle beat out a bunt along the third base line. Murray placed a neat one in right, which placed Doyle on second. Then came a hit in the same place by Seymour, scoring Doyle. Murray reached third on the hit, and when Bridwell sent a mean single to Foxen, Murray came home with the last New York run. Seymour was caught at third, and Fletcher was out on a long fly.

We've been "sawing wood and saying nothing" about markdowns in men's Summer suits.

Because it's not our habit to talk much about the ordinary price revisions constantly made in merchandising our stock.

But now, at $15, $20 and $25 there are suits showing extra values, in quantities adequate to the activity which always greets such news.

We could hardly expect to supply 43,000 feet with silk socks in one day—even at 35 cents a pair.

So to-day again we're ready for a few regiments of men who will enjoy the novel idea of pure silk socks at 35 cents. Plain black and colors.

Pirates Win Uphill Battle.

PITTSBURG, Penn., June 28.—Pittsburg to-day won an uphill game from St. Louis. Through the wildness of Leifield the visitors scored three runs in the first inning on one hit. Pittsburg tied the score in the seventh inning and won in the eighth by McKechnie's single and a three-bagger by Wilson. Evans was put out of the game at his first time up, and before he had finished his time at bat, Zacher taking his place. Score:

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 28.—The New Yorks proved too strong for the Senators in the fourth game of the series here this afternoon, and won an interesting, though loosely played, game by 9 to 7, knocking two pitchers out of the box and taking advantage of every misplay by the home folks.

Tom Hughes pitched his first game in the Capital City, and while he was hit harder than all three of the local slab artists, he was batted hard in only the first and final rounds.

A batting rally kept the crowd in the stands until the last man was out. Two runs had already been scored by the Senators and men were on second and third, with McBride up. A safe crack here would have tied the score, but the shortstop could not repeat his performance of Monday.

The Yankees' twirler, Hughes, was a big factor in the victory. He scored three runs and rapped out the same number of hits, including a three-bagger. Knight had a busy day at short, and Austin at third made two hair-raising stops of balls which looked like safe hits.

Hemphill opened the game with a safe hit to centre. Wolter drew a base on balls. Chase died on an infield grounder. Laporte rolled an easy one to Elberfeld, who threw the ball into the crowd, permitting Hemphill and Wolter to score. The home team forged ahead in the final half of this chapter. A base on balls, together with four singles in a row, sent home three runs.

After two batsmen had been retired in New York's second inning, Hughes drove the ball over Milan's head for a three-bagger, and scored on a wild pitch. This was enough for Doc Reisling, who retired in favor of Oberlin, when the third inning opened. The latter blanked the visitors for two rounds before they finally got to him. In the meanwhile, a two-bagger by Schaefer, Knight's error, and a poor throw by Sweeney sent the home team one run in the lead.

In the fifth Stallings's braves made life miserable for Oberlin. Wolter, first up, flied to Lelivelt. Chase popped to Killefer, who muffed the ball, and before it could be recovered, Hal reached second. Laporte walked, and Gardner was safe on an infield tap to Oberlin, filling the bases. Knight worried the pitcher into giving him four balls, and Chase scored.

Oberlin's troubles increased in the sixth inning, when four singles in a row and a sacrifice fly added two more tallies, making the score, New York, 6; Washington, 4.

The seventh inning for New York opened with Austin drawing a base on balls and then Manager McAleer withdrew Oberlin and brought Hinrichs into the limelight. Errors by McBride and Street, together with a timely hit from Hal Chase's bat, sent three Yankee runners over the rubber, boosting the run total to 9.

Milan's three-bagger and Elberfeld's single in Washington's seventh added a tally to the home team, and when the ninth opened for the Senators, after Hinrichs had fanned, Hardy was safe on Knight's error. Milan doubled to left. Lelivelt's sacrifice fly to Laporte scored Hardy. Elberfeld walked, Killifer smashed the ball out of Laporte's reach in left, and Milan came home. McBride had the chance of his life to tie up the game, but popped to Knight for the third out.

Set Back for the League Leaders.

PHILADELPHIA, June 28.—Boston won today's game here 4 to 3, the deciding run being scored in the eighth inning on Stahl's single and Lewis's double. Karger pitched fine ball after the first inning, when the first four men at bat hit safely. In the third inning Coombs forced in two runs by giving three successive batsmen bases on balls. YALE BEATS HARVARD.

Philbin Drives in Winning Run in Ninth Inning on the Hilltop.

In a game which just gurgled with effervescent emotion Yale beat Harvard at American League Park yesterday by a score of 10 to 9. It was the deciding game of a series of three. Yale won the first in New Haven, Harvard the second in Cambridge, and the third game was played, according to the ancient custom, on neutral ground. The picturesque, gayly-attired crowd of 8,000 enjoyed the up-and-down, in-and-out uncertainty of the contest, and during the afternoon there were times when the Yale crowd tuned itself to the highest pitch, and a moment later Harvard would burst into a delirium of delight when the Crimson would forge to the front. Yale took the last yell and the best one. Verily, you may say, it was not keen, top-notch baseball, but there's no denying the fact that it was exciting, entertaining, and kept the crowd on its toes at just the times when they should have been resting comfortably in their seats.

First it was Yale's game, then it was Harvard's, then it was anybody's. When it came to the art of brandishing the wagon tongue Harvard was conspicuous, and with the bat they outswung the Blue rivals. But Harvard did insist on making errors at the wrong times and Yale didn't. Honestly, you never can tell anything about a college game nowadays, for when the side you are rooting for gets a mile ahead it is likely to blow up and let the other side take the lead.

Both Harvard and Yale yesterday were determined not to change pitchers. No matter how they were slammed, they were not derricked to the bench. Tommers stood the gaff on the firing line for Yale and won out. Hicks was on the hummock for the Crimson and Yale reached him just once too often.

Just imagine the last half of the ninth inning with the score tied, 9 to 9. Little Joe Stevens, who got a warm greeting every time he appeared because he is a New York boy, whacked a hot liner, which stuck like glue in Hicks's mitt. Merritt, the Yale short stop, then stepped up and was patient. He walked. It was a cinch to steal on Young, the Crimson catcher, so Merritt lost no time in racing to second, he being safe a city block.

Steve Philbin is up. He's from New York, too. He still limps slightly on account of the ankle he broke early in the year. Here's his chance. It was hard enough to have to give up the captaincy when he was injured; it was painful to get back into the game with a damaged pedal, but here is reward for him. With a mighty swing he cudgeled the leather wickedly and it soared between right and centre field. Merritt raced home and Philbin had lots of time to get to second, even with his limp, and he could have gone further if necessary. And that's the way the rubber game of the Yale-Harvard series of 1910 was won. By just the large, healthy, lusty swat of Steve Philbin. The score:

KEENE SHOWS FAST COLT IN LAHORE

Jockey Dugan Suspended and Reported to Jockey Club for Rough Riding.

James R. Keene added another stake to his list at Sheepshead Bay yesterday when his colt Lahore was winner over a smart field in the running of the Surf Stake. It was a five-and-a-half-furlong dash, that has been an annual fixture of the programme of the Coney Island Jockey Club since 1880, and in the roster of winners in other years the names of some brilliant turf heroes are shown. Lahore was making his first appearance under silks and his performance was a truly impressive one.

The running of the stake was not without its unpleasant incident, and after the race the Stewards suspended Jockey Eddie Dugan for the remainder of the meeting, and he was reported to the Jockey Club for his reckless riding. Dugan had the mount on Footprint, the August Belmont starter, and in the early stages of the race he carried Colston, the F. A. Forsythe entrant, and Archduke, a companion to Lahore from the Keene stable, all over the track. Complaint was made after the running and the ruling was promptly made, indicating that the Stewards themselves had a close watch on Dugan and were prepared for the charge that was lodged against him.

Dugan had just come clear of another charge when this punishment was inflicted. In the running of the Sheepshead Bay Handicap last Thursday, in which S. C. Hildreth's King James beat James R. Keene's Maskette, James Rowe, trainer for Mr. Keene, lodged a complaint with the Stewards against Dugan. It was Sir John Johnson that Dugan rode, and Rowe's charge was that he had purposely carried Maskette out at the head of the stretch, permitting King James to come through on the rail and win. The Stewards had the charge before them ever since shortly after the running of the race, and it was only yesterday that they found Dugan not guilty. The summaries:

Yale and Harvard Captains.

There was much good cheer and merrymaking at the New Netherlands Hotel last evening where the banquet of the Yale baseball team was held after defeating Harvard. The team elected Allan Lyle Corey, 1911, of Pittsburg Captain for next year. Corey has played in right field on the Yale nine for the past two years, and has also been substitute quarter back on the football eleven. He is the son of William E. Corey of Pittsburg and New York.

There was not so much jollification at the last gathering of the Harvard team at the Murray Hill Hotel, not only more than a team is entitled to that makes a plucky uphill fight. The team elected Charles P. McLaughlin, 1911, Captain for next year. McLaughlin has alternated during the season between first base and the pitching staff, and has covered first base in the last two games of the season.

READY FOR THAMES REGATTA.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 28.—With every crew on edge for the Yale-Harvard regatta which begins to-morrow, the Thames began to assume a race-day appearance this afternoon when craft from many sections arrived and took up positions along the course. Although the formal programme of regatta day is not scheduled until Thursday the freshman fours have a lively brush to-morrow afternoon, and yachts which form a brilliant feature of the preliminary scene on the Thames are here to enjoy the opening race of the rowing campaign.

Harvard to-day made another effort to arrange the gentlemen's eight-oared race, which has been for four years a feature of the preliminaries to the formal regatta. Yale's final decision not to enter an eight was made to-day. Harvard oarsmen announced to-night that the graduate oarsmen would paddle over the mile course to-morrow afternoon alone and claim the cup by default.

Plans for the only race of to-morrow, the freshman fours, were completed tonight. It will be rowed at 5 o'clock to-morrow afternoon across the river from the crews' quarters, starting from the mile and a half point of the course and rowing up to the half-mile mark. Coaches Wray and Kennedy gave the freshman quartets a little coaching to-day as a final preparation for the event. The two fours were picked as follows:

Yale—Stroke, Brundere; No. 3, Bemisler; No. 2, Scragg; bow, Romeyn; coxswain, Barnum.

Harvard—Stroke, Davis; No. 3, G. Cutler; No. 2, Chadwick; bow, Parker; coxswain, Brownlee.

Yale is slightly the favorite in this event.

Because of the light rowing in both camps to-day, the matter of the selection of a Captain for next year is being agitated and the campaigning is being done. Both Yale and Harvard will choose a 'Varsity Captain after the race Thursday. In the Harvard camp the selection is narrowing down to Elliott Cutler, the stroke. He is a brother of Roger Cutler, Captain last year. Whitney, bow, is a dark horse, but indications are strong that Cutler will prove the choice. At Yale the selection lies between Adrian Vansinderen of Brooklyn, No. 5, and George L. Buckingham, No. 6, of New York City, with chances slightly favoring Buckingham. He was the best oarsman in the freshman eight last year, while Van Sinderen has never yet rowed in intercollegiate competition.

J. Pierpont Morgan reached here this afternoon in his black yacht, the Corsair, which took anchorage up the river to await the return of Mr. Morgan, who went by special train to Boston to attend the Harvard commencement, but he will return here to-morrow night and sleep aboard his boat.

The Government boat Sylph is expected here to-morrow with members of President Taft's family abroad. George Von L. Meyer, Secretary of the Navy, is not aboard the Dolphin, but Mrs. Meyer and her two daughters, the Misses Julia and Alice E. Meyer, are on that craft.

Two of the four revenue cutters which have been detailed here for patrol duty, the Gresham and the Acushnut, have arrived.

Other boats here include the Visitor II., New York Yacht Club, owned by Harry Brown; The Iris, Francis S. Whitehouse, Boston; Arabelle, C. P. Thomas, New York; Aloha, Commodore James, New York Yacht Club; Christine, F. F. Coblin, New York; Tarpon, Robert F. Herrick, Boston, and the Roxana, Larz Anderson, Boston.

ENGLISH FIGHTER STRONG.

Matt Wells Easily Defeats Lawrence at Fairmont Club.

Two ten-round bouts was the programme at the Fairmont A. C. last night, and both offered good exhibitions. In the first Matt. Wells, an Englishman, made his début to the fighting game on this side of the water in a go with Charley Lawrence, and all of the way it was the Englishman's fight. In the second bout Jack Dorman had a clear lead over Danny Goodman. At the end it seemed that Goodman was almost out.

The bout between Wells and Lawrence was a semi-final to the Dorman-Goodman match. Lawrence had the best of his rival both as to weight and reach, yet with that against him the newcomer supplied all of the forcing and was so strong that Lawrence could not take any advantake in the breakaway. Lawrence was aggressive at the start, and carried the fight to his opponent throughout.

Automobile Advice To Residents of New Jersey

Whatever automobile you decide to purchase, it is decidedly to your advantage to get it of a New Jersey dealer. All cars need little adjustments and attentions on the start, to which you are entitled, and it is most important that the New Jersey agent have an interest in the car.

In addition, all contracts with manufacturers require dealers to sell only in their own territory. You want a clear title to your car.

PENNSYLVANIA MAN IN ONTARIO ROAD

Election of T. De Witt Cuyler Draws Closer Alliance with New York and New Haven.

PUTS HIM IN THREE BOARDS

Already Named to Enter the New Haven Board to Represent Additional Pennsylvania Interest.

From the election yesterday of T. De Witt Cuyler as a Director of the New York, Ontario & Western, to succeed the late Charles S. Whelan, the inference was drawn in the financial district that the Pennsylvania Railroad had obtained some voice in the management of that road, which is controlled by the New York, New Haven & Hartford.

Mr. Cuyler is a Director of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and was recently named as the Director who would represent the Pennsylvania on the New Haven board when the recent understanding was reached by which the Pennsylvania, after having increased its holdings of New Haven stock from $1,000,000 to $6,000,000, was allowed an additional representative.

At the Ontario & Western offices it was said that Mr. Cuyler had been elected a Director as an individual and not as a representative of the Pennsylvania Railroad. It was nevertheless considered significant in the financial district that the choice of the New Haven for a new Director of the Ontario & Western should fall upon one so closely identified with the Pennsylvania.

That the Pennsylvania Railroad should be allowed to exert an influence in Ontario & Western affairs was considered yesterday as a natural development, in view of the close relationship which has long existed between the New Haven and the Pennsylvania having been accentuated lately, not only by the increase in the Pennsylvania's holdings of New Haven stock, but also by the traffic arrangements which have been entered into between the two systems in connection with the New York City extension of the Pennsylvania and the construction of a line connecting the Pennsylvania and New Haven systems for the joint use of the two roads.

The relationship of these two systems in recent years has led to a belief in the financial district in the likelihood of a still more intimate association between them.

The acquisition of the Ontario & Western by the New Haven proved very distasteful to the New York Central, and an effort was made at one time by the Central to acquire from the New Haven the interest which the latter had purchased in the Ontario & Western.

When the New Haven entered upon its campaign for the control of the Boston & Maine, negotiations were undertaken by the New York Central which resulted in its obtaining an option on the New Haven's majority holdings of Ontario & Western, subject to the success of the New Haven's plan to get the Boston & Maine. This option expired before the legal entanglements which surrounded the New Haven's acquisition of the Boston & Maine were straightened out, and nothing came of the New York Central's proposal.

Defunct Coal Company Attached.

An attachment for $4,500 against the Pennsylvania, Beech Creek and Eastern Coal Company of 17 Battery Place was served by the Sheriff's office yesterday. It was obtained by Catherine S. McKenna, who asserts that she purchased $5,000 bonds of the company at $90 in February, 1907, on representations made in a prospectus which she alleges were untrue, and that her securities are worthless. The company leased for 999 years the properties of the Pennsylvania Coal and Coke Company, and in August, 1908, a receiver for this company was appointed. The Pennsylvania, Beech Creek and Eastern Coal Company since has been liquidated.

FINE WEATHER FOR CROPS.

Department of Agriculture Tells of Good Conditions Last Week.

WASHINGTON, June 28.—Good crop-growing weather throughout the country prevailed during the week ended yesterday, according to The National Weekly Weather Bulletin of the Department of Agriculture. It says:

A general summary of the weather for the past week shows the continuation of warm and dry weather throughout the corn and Winter wheat growing States. The rainfall, though light, was generally sufficient for present needs, excepting in scattered localities, and the warm weather was very beneficial to growing vegetation, which has made rapid progress under the favorable weather of the past two weeks.

In the States of the Spring wheat section some improvement is due to timely rains that occurred in the more southern portions of the district. The change from the high temperatures of the latter part of last and the first of the present week to cooler weather about the middle of the week gave some relief, but high temperatures are again prevailing, and practically no rainfall has occurred over the more northern portions, especially in North Dakota and the northern portions of Minnesota and Wisconsin. Rain in abundance is needed in nearly all portions of the district.

Along the Atlantic Coast much needed warmth, sunshine, and drier weather continued, and satisfactory progress was made in all agricultural pursuits. In the cotton belt showers were of frequent occurrence, and it was slightly too cloudy and wet in some sections, but over most of the important cotton growing sections the weather was generally favorable.

Some good rains occurred in the western portions of the great plains States, but it is generally becoming too dry along the entire eastern slope of the Rocky Mountains. To the west of the Rockies temperatures were generally favorable, but it is becoming very dry on the ranges, especially in the central and southern portions, where the rainfall has been unusually deficient and much damage has resulted. Irrigation water is holding out well in the northern portions, but in the central and southern sections the streams are getting low.

The week was unusually free from destructive storms of any kind.

WILDING BEATS WRIGHT.

American Loses Final Match in All-England Tennis.

WIMBLEDON, England, June 28.—A. F. Wilding, the New Zealand crack, beat Beals C. Wright of Boston in the final of the all-comers singles in the all-England lawn tennis championship to-day, 4—6, 4—6, 6—4, 6—2, 6—3.

It was a splendid, hard-fought match. Wright, who wore spiked shoes not usually permitted in the championship play here, outclassed his opponent both in service and volleying during the early part of the contest and won the first two sets handily. Thereafter he tired perceptibly.

Wilding's longer reach served him in good stead and superior playing at the base line enabled him to snatch victory which at one time seemed to be in the grasp of the American.

Wilding's victory to-day gives him the right to challenge the holder, A. W. Gore, for the championship of Great Britain.

WESTWARD A FAST YACHT.

Emperor William Sees His Meteor Beaten Again by American Boat.

KIEL, Germany, June 28.—The American schooner Westward, owned by Alexander S. Cochrane of New York and sailed by Capt. Charles Barr, continues the winning of racing laurels. To-day she won the schooner race to Eckernforde, defeating the Germania, Hamburg, and Meteor.

The Emperor was aboard the Meteor, which finished last. Ambassador Hill and his family followed the race in a steamer launch.

By her victory to-day the Westward captured the Prince Henry Cup and the Weydekamp Cup.

In Class A 2 the Comet was the winner. Winners in other classes were as follows: 14 M, Sophie Elizabeth; 12 M, Magda VIII.; 10 M, Telca; 9 M, Ariadne II.; 8 M, Woge IV.

The races were sailed in a 16-knot breeze.

Vanderbilt's Ripolin First.

PARIS, June 28.—The Prix d'Aigremont, a selling event of $600, distance one mile and four and one-half furlongs, was run at Maisons-Laffitte to-day and won by W. K. Vanderbilt's Ripolin. In the Prix d'Essai des Pouliches, for two-year-old fillies, of $1,000, distance four furlongs, Frank J. Gould's Jarretierre finished third.

THE COMMODITIES MARKETS.

Excitement continues in the wheat market, prices advancing to new high levels, and final prices were near the best. The Minneapolis and Winnipeg markets again led the advance. Prices there were up 2c to 3c a bushel, and the Minneapolis September showed a gain of 19⅝c from the low point of about two weeks ago. There was no rain anywhere, either in the American or Canadian Northwest. Temperatures continued high, and damage reports continued of a sensational character. Some relief, however, is admitted in parts of Minnesota and South Dakota, and limited portions of North Dakota, but it is claimed that the relief has been comparatively limited in area. Conservative estimates are from 15 to 20 per cent. damage, and radical estimates of much more serious conditions. The Government weekly report did not indicate as severe damage as private advices claimed. Conditions in the Winter wheat belt, while not unfavorable, showed a little interruption in harvesting on account of the showers. Reports as to the yield of Winter wheat are very encouraging, and advices of better results than expected at the beginning of the month are numerous. Bradstreet's visible showed a big decrease, 1,869,000 bushels in the United States, 2,237,000 bushels in America, and 4,037,000 in the world's visible, against a decrease last year of 6,816,000 bushels. Advices from Manitoba were quite pessimistic, although the weather conditions there have been more favorable than in the American Northwest. Cash wheat was nominal, with prices materially above an export basis. No. 2 red was quoted at $1.08 to arrive, cost, insurance, and freight, and $1.10 free on board; No. 1 Northern Spring, $1.25½; No. 2 hard Winter, $1.11.

The corn market was only about steady at the best. Prices opened at a fractional advance, but there was soon evidence of selling, owing to the favorable weather conditions throughout the leading States. Showers were reported in a number of the important corn States, and the crop is making excellent progress. Bradstreet's visible showed a decrease of 440,000 bushels. The close was at a slight change. Cash corn was nominal, with No. 2 68¼c in elevator, 67¾c free on board.

Oats were irregular and rather unsettled. The market was divided in sentiment. The showers the past two days through the Central West and Missouri Valley have been very favorable, but the weather is still dry in the Northwest, and the crop there is deteriorating. Bradstreet's visible decreased 195,000 bushels. Cash oats were quiet, with natural whites quoted 45c to 47½c; white clipped, 46½c to 49c.

Provisions were dull and heavy, with final prices at the lowest. There was a very limited trade early, but as the day advanced there was more pressure and support was lacking. Live hogs were lower.

COTTON.

The cotton market was fairly active at the opening, then dull and featureless the balance of the day. There was considerable selling at the start on the weakness of the English cables, favorable weather, and somewhat larger notices than expected. Support was lacking at the opening, but later there was some support, and prices showed a partial recovery. The market seems to be without special tendency or special feature. There is a disposition to wait further crop developments. The special installments on crop conditions which have been given out by a local paper have in the main been favorable. There has been disposition to look for improvement in the crop conditions compared with the 1st of June. The average tendency in the crop conditions during June is toward a slight loss. This shows that the crop, although late, is slowly making headway toward improvement, and in that respect the situation is an encouraging one, but, with the recognized lateness of the crop and the slow developments over a major portion of the belt, favorable conditions are needed for the balance of the season. The crop promises to mature over an extremely long period. With the first bale of the season already in New York and sold, and cotton in other sections very backward, the situation is unusual. The weather and crop bulletin for the week was looked upon as somewhat of a stand-off, and did not seem to have much effect.

New York spot market: Spot cotton quiet, 5 points decline. Middling uplands, 14.95c; middling Gulf, 15.20c.

Example No. 30
Our scrap books, which are open for inspection, contain copies of all bond circulars issued by us during the past 20 years. An investigation of prices and offerings affords comparison with the price changes of active 4% bonds. The latter have declined, whereas our bonds in most cases show notable advances, and meantime our clients have enjoyed large incomes with perfect safety.

NEW LOWLEVELSAT OPENING

After Early Break Irregular Recovery Runs to Close—North Dakota Wheat Still Suffers—The Rubber Boom.

A further sharp decline in prices shortly after the opening of the stock market yesterday brought quotations for a score or more of active and conspicuous shares to the lowest levels of the year. When this creation of new low records had been accomplished the pressure so insistently applied to the market since early in Monday's session was rather promptly removed and the rest of the day given over to an irregular recovery which at the close had not progressed quite far enough to make good all the earlier losses. The opening break, noteworthy in St. Paul, which touched 119; Atchison, which dipped below par for the first time since it has been a 6 per cent. issue, and Union Pacific, which sold at 165 in spite of its 10 per cent. dividend, was readily accounted for by the presence of an accumulation of over-night selling orders from people either embarrassed or made fearful by Monday's abrupt fall. The causes for that fall continue obscure, save for the part played in it by professional speculators operating on the short side of the market, and equally difficult to comprehend was the sudden lifting of the selling pressure after the opening break yesterday. There appears to have been no great enlargement of the short interest on Monday, for at the close of that session, as was also true at the end of business yesterday, trustworthy observers on the floor of the Stock Exchange reported a very modest borrowing demand. Presumably short sales were covered on the way down on Monday, while some of the impetus in the recovery in the late session yesterday may have come from short covering. All in all, therefore, the factors governing the market for these rather excited trading sessions may fairly be described as mainly technical with the permissible inference that there has been going forward a steady reduction of large speculatively held lines of securities, somewhat after the manner noted in the two preceding stock market breaks of the current year.

The interest of the financial community again centred in the news from the crop country, and this with the exception of the unfavorable advices from North Dakota was entirely satisfactory. The Government's weekly weather report noted sufficient rainfall and excellent growing condition over the cotton, Winter wheat, and corn districts, and it also asserted that relief had been brought to large areas in the Spring wheat country by recent rains and lower temperatures. The situation in North Dakota is distinctly unsatisfactory, so much so that President Earling of the St. Paul in a dispatch to the New York office of that road yesterday predicted no more than a 50 per cent. Spring wheat yield for the State.

Some reflection of the liquidation under way in the stock market is to be found in the local money market, although bankers still express themselves as so uncertain over the situation in the West both as regards crop and money that a rather close rein on credits is in sight for some time to come. To the Sub-Treasury the banks made another heavy loss, bringing the total since Friday last to above $3,000,000 as against $6,000 in the same period a week ago. London cables described money there as continuously easy, but that market still has on its hands the "rubber boom," upon which a rather significant sidelight was thrown by the news from Shanghai yesterday that the regular settlement there had been made impossible by the position of the speculation in rubber shares and that many failures were expected.

METAL MARKET REPORTS.

At the Metal Exchange yesterday trading continued dull, with an irregular tendency. Copper was a shade lower for deliveries to September, while tin improved ⅝c. Lead and spelter were unchanged.

On the Metal Exchange in London yesterday spot copper at the close showed a gain of 1s 3d from the opening quotation of the day, but a decline of 3s 9d from Monday's closing prices. Futures at the final also showed an advance of 1s 3d over the initial prices, and likewise a decline from Monday's closing figures of 2s 6d. The market finished quiet, closing quotations ruling at: Spot, £54 7s 6d; futures, £55 1s 3d.

Spanish pig lead was steady and unchanged at £12 15s. Pig tin ended firm, with both spot and future deliveries up 10s, spot being quoted at £148 15s and futures £149 12s 6d. Spelter was steady and unchanged at £22 5s. Cleveland warrants were quoted at 48s 9d, a decline of 1½d.

The closing bid and asked prices for copper and other metals for spot delivery on the New York Metal Exchange yesterday compare as follows with those of Monday:

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

PHILADELPHIA, June 28.—The continued weakness of the New York stock market exercised a depressing effect upon the purely local list in this city. A quick drop of 3 points in Electric Storage Battery was about the widest recession recorded, which was due chiefly to lack of demand, as the offerings were merely small lots for the most part. The recent heaviness in Storage Battery stock is rightly or wrongly attributed by the Street to the liquidation of a line of from 4,000 to 5,000 shares held for many years by Thomas F. Ryan. Lehigh Valley got down below 100, and the warrants, after opening up, slipped back about a point. Rapid Transit receded fractionally and so did United Gas Improvement, but the Tonopahs held firm, and Philadelphia Electric actually advanced a small fraction.

CHICAGO STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 28.—On the local Exchange most of the trading was in Sears-Roebuck common, which broke from 156¼ to 153¾, but later rallied to 156. The weakness in the New York market, based on crop damage reports, appears to have disconcerted certain plans for a bull campaign in Sears shares. Swift & Co. stock also was weak to-day on selling attributed to a report that the packing company's earnings in the last eight months have fallen off. Metropolitan "L" preferred ruled slightly higher.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

FEW CLOSE AT LOWEST

Copper Shares Generally Recover from Recessions—Cobalt Issues Fractionally Off.

Curb stocks went lower in many instances yesterday, although at the close there were a number of recoveries. Chino Copper sold 1,000 between 11 and 10¾, closing at the low price, which was ⅛ below the opening. Giroux sold 1,500 from 6⅞ to 6¾, which was the closing price. Greene-Cananea, which reported sales of 3,000, sold from 7½ to 7⅛, but recovered to 7⅝, which was the closing price. Miami and Butte Coalition were the exceptions to the general trend, and closed ⅛ above the opening. Nipissing and Kerr Lake each lost ⅛.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Tuesday.

There was a scurry of shorts to cover in the closing five minutes of trading on the Consolidated Stock Exchange, with many prominent stocks then touching their highest prices for the day, in some cases a fraction above the top figures reached on the New York Stock Exchange. Generally stocks were in free supply throughout the day, further liquidation due to the exhaustion of margins and the reaching of stop-loss orders countering upon buying to retire bearish commitments. Total sales were 136,140 shares divided among fifty-eight issues.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Railroad Crop News.

The news which the heads of the Western railroads sent to their New York offices yesterday regarding the condition of the crops, including the wheat crop in the Northwest, was by no means as gloomy as were some of the individual crop reports which were telegraphed to Wall Street. The Union Pacific crop report covering the last week stated that the condition of the crops as a whole had been fully maintained, and that the condition was above normal, except in Texas, where rains were needed to prevent damage. Even in that State, however, it was said that rain would still make the outlook as good in that State as in the others traversed by the Union Pacific lines. Even more interest was taken in a report telegraphed by President Earling of the St. Paul, for his road reaches the very States whence the reports of greatest damage to the wheat crop have come. The present indications, after the rains which occurred at the close of last week are, he said, that South Dakota will produce about 70 per cent. of an average crop, and North Dakota about 50 per cent., while Minnesota as a whole promises about 70 per cent. of an average crop. At the very time that these advices from President Earling reached the financial district dispatches were arriving from some Western points saying that the entire wheat crop in the two Dakotas had been destroyed.

Rubber Speculation in Shanghai.

No little interest was aroused yesterday in a published cable dispatch from Shanghai that as a result of the speculation there in rubber shares it had been found impossible to carry through the regular settlement on the Exchange, and that in consequence it was feared that many failures would result. The craze for trading in the stocks of rubber companies which reached so great a height in London was by no means confined to that centre, but made its appearance elsewhere as well. Shanghai was among the places which figured from time to time in the cable dispatches, telling of the wild trading in rubber stocks, and now comes the sequel, so far as the Shanghai market is concerned in the failure of the settlement on the Exchange and the fear that individuals are so far involved in the rubber speculation that they will not be able to meet their commitments.

Possible Dividend Reductions.

The further decline in St. Paul yesterday and in Atchison, both stocks reaching new low records for the year and the latter selling under par for the first time in a long while, was the basis of a discussion of the possibility of a reduction in the dividend rates on one or both of these stocks. St. Paul is paying 7 per cent. and Atchison 6 per cent. At the prices at which the stocks sold yesterday both yield about 6 per cent. on the market price. It is not considered at all certain that either of these two roads will cut their dividends, but the heavy declines in these as well as in others, shortly before the time when the Directors of these two roads will meet to act on the dividends, has naturally raised inquiry in Wall Street regarding the continuance of the present dividend rates. The belief prevails in some quarters that the outcome of the efforts now being put forward by the railroads to raise their freight rates will eventually determine the question whether or not present dividend rates will be maintained. By the same token a good many people believe that the Directors of most roads will not feel like making any change in existing dividends until the rate question is settled one way or the other.

⁂

Wide Action in Pipe.

United States Cast Iron Pipe and Foundry preferred opened 2 points up yesterday, and promptly sold down from 60 to 49. The stock recovered to the opening price, after sales of more than 1,200 shares. The stock pays 6 per cent. dividends at present.

Textile Shares Sold Abroad.

The growing popularity of American railroad shares in European markets is apparently extending to the industrials. Rubber and copper shares obtained entrance to the Paris markets a couple of years ago, but until yesterday no one had heard of textile stocks selling in Europe. It was reported from Boston yesterday that the United States Worsted Company had sold $500,000 of 7 per cent. preferred stock to Paris bankers at par, less commission. No word was received of the amount of the commission, but it was said that the net price was about that at which shares are selling for now in New England. This sale, it was also said, is only the beginning of a number of transfers of American industrial stocks to the Paris market. The group of London and Paris bankers who put through this transaction are said to have $50,000,000 capital to be used in introducing American industrial shares abroad.

Patten's Word Confirmed.

James A. Patten said at the height of the excitement over the prospects of a corner in May cotton, before the Federal inquest had been started into the methods of the bull pool, that he was not committed to future crop options, either in cotton or grain, and that he was indifferent about July cotton. The first notices sent out yesterday for delivery of July cotton confirmed Mr. Patten's statement as far as it relates to cotton. J. S. Bache & Co., his brokers, were not the recipients of a single bale of July cotton for his account.

Bright Coins to be Scarce.

The Treasury stopped coining subsidiary silver coins a month or so ago, until the present surplus of used but passable pieces shall have been disposed of. A further handicap on the efforts of New York retailers with mint-new silver was announced yesterday, in a notice sent out by the Secretary of the Treasury to the effect that since no appropriation has been made for the transportation free of fractional and minor coinage in 1911, no one will be able to obtain small coins from the mints without paying transportation charges.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

Yesterday's Financial Happenings in London, Paris, and Berlin.

LONDON, June 28.—Money was plentiful and discount rates were easy to-day.

The weakness in Americans and Continental liquidation caused general heaviness during the early trading on the Stock Exchange. Home rails and rubber shares were supported in the afternoon, but the market closed uncertain and irregular.

American securities opened quiet and from ⅜ below to ¼ above parity. Covering caused a slight improvement, but New York selling soon carried the leaders down from one to two points. Then the market rebounded, but the support was withdrawn and the closing was weak and irregular.

Bar silver quiet, 24⅝d per ounce.

Money, 2½ per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 2¼ per cent.; for three months' bills 2⅛ per cent.

Gold premiums are quoted as follows: At Madrid, 7.20; at Lisbon, 7.

PARIS, June 28.—Unfavorable New York advices caused a heavy opening on the Bourse to-day. Prices were recovering at the closing.

BERLIN, June 28.—Trading was dull and prices were lower on the Boerse today.

Money, 3½ per cent.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, June 28.—Following the trend of the New York market, prices on the local Stock Exchange were lower again to-day. Amalgamated, Lake Copper, and North Butte each lost about a point on fairly large transactions, while the balance of the list is all fractionally lower. Toward the latter part of the afternoon the market showed a tendency to rally, and the close was steady.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Barton Sewell, Vice President of the American Smelting and Refining Company has sailed for Europe, to be gone several months.

W. C. Langley & Co. will open a branch office at the Oceanside Hotel, Magnolia, Mass., on July 5, under the management of Newell Bent.

The Kansas City, Fort Scott & Memphis Railroad Company, which is controlled by the St. Louis & San Francisco, has sold to the Drexel Company of Philadelphia a block of a little over $1,000,000 4 per cent. refunding bonds.

The Sheriff sold at auction yesterday 300 first mortgage bonds of the Daisy Mining and Milling Company for $500. They were sold under executions obtained against the company by Melvina Stephens for $37,738 and Robert E. Winterstein for $11,617.

The Stock Exchange has listed these securities: The New York, Susquehanna & Western Railroad Company of New Jersey, $3,500,000 Midland Railroad Company of New Jersey first mortgage bonds, extended at 5 per cent., due in 1940; the St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern Railway Company, $414,000 additional River and Gulf divisions first mortgage 4 per cent. bonds due in 1933; the Cuba Railroad Company, $2,510,000 additional first mortgage 5 per cent. bonds, due in 1952.

Acting on the assumption that July 1 coupons on the first refunding 4 per cent. mortgage bonds of the Buffalo & Susquehanna Railroad Company will not be paid, the committee representing the bondholders requests the deposit of bonds under the agreement of May 4 with the Equitable Trust Company of this city, the Gerard Trust Company of Philadelphia, the Old Colony Trust Company of Boston, or the Cleveland Trust Company of Cleveland. The committee has been increased from five to seven members, and to make up the number and fill one vacancy there have been elected Jacob S. Farlee, Charles Lathrop Pack, and Edward B. Smith.

SECURITY:
These bonds are the first obligation of George W. Jackson, Inc., and in addition are guaranteed as to the prompt payment of principal and interest by Mr. George W. Jackson. They are further secured by a first lien upon all of the property of the Company.

EARNINGS:
Net earnings for the last three years, $950,000, or, about 14 times the annual interest requirements of this issue of bonds.

BUSINESS OF THE COMPANY:
The business of this Company is general contracting, and throughout the West there is no larger or better known firm. They have been uniformly successful; their credit and reputation are most excellent.

GUARANTEE:
The bonds are unconditionally guaranteed by Mr. George W. Jackson, who has valuable interests outside of this Company.
We advise and recommend the purchase of these bonds in the strongest terms for the following reasons:
1. They are a first mortgage on valuable Chicago improved real estate, conservative value over $1,250,000.
2. They are personally and unconditionally guaranteed by Mr. George W. Jackson, a man of large resources and one of the best known and successful business men in the West.
3. The bonds mature serially, decreasing the debt each year, while the security remains the same.

BUFFALO & SUSQUEHANNA RAILROAD COMPANY

First Refunding Four Per Cent. Gold Mortgage Bonds.

To the Holders of Bonds of the Above Issue:

The number of the undersigned Committee having been increased from five to seven, and a vacancy having occurred, Messrs. Jacob S. Farlee, Charles Lathrop Pack, and Edward B. Smith have become members of the Committee, and Messrs. Simpson, Thacher & Bartlett of New York have been elected counsel.

The Committee has been informed that coupons on the above-named bonds maturing July 1st, 1910, will not be paid. Upon this default your interests require the prompt and careful determination of the action to be taken, in view of the existing lease to the Buffalo & Susquehanna Railway Company, under which payment of the principal and interest of your bonds is guaranteed, and in view of the existing receivership of the property of the lessee company in foreclosure proceedings. If it is determined to move the Trustee of your mortgage to institute foreclosure proceedings at once, the Trustee will undoubtedly require as a condition of bringing such proceedings appropriate indemnity, and may require a request on behalf of a large proportion of the bondholders.

These considerations lead the Committee to again bring the matter to the attention of such of you as have not already deposited your bonds, and suggest that they should promptly deposit them, under the deposit agreement dated May 4, 1910, with THE EQUITABLE TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK, 15 Nassau Street, New York City; GIRARD TRUST COMPANY, corner Broad and Chestnut Streets, Philadelphia; OLD COLONY TRUST COMPANY, 1 Court Street, Boston, or the CLEVELAND TRUST COMPANY, corner Euclid Avenue and Ninth Street, Cleveland. Transferable certificates of deposit will be issued for all bonds so deposited.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

$500,000 Deal in West Seventy-second Street, Including Tewksbury and Hoffman Estate Houses—Mrs. Pell Buys Matthews Mansion—Many Suburban Sales.

A return to its old-time activity characterized the realty market yesterday, and the west side contributed the big transactions of the day. Of chief interest was the sale, for close to $500,000, of a large plot belonging to the Charles F. Hoffman estate in West Seventy-second and Seventy-third Streets, including the residence of Congressman J. Van Vechten Olcott, together with the Seventy-second Street residence of the late Lewis G. Tewksbury, lately owned by the City Investing Company. Lewis G. Preston was the broker in the sale, which includes a seventy-five-foot frontage in Seventy-second Street and a plot immediately in the rear, froting 75 feet on Seventy-third Street. More details will be found in another column.

Mrs. Pell Buys Matthews House.

Mrs. Mary B. Pell is the buyer of the well-known Matthews mansion, on the northeast corner of Riverside Drive and Ninetieth Street, the resale of which by Franklin Pettit, who took title to the house last week, was noted yesterday. Mr. Pettit acquired the house, which occupies a plot 110.8 feet on the drive by 159.9 feet, from John B. Russell for about $500,000. It was held at $600,000, but it is understood that Mrs. Pell obtained it for slightly over $500,000. Slawson & Hobbs were the brokers.

Mrs. Pell lives at 6 East Thirty-sixth Street. She owns the adjoining Riverside Drive property, a dwelling and plot, 28.9 by 104, so that with the purchase Mrs. Pell controls a corner property fronting 139.6 feet on Riverside drive and 159.9 feet on Ninetieth Street, which comprises one of the finest remaining apartment house sites on Riverside Drive.

The house is said to have cost over $200,000. It was erected about twenty years ago by John Matthews, a manufacturer of soda fountains. He sold it to John B. Russell, who is said to have spent nearly $100,000 in altering and renovating.

West Side Residences Sold.

Charles E. Schuyler & Co. have sold for John B. Roach the four-story and basement dwelling 63 Riverside Drive, on lot 21.3½ by 91.4 and irregular, between Seventy-eighth and Seventy-ninth Streets.

Slawson & Hobbs have sold for William H. Chapman to a client for ocupancy the three-story and basement high-stoop dwelling 116 West Eighty-fifth Street, 17.6 by 56 by 102.2.

M. Edgar Fitz-Gibbon and George A. Hampton & Brother have sold for Mrs. Louisa Hanson of Brooklyn to Leopold Saalsburg 491 Amsterdam Avenue, a five-story flat, with stores, on plot 25 by 100. The consideration was close to $50,000.

Hancock Court Sold.

Earle & Calhoun have sold for the Michael E. Paterno Realty Company the six-story apartment house known as Hancock Court, on the northwest corner of 124th Street and St. Nicholas Avenue, the plot being 100 by 118. It adjoins the West End Theatre, and has been bought as an investment by the Cabot Real Estate Company.

$235,100 for 59th Street Plot.

The feature of the auction market yesterday in the Vesey Street Salesroom was the purchase by Judson Lawson for $235,100 of the threefour-story tenements and stores at 15 to 19 East Fifty-ninth Street, fronting 75 feet on the street and 100.5 feet deep. The property was sold under foreclosure to satisfy liens of over $218,000. Joseph P. Day was the auctioneer.

Colby Buys Einstein House.

Henry D. Winans & May have sold 39 West Fifty-seventh Street for the executors of the estate of David L. Einstein to Brainbridge Colby. The house is 33.4 feet wide and contains a large amount of valuable carvings and ornamental decorations. It has been for sale at $300,000, but a concession from this price has been made.

Mr. Colby purchased last month, from the same brokers, the adjoining house, 37 West Fifty-seventh Street.

Quick Resale of 53d Street Flats.

William P. Jones & Son have sold for David Crawford to Philip G. Becker, M. D., the two five-story twenty-family brick and brownstone apartment houses 413 and 415 West Fifty-third Street, each on a lot 25 by 87 by 100.5, and in conjunction with Jacob J. Tabolt have resold the same for Dr. Becker to F. R. Schmidt for investment.

Deal in East Forty-eighth Street.

John S. Barnes is reported to have sold the four-story residence at 22 East Forty-eighth Street, on a lot 25 by 100.5. The adjoining house, No. 24, together with the southwest corner of the same street and Madison Avenue, is owned by James A. Farley.

Wright Barclay has sold for Mrs. Francisco Rohmann to H. F. Rossmeyer 219 East Twenty-fifth Street, a three-story dwelling, on lot 25 by 98.9.

The Taylor estate has sold 103 West Twenty-eighth Street, a three-story and basement altered dwelling, on lot 23 by 98.9. The adjoining northwest corner of Sixth Avenue is owned by Mandelbaum & Lewine.

Increases City Hall Place Holdings.

The Ruland & Whiting Company has sold for James Hennesey to Harry S. Hallenbeck 28 and 30 City Hall Place, two six-story and basement buildings, on a plot 48 by 87. The property adjoins Mr. Hallenbeck's holdings at the corner of Pearl and Park Streets, upon which the Hallenbeck Building is situated.

Greenwich Street Plot for Business.

James H. Cruikshank has sold to the Greenwich Investing Company, Hyman Kantor, President, 759 Greenwich Street, a two-and-one-half-story dwelling, on lot 21 by 70. The owners will alter the house into a four-story and basement business building. Mr. Cruikshank has furnished the new owners with a building loan.

Edgecombe Ave. House in Trade.

Williams & Grodginsky have sold 191 Edgecombe Avenue, a three-story and basement dwelling, on lot 17 by 100. In exchange Williams & Grodginsky take 401 East Seventy-eighth Street, a five-story tenement, on plot 30 by 52.

Walter M. Wechsler has purchased the property from 1,535 to 1,543 Hoe Avenue in the Bronx.

Frederick C. Brown is the buyer of the three-story stable 250 West Sixty-ninth Street, sold recently for George A. Kessler through Frederick Zittel & Sons.

Big Sale in Queens.

One of the largest deals in Queens for some time is the purchase of the Simonson Realty Company's holdings at Winfield by the Queens Boulevard Realty Company for $65,000. The property is situated on Thompson Avenue, Shell Road, and Woodside Avenue, and is one of the choicest tracts in Winfield. C. Herotberger, Vice President and Secretary of the buying company, conducted the negotiations of the sale.

Brooklyn Sales.

E. T. Newman & Co. have sold the four-story American basement dwelling at 567 Fifth Street, between Eighth and Ninth Avenues, for the Cummins Realty Company. The consideration was $20,000.

Dr. Nathan E. Broder has taken title to 321 East Sixth Street from Wilhelm Becker. The new owner will occupy the premises as his office and residence.

The Leonard Moody Real Estate Company sold to Albert H. Martini a two-story dwelling, on the north side of Avenue U, 20 feet east of West Fifth Street, on lot 18 by 100.

Fine Roslyn Estate Resold.

S. Osgood Pell & Co., representing the owner, and Benjamin Bernstein, representing the buyer, have resold the Baltazzi estate at Roslyn, L. I., adjoining the Clarence Mackay and Lloyd Bryce residences. It is understood the purchaser will occupy the place. He will practically rebuild the old mansion and beautify the entire property, which is one of the finest in that neighborhood.

Suburban Sales.

Steven B. Ayres has sold to John H. Wright Lots 117, 118 and 119, Vernonwood, Mount Vernon. This property is located on the south side of East Third Street, near the proposed station of the New York, Westchester, & Boston Railroad.

Joseph P. Day has sold to a syndicate of Western bankers property on Thomson Hill, extending from Hill Street to Hulst Avenue, for an amount aggregating $250,000.

Patrick J. Healy of Healy's restaurant has purchased from Thomas Holden No. 8 South Lexington Avenue, White Plains. The price was $25,000.

Harvey Bloomer has sold for the Woodmere Realty Company ten lots on Crescent Avenue and Maple Street to Silas R. Moore, who will construct on the site a residence and garage.

$500,000 Madison Avenue Loan.

The Associate Owners, through Venetto F. Pelletreau & Co., have obtained a loan of $500,000 from the Title Guarantee and Trust Company on the property flanking the northeast corner of Madison Avenue and Thirty-first Street, where a twelve-story store and loft building is to be erected, from plans by J. B. Snook's Sons. The loan is for three years, at 6 per cent. during construction, and 5 per cent. thereafter. The building has been leased to the Lebaron Real Holding Company for twenty-one years, with renewals.

Office Building on Vesey Street.

John T. Underwood, who recently purchased the property at the northeast corner of Vesey and Church Streets, 52.5 feet on Vesey and 76 feet on Church Street, is having plans prepared by Goldwin, Starrett & Van Vleck for an eighteen-story office building to cost about $400,000. Construction will begin shortly, and it is expected that the building will be finished by April 1, 1911.

Leases New Vestry Street Building.

Samuel Weil has contracted for the erection of an eight-story fireproof building on the property recently purchased by him at auction at 15 Vestry Street, running through to 36 Laight Street, and has leased the building for a term of years at an aggregate rental of $100,000.

Gramercy Park Apartment.

The Edward Corning Company has just received the general contract to erect the twelve-story co-operative apartment house on the plot, 60 by 123 feet, at the northeast corner of Lexington Avenue and Twenty-first Street. The site overlooks Gramercy Park and the house, which is soon to be taken down, was formerly occupied by the late Cyrus W. Field and later by Henry W. Poor. The plans have been prepared by Herbert Lucas.

The same company recently secured the contract for the new apartment designed by W. A. Boring at 520 Park Avenue.

Hudson Street Lofts

Plans were filed yesterday for two new mercantile structures at the lower end of Hudson Street. One was for a six-story brick warehouse, to be erected at the southwest corner of Hudson and Beach Streets, with a frontage of 74.6 feet on Hudson Street and 100 feet on Beach Street. The Protestant Society for Promoting Religion and Learning in the State of New York is the owner, and the cost is placed at $120,000 by the architect, Charles C. Haight. The building has already been leased by Lamont, Corliss & Co. The second is to be an eight-story mercantile building at the southwest corner of Hudson and Laight Streets, for Frank E. Habicht and Herman W. Braun, fronting 51.1 feet on Hudson Street by 100 feet on Laight Street. G. E. J. Pistor is the architect, and the cost will be $70,000.

Home for Roosevelt Nurses.

Plans have been filed by R. H. Robertson & Son for a six-story nurses' home for Roosevelt Hospital, to be built on the south side of Fifty-ninth Street, 88.9 feet east of Tenth Avenue. The façade of the building will be of brick, with trimmings of terra cotta, with a frontage of 154.10 feet and a depth of 54 feet, with an extension, and will be fireproof. It will cost $120,000.

Alter 14th Street Stores.

Plans have been filed for making improvements to the four four and five story stores and showrooms at 48 and 50 West Fourteenth Street and 47 to 53 West Thirteenth Street. The plans call for the removal of the party wall between the Thirteenth and Fourteenth Street buildings on the first story and putting in new show windows, at a cost of $20,000, for H. Finkelstein Brothers, who recently took over the lease of the property.

New Loft for 32d Street.

Maximilian Zipkes, architect, has been commissioned to draw plans for a twelve-story loft building on a plot 93 by 100 in East Thirty-second Street, between First and Second Avenues, for the Frambo Realty Company. Mr. Zipkes completed an eight-story loft building for the same company about a year ago. This second loft building is estimated to cost about $200,000. The building will be ready for occupancy Feb. 1, 1911.

Receivers of Rents.

Justice Giegerich of the Supreme Court has appointed Adolph Stern receiver of the rents of 214 Avenue A, a tenement, pending a suit brought by Mathilde Muller against Samuel Rosenberg and others to foreclose a second mortgage of $6,800.

A deficiency judgment for $3,593 has been entered against Denis M. Sheerin, real estate operator, in favor of John A. Weeks and Benjamin F. Golden, arising from the foreclosure sale of 204, 206, and 208 East Ninety-seventh Street, tenements.

Notes.

Bryan L. Kennelly will sell at auction at the Vesey Street salesroom to-day at 12 o'clock 29 Cooper Square, at the junction of the Bowery, Third and Fourth Avenues, and diagonally across from Cooper Union. The property consists of a three-story and basement brick business building, with two stores on a lot 24 by 100.

Albert B. Ashforth has leased the thirteenth and fourteenth floors of the new Cambria Building, Madison Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street, to the Rail Joint Company, for a term of years at an aggregate rental of $125,000.

Daniel H. Renton & Son have leased for Michael Fleck the private dwelling 628 West 147th Street, to Homer A. Reid for a term of years.

Mooyer & Marston, in conjunction with Samuel Willetts and W. Burling Cocks, negotiated the sale to Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., of the farm of fifty-five acres on the Glen Cove Road at Jericho, L. I. The property, which was sold for the estate of William G. Park, lies between the country estates of M. S. Burrill and Ralph Ellis.

Harvey Bloomer has rented the three-story building, 120 and 122 West 125th Street, for A. E. Piser to Liberman Brothers.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, June 28.—A disturbance that has moved to the Canadian Maritime Provinces from the St. Lawrence Valley caused showers during the last twenty-four hours in the Middle Atlantic States, New England, and the Ohio Valley.

A general increase in temperature is reported from the Ohio Valley and the Southwest, and the warm wave prevails with unchanged intensity in the Upper Mississippi Valley.

The warm wave will cause a general though gradual change to warmer weather in the East during Wednesday and Thursday.

Winds along the New England Coast will be light westerly; Middle Atlantic Coast, light variable; South Atlantic Coast, light to moderate southerly.

Steamships departing Wednesday for European ports will have light to moderate westerly winds and fair weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND THURSDAY.

Eastern New York and New England—Fair Wednesday. Thursday, fair and warmer; light west winds.

New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania—Generally fair, with rising temperature, Wednesday and Thursday; light, variable winds, mostly west.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

3 A. M.	69	71	4 P. M.	84	81
6 A. M.	70	68	6 P. M.	79	81
9 A. M.	73	70	9 P. M.	76	76
12 M.	80	75	12 P. M.	74	75

This thermometer is 108 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 74; for the corresponding date last year it was 77; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 71.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 68; at 8 P. M. it was 78. Maximum temperature 81 degrees at 4 P. M., minimum 67 degrees at 5 A. M. Humidity 84 per cent. at 8 A. M., 63 per cent. at 8 P. M.

BUSINESS TROUBLES

JAYSEE CORSET COMPANY.—Schedules in bankruptcy of the Jaysee Corset Company of Grand and Orchard Streets show liabilities of $24,521 and nominal assets of $42,300, consisting of stock, $27,000; machines and fixtures, $12,000; horse and wagon, $300, and cash in the hands of the receiver, $3,000. Among the creditors are Henry Krauss, $1,851, secured; M. Cohn & Co., $1,178, and A. Steinam, $1,277.

THE ERKINS COMPANY.—The Erkins Company, manufacturer and dealer in garden decorations at 305 Madison Avenue, has made an assignment to Timothy F. Fay, and a petition in bankruptcy has also been filed against it by these creditors: Oscar Bellick, $468; Riviere Brass and Bronze Company, $25, and John J. McKiernan, Jr., $26. The company was incorporated with a capital stock of $75,000, which was increased to $100,000 in February, 1909.

CHARLES FRANKEL.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Charles Frankel, dealer in men's furnishing goods at 107 Eighth Avenue, by these creditors: Alexander M. Shafer, $500; Abrams & Marcus, $92, and Cohen & Belmont, $49. It was alleged that he is insolvent, and made preferential payment of $150 to a creditor. He began business in February, 1908. The liabilities are $9,500, and the assets are $3,500. Judge Hough appointed Charles L. Brookheim receiver, and authorized him to continue business for fifteen days.

WOLF BLOOM.—Judge Hough has denied a discharge from bankruptcy to Wolf Bloom, real estate operator of 17 Catharine Street, formerly a dealer in cloaks and suits, on the ground that he concealed assets from his Trustee. He filed a petition in bankruptcy on March 18, 1909, with liabilities of $4,444, of which $3,989 was a deficiency judgment. Before filing the petition he disposed of his cloak business to his father-in-law, and transferred three pieces of real estate, one of which went to his brother-in-law. He testified before Referee William H. Willis that his father-in-law, who was a creditor for $500, came and took the cloak business, but the bankrupt continued to act as manager at $11 a week, and the referee found that the transaction was merely a scheme to conceal property from creditors. In regard to the real estate transfer to the brother-in-law the referee decided that it was made only as security for present and future indebtedness, and that the bankrupt was the actual owner when he filed the petition, and failed to include it in his assets.

NEW YORK DRY GOODS EXCHANGE.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against the New York Dry Goods Exchange, dry goods commission at 286 Church Street, by Myers & Goldsmith for these creditors: Fred Butterfield & Co., $5,342; William Whitman & Co., $4,104, and H. A. Caesar & Co., $798. It was alleged that the corporation is insolvent, made preferential payments of $2,500, and transferred merchandise and accounts of $2,500. The corporation was incorporated on March 15, 1893, with a capital stock of $35,000. James B. Fox was President and Treasurer. The financial statement of the corporation on Feb. 1 last showed assets of $120,846, liabilities of $75,004, and surplus and undivided profits of $11,242. Myers & Goldsmith stated yesterday that the liabilities now are about $100,000. The assets appear to consist of merchandise, $30,000; accounts, $40,000, and cash in bank, $6,500. Judge Hough appointed Holmas J. Corbett receiver, with a bond of $10,000, and authorized him to continue business for twenty days. Mr. Corbett was appointed at the request of nine creditors, whose claims amount to $49,935, among them being the Importers and Traders' National Bank, $22,642; Kaufmann, Brill & Co., $4,427; H. B. Claflin Company, $2,289, and J. P. Stevens & Co., $3,722.

BANKRUPTCY NOTICES.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, Southern District of New York.—In the matter of WEINSTEIN & MAHER CLOTHING COMPANY, Bankrupt.—No. 10,296.

On reading and filing the annexed offer of Morris Meyers, dated June 21, 1910, and the annexed petition of Thomas J. Bannin, Receiver, and sufficient reason appearing therefor, it is Ordered, that the bankrupt herein, and all of its creditors be, and they hereby are, directed to show cause at a Stated Term of this Court, to be held on the 5th day of July, 1910, in the Court House in the Post Office Building, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, at 10:30 o'clock in the forenoon, or as soon thereafter as counsel can be heard, why all of the assets of the above-named bankrupt which have come into or now are in the possession of the Receiver, including merchandise, money, receivables, fixtures, leaseholds, and all other real and personal property should not be sold, transferred, and assigned in accordance with the terms and provisions of said offer, and in accordance with such further and other directions as this Court may fix, and all such creditors are directed then and there to show cause why said offer should not be accepted, or why such other and further relief in the premises as may be just and proper should not be granted. It is further Ordered that due, sufficient, and complete service of this petition and order to show cause and the annexed offer shall be made, as follows: By mailing a copy of said papers to the said creditors to their addresses, as the same appear on the books of the Weinstein & Maher Clothing Company, such mailing to be on or before June 27th, 1910.

Copy of this order to show cause shall further be published in The New York Times on June 27th, 1910, and July 2d, 1910.

Dated New York, June 23, 1910.

C. M. HOUGH, U. S. D. J.

Adjourned to July 6th, 1910, same hour. Advertisement to be corrected and published June 29th and July 2d.

GENTLEMEN'S SECOND-HAND CLOTHING. By a custom of the land, the upper ten in Holland pay their tailors a certain yearly sum of money, in return for which they receive all the clothing they need. These clothes, however, have to be returned WITHIN ONE YEAR, when new ones are issued. These returned suits, overcoats, all practically as good as new, made in American style of Al English woolen, are purchased by advertiser. Holland being too small to take all these goods, I want business connections in New York, who are in a position to buy these first-class suits, &c., which they can easily sell in New York at from 70% to 80% BELOW American prices. Splendid opportunity to make a handsome income out of this business. Dealers, in your own interest, write immediately to A495 Ricardo's Advertising Office, Amsterdam, Holland.

'WHITE SLAVE' TRADE IS NOT ORGANIZED

THE EVILS THAT DO EXIST

Male Associates of the Women the Chief—Closer Supervision of Picture Shows and Massage "Parlors" Advised.

Judge O'Sullivan filed with the clerk of General Sessions yesterday morning the "White Slave" presentment he had had under consideration since Thursday, and at noon formally discharged the Rockefeller Grand Jury from the investigation which he initiated by his charge of Jan. 3. The presentment as filed is word for word as it was prepared. The close of the proceedings was accompanied by pleasant remarks all around, and news of the general felicity was promptly telegraphed to District Attorney Whitman, who is attending the twentieth reunion of his class at Amherst.

The answer of the Grand Jury to the main question of the investigation is framed in these words:

"We have found no evidence of the existence in the County of New York of any organization or organizations, incorporated or otherwise, engaged as such in the traffic in women for immoral purposes, nor have we found evidence of an organized traffic in women for immoral purposes."

It was upon this point that Judge O'Sullivan enlarged when he made the remarks which marked the ending of the protracted inquiry. He made quite clear the part played in the work by George Kibbe Turner, the author of the article in McClure's Magazine, which started all the trouble.

"You had before you the author of the most scandalous attack upon this city," said the court. "He admitted under oath that his article was overstated and deceiving. He was compelled under oath to admit that he had no evidence (not even hearsay) to support his statements. He was examined by the District Attorney in person, and the people of this city ought to know that the District Attorney, while actuated by a desire to place before you all the legal evidence available in connection with your investigation, did not hesitate to compel those who had slandered the City of New York to retract the slanders, and did not hesitate to uncover the motives which inspired the attacks. Your answer to the main question is a merited rebuke to the slanderers of the cleanest great city of the world."

Inquiry Commission Advised.

The presentment reviews the sources from which the Grand Jury drew its information, and after discussing certain vicious phases of life in this city, closes with these recommendations:

1. That no effort be spared in bringing to justice the male parasites of immoral women. When the character and prevalence of these creatures are more fully realized and public sentiment aroused regarding them, the inadequate punishment now imposed should be increased and every legitimate means devised and put into execution to exterminate them.
2. That the existing laws be more rigidly enforced to safeguard the patrons of the moving picture shows, and that parents and guardians exercise more careful supervision over their children in connection with their attendance upon these shows.
3. That vigorous efforts be made to minimize the possibility of the Raines law hotel becoming a disorderly house, and that where necessary, proper supervision and inspection looking toward that end be provided.
4. That the so-called massage and manicure parlors be put under the control of the Health Department; that a license from this department be required for their operation; that certificates be granted to operators only by some approved medical authority, and that proper measures be taken to enforce these laws.
5. That the laws relating to immorality in apartment and tenement houses be rigidly enforced, and that the present laws be supplemented if necessary.
6. That a commission be appointed by the Mayor to make a careful study of the laws relating to and the methods of dealing with the social evil in the leading cities of this country and of Europe, with a view to devising the most effective means of minimizing the evil in this city.

Following the statement that the investigation had unearthed no organized traffic in women, the presentment proceeds to place on the records of the court a synopsis of what the investigators did find in looking for that organized traffic. The answer to the main question was made only after hearing many witnesses and making a final appeal, through the newspapers, to the public for any information on the subject. It is known that the wording of the document is due more than to any other one man to John D. Rockefeller, Jr., foreman of the Grand Jury. A reporter asked him after it was all over yesterday whether he had any statement to make.

"I have said all I can in the presentment," he said, "and I do not mind telling you that that was no easy task, that it meant days and days of hearing testimony and nights and nights of hard thinking."

The Presentment.

Here is the main part of the presentment:

"We have found no evidence of the existence in the County of New York of any organization or organizations, incorporated or otherwise, engaged as such in the traffic in women for immoral purposes, nor have we found evidence of an organized traffic in women for immoral purposes.

"It appears, on the other hand, from indictments found by us and from the testimony of witnesses that a trafficking in women does exist and is carried on by individuals acting for their own individual benefit, and that these persons are known to each other and are more or less informally associated.

"We have also found that associations and clubs, composed mainly or wholly of those profiting from vice, have existed, and that one such organization still exists. These associations and clubs are analogous to commercial bodies in other fields, which while not directly engaged in commerce are composed of individuals all of whom as individuals are so engaged.

"The 'incorporated syndicates' and 'international bands' referred to in published statements we find to be such informal relations as have just been spoken of, while the 'international headquarters,' 'clearing houses,' and pretentious 'clubhouses' mentioned are cafés or other so-called 'hangouts,' where people interested in the various branches of the business report. These and the houses are also referred to as 'markets.' The 'dealers' and 'operators' are the male companions of the women and the 'procurers,' the former being referred to as the 'retailer,' and the manager of houses as the 'wholesaler.'

Association of Evil Livers.

"The only association composed mainly or wholly of those profiting from vice, of the present existence of which we have evidence, is the New York Independent Benevolent Association, organized in the city in 1894 and incorporated in 1896. This association has had an average membership of about 100. Its alleged purpose is to assist its members in case of illness, to give aid in case of death, and to assure proper burial rites.

"After an exhaustive investigation into the activities of this association and of its members, we find no evidence that the association, as such, does now or has ever trafficked in women, but that such traffic is being or has been carried on by various members of this association as individuals. We find that the members of this association are scattered in many cities throughout the United States. From the testimony adduced, it appears probable that the social relations of the members and the opportunity thereby afforded of communicating with one another in various cities have facilitated the conduct of their individual business.

"On one occasion where a member was convicted of maintaining a disorderly resort and a fine of $1,000 was imposed upon him in the City of Newark, N. J., the association voted $500 for his aid. On another occasion in the City of Newark, N. J., where several of the members of the association were arrested on the charge of keeping and maintaining disorderly resorts and one member was in prison, the then President went to Newark, declared himself to the Under Sheriff that he was President of the New York Independent Benevolent Association, and entered into negotiations with the authorities in Newark on behalf of the members who had been arrested. We have, however, no evidence of any such instance in the County of New York.

"It appears from the testimony of various members and ex-members of the association that its membership is almost entirely composed of persons who are now or have been engaged in the operation of disorderly places or who are living or who have lived, directly or indirectly, upon the proceeds of women. None of these witnesses, in answer to specific questions, could name more than one or two present or past members whose record did not show them to have so lived at some time in one form or another. They claim, however, that all members who have been convicted of a crime are expelled from the organization when the proof of the fact has been submitted, the offense apparently being not the commission of the crime, but conviction. It would appear that this procedure is for the purpose of protecting the individual, if possible, and, failing in that, of freeing the association from criticism.

"Sales" of Women.

"Finding no evidence of an organized traffic in women, but a traffic carried on by individuals, we have made a special and careful investigation along this line. Owing to the publicity given to the inquiry at its inception, it has been difficult to get legal evidence of the actual purchase and sale of women for immoral purposes, and our investigators have been informed in different quarters that a number of formerly active dealers in women had either temporarily gone out of business or had transferred their activities to other cities. However, five self-declared dealers in women had agreed upon various occasions to supply women to our agents, but because of their extreme caution and the fear aroused by the continued sitting of this Grand Jury, those promises were fulfilled only in two instances, in each of which two girls were secured for our agents at a price—in the one case of $60 each and in the other of $75 each. Indictments have been found against these two persons; one pleaded guilty and the other was convicted on trial.

"All of these parties boasted to our investigators of their extensive local and inter-State operations in the past. They specifically mentioned the cities to which they had forwarded women, and described the operations as having at that time been entirely free from danger of detection. Our investigators also testified to the methods and means used by these people in replenishing the supply of women and in entrapping innocent girls.

Danger in Moving Picture Shows.

"In this connection mention should be made of the moving picture shows as furnishing an opportunity for leading girls into an immoral life. These shows naturally attract large numbers of children, and while the law provides that no child under the age of sixteen shall be allowed to attend them unaccompanied by parent or guardian, it is a fact, as shown by the number of arrests and convictions subsequently secured, that the law is frequently violated. Evidence upon which indictments have been found and convictions subsequently secured has been given which shows that in spite of the activities of the authorities in watching these places many girls owe their ruin to frequenting them.

"It is not the purpose of this reference to bring an indictment against the moving picture show, which, under proper restrictions may be an important and valuable educational and recreative factor, but rather to point out possible dangers inherent in performances carried on in the darkness, and the importance of observance of safeguards by parents or guardian, and of the strict enforcement of the law for the protection of children.

Other Evil Influences.

"The abuse which has grown up in the conversion of the so-called massage and manicure parlor into a disorderly resort, frequently of the most perverted kind, has received our careful study under this same heading. A special investigation has been made of some 125 massage and manicure parlors in this county. Less than half of these establishments were found to be equipped for legitimate purposes, most of them being nothing but disorderly. The operators in such places had no knowledge of massage treatment, and in certain cases where certificates of alleged massage institutes were on the walls of the premises they frankly admitted that they had no training in massage, and did not even know the persons whose signatures appeared on the certificates.

"In view of the above it would seem important that these parlors should be licensed by the Health Department of the city, and that all operators in them should also have a license from some approved health or medical authority, and, further, that proper supervision should be exercised to insure their operation for the legitimate purposes for which they are licensed.

"The spreading of immorality in its various forms into apartment and tenement houses presents a very grave danger to the home. It is inevitable that children who have daily evidence of the apparent comfort, ease, and oftentimes luxury in which women of this class live should not only become hardened to the evil, but be easily drawn into the life. The existing laws for the suppression of this vice in apartment and tenement houses should be most rigorously enforced, and, if necessary, additional legislation enacted."

Last Work of the Grand Jury.

The Grand Jury held its final meeting in Mr. Whitman's office yesterday morning, in compliance with the order given by Judge O'Sullivan on Thursday, that the investigation be continued along the line suggested by certain parts of the testimony at that time before the court. It was in the matter of massage and manicure parlors.

Assistant District Attorney Press examined four witnesses called before the Grand Jury, but the nature of the testimony was not such as to call for indictments or to alter the opinions already filed with the court. One of the witnesses was William C. Jones, connected with a weekly publication called The Transcript, in whose advertising columns, it is understood, space has been given from time to time to the type of place the Grand Jury was desirous of inspecting. The other witnesses were women.

The Grand Jury went before Judge O'Sullivan shortly before 1 o'clock, and in reference to the matter it had just considered Mr. Rockefeller had this to say:

"It is the judgment of the Grand Jury and of the District Attorney's office that a further inquiry at the present time along these lines would not lead to further indictments, and that by pursuing them the Grand Jury could not secure further information of value."

Then Judge O'Sullivan reviewed the whole matter.

"Some months since," he said, "there were published many statements concerning the so-called 'white slave' traffic in the City of New York. These statements were the culmination of prior publications of similar import. They purported to set forth circumstantially and in detail that in the City of New York such a traffic existed; and that by reason of political protection afforded to the traffickers, the traffic had assumed world-wide proportions. It was said that the City of New York had become a centre of an organization which supplied women to every continent on the globe. It was said that this organized traffic in women had attained such proportions that women by the thousands were being made victims of the trade, and that the civic life of the city had become poisoned through those who controlled this traffic.

"Not only my duty as a Judge of this court, but my duty as a citizen of this city impelled me to direct the attention of the Grand Jury to these statements. It seemed to me essential that an immediate investigation should be made to determine whether such an organized traffic in women existed in this city, and whether the city was in fact the centre of the 'white slave' trade.

"You gentlemen were selected for the purpose of making this investigation. Your standing in the community and your known probity made it certain that the careful and impartial inquiry desired by me would be carried to the end unswerved by any political or personal considerations.

"Your report is that no organized traffic in women exists in this city. The painstaking discussion in your report concerning vicious conditions which exist in this city in common with all large cities of the world, is further evidence of the extent to which you carried your investigations. The fact that, as shown by your report, you were able to uncover only isolated instances of vice, such as we all know existed, demonstrates to my satisfaction that your conclusion is correct and that New York City does not harbor an organized traffic in women's bodies.

"It is too much to hope that the social evil can be eradicated by law. So long as it exists corrupt men will continue to profit by the practice. The most that can be hoped is that your investigation and the recommendations which you make will aid in checking the evil and in suppressing the manifestations of it."

Apology to Reynolds.

Judge O'Sullivan then made a handsome apology to Assistant District Attorney Reynolds, whom he so sharply criticised on Thursday when the Grand Jury handed up its presentment. At that time he seemed to consider Mr. Reynolds a hothead, "whose exaggerated and imprudent statements should not be reflected in the findings" of the Grand Jury. At Mr. Reynolds's door he laid the entire sensation attendant upon the arrest, nearly two months ago, of Belle Moore and Harry Levinson.

"If, during this investigation," said the Judge yesterday, "the court exhibited any degree of exaction with regard to your proceedings it was simply from a conviction of duty toward you as an appendage of the court. That the effect of your investigation might in no wise be impaired my vigilance led me to a mistaken criticism of a gentleman appointed by the District Attorney to attend your investigation. One way to repair a mistake is to acknowledge it, and that acknowledgment I cheerfully make to Mr. Reynolds. Information has been conveyed to me from which I am convinced that instead of criticism he is entitled to much credit for his services to the Grand Jury."

CROWD CHASES A NEGRO.

He Flourishes a Revolver and Finally Fires at a Car Conductor.

Ex-Judge Alton B. Parker was one of several spectators in Madison Avenue shortly before 8 o'clock last night, who watched the conductor of a Madison Avenue car, backed by irate passengers, chase a negro, who had slapped the conductor's face.

Mr. Parker and the other spectators, who lined both sides of the avenue, saw the negro turn into Fifty-seventh Street eastward, and stop as he turned the corner. Then they saw him pull a revolver from his pocket, and fire at the conductor. But the conductor was not hit. Then they saw Inspector Charles Merrick of the Madison Avenue line and Thomas Healy of 1,445 First Avenue seize the negro and disarm him just as a policeman arrived and arrested him.

The negro's name, as taken from his business card, is Plato J Jerry, and he has a hotel at North Beach, L. I. The conductor at whom he fired was Joseph Eichele of 200 West 144th Street.

Jerry and his wife boarded the car at the Thirty-fourth Street transfer point and presented transfers that were so crumpled as to arouse Eichele's ire. The conductor spoke sharply to Jerry and an altercation ensued.

At Fifty-sixth Street the Jerrys started to leave the car. As he stepped off the negro turned and struck the conductor. Eichele jumped off the car, accompanied by a lot of passengers, and gave chase after Jerry. Jerry pulled his revolver and flourished it at the crowd, which quickly halted. As he slipped his revolver into his back pocket, the crowd again took courage and pursued him around into Fifty-seventh Street, where he again drew the gun and fired. He was about to fire again, when his wife caught him by the arm and restrained him. He was glad to be arrested to escape the wrath of his pursuers. The prisoner was taken to the East Fifty-first Street Station.

BENCH'S ANSWER TO THREAT.

Magistrate O'Reilly Takes a Dare by Sending Vagrant to Jail.

When Magistrate O'Reilly reached the Gates Avenue Court in Brooklyn yesterday he found in the mail addressed to him this note:

"Your Honor: If Jack Borkan is sent away, you will suffer. We mean this. Never mind about the name."

After reading the threatening missive the Magistrate called to the bar one Jack Borkan, charged with vagrancy. He was accused of annoying and threatening a young woman. After finding Borkan guilty and telling him what he thought of him, the Magistrate sent the young man to the workhouse for six months.

Edison Electric Co. to Share Profits.

A plan of profit sharing with its employes which is being considered by the Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Brooklyn is exciting interest in labor circles in that borough. W. W. Freeman, General Manager of the company, said yesterday that while no definite decision had been reached, the company intended to originate a system which would be unlike any other. It would probably take six months to work out the ideas, he said.

GRANT ADJOURNMENT IN CHARLTON CASE

Prosecution Consents to Delay to Give Time for Extradition Negotiations in Washington.

LITTLE HOPE OF HOLDING HIM

Government Not Expected to Yield Its Demand That Italy Hereafter Allow Our Claims for Escaped Criminals.

Porter Charlton, who confessed to murdering his wife and throwing her body, squeezed into a trunk, into Lake Como, Italy, had his first glimpse of the outside world since he was locked up in the Hudson County (N. J.) Jail yesterday morning, when he walked across the jail lawn to the court, about 100 yards away, and heard his counsel plead for an adjournment of his case.

Judge John J. Blair granted the adjournment, and Charlton will get his first hearing on Friday, July 8, providing the United States Government does not step in in the meantime and demand that he be turned over to a United States Commissioner, pending his extradition to Italy.

The indications yesterday were that this contingency was exceedingly remote and was growing more so every day. Although the two Governments have been in correspondence on the subject ever since the murder, the case stands exactly where it did in the beginning. In order to give the officials at Washington plenty of time to bring the present negotiations to a close, Prosecutor Pierre C. Garven consented to the adjournment of the case yesterday, but he insisted that the defense promise that it would take no advantage of any technicalities, such as obtaining a writ of habeas corpus or the asking for a commission in insanity, in order to get Charlton released from custody. As Judge Paul Charlton, the prisoner's father, has already stated that he will not take any such advantage of the law, the prisoner's counsel readily agreed to the provision.

It was learned last night that Charlton's attorneys will not rely entirely upon an insanity defense. If extradition is granted and he is declared sane, his attorneys will carry the matter to the United States Supreme Court on the ground that extradition made as the result of proceedings supplementary to the original treaty between Italy and America, and after the commission of the crime, is unconstitutional. According to Charlton's lawyers, he will have to be extradited according to the terms of the old treaty or not at all.

Little Chance of Extradition.

"I have very little hope that the United States Government will agree to the extradition of Charlton," said Prosecutor Garven yesterday. "As the time goes by it looks more and more as if this young man would escape from us and never be brought to answer for his crime. Beyond the assurance from Secretary Knox that extradition proceedings are pending, we have received no intimation from the State Department that it is very much concerned in the case. Unless something happens pretty soon, Charlton is sure to go free or be confined in a sanitarium for a short period, at the very worst."

Charlton arose early after a restful sleep yesterday morning and seemed to look forward to the court proceedings as a respite from the monotony of prison life. He ate little breakfast and was all ready when Warden Sullivan appeared at his cell at 10 o'clock. Conducted by the Warden, Sheriff Kelly, and Under Sheriff Wedin, he passed through a rear door of the prison and was conducted across the prison yard and into the old stone court building by the back entrance while a curious crowd awaited his arrival in front. There was a stampede to see the prisoner as he was led through the long corridor of the court house.

The court building is one of the oldest in the State, and the arrangement for arraigning prisoners is primitive. One part of the courtroom is fenced off by an iron railing, and in this all the prisoners whose cases are on the day's calendar are herded together, sitting side by side on long benches. Charlton took his seat between two prisoners, one charged with burglary and the other with larceny. The courtroom was thronged when Charlton entered by a side door. He cast one glance around and sat down, apparently taking no further interest in the proceedings. He kept his eyes fixed upon the floor and did not talk to his companions. He was much paler than when first arrested. He bit his under lip nervously and seemed to restrain himself with difficulty. It was the only evidence he gave of being mentally disturbed. His father, who returned to New York from Baltimore on Monday, was not in court. Charlton was dressed in the same blue serge suit he wore when arrested.

The actual proceedings did not take long, but they were preceded by a conference in Judge Blair's private chambers. Those who took part in the conference were Prosecutor Garven, his assistant, who has charge of the case, George T. Vickers; his counsel, B. Floyd Clarke and Edwin F. Smith. Capt. Henry Harrington Scott and Emil Fuchs, who have been retained by Capt. Scott, the murdered woman's brother, were in the courtroom.

Adjournment Granted.

When Judge Blair ascended the bench after the conference Lawyer Smith made the motion for an adjournment.

"I would like to have the case adjourned until July 8," he said, "in order for us to have time to complete our case. We have retained alienists who are conducting an examination of the prisoner with a view to determining his sanity. These alienists will not complete their work for some time. Moreover, before we proceed further we would like to know what the attitude of the United States Government in regard to the case is going to be."

"I have no objection to the adjournment," said Prosecutor Garven, "providing Mr. Smith gives his promise that he will not apply for a writ of habeas corpus or institute any other legal proceedings with a view of having the prisoner removed from the jurisdiction of this court."

Mr. Smith said this would be agreeable, and Judge Blair granted the adjournment.

Charlton, nervously biting his lips with his eyes cast on the floor, paid no heed to the talk of the lawyers, and when the proceedings were over he had to be half jerked from his seat by Sheriff Kelly. Thinking the prisoner would be taken from the building by the same way he entered the crowd was waiting on the back steps. The Sheriff, however, took him out the front way, and he was half way to the jail before the crowd discovered the ruse. Charlton, as he was led across the lawn, held a newspaper over his face so the photographers could not take his picture.

When Charlton got back to the prison good news awaited him. Warden Sullivan informed him that he had changed his cell to a much better one on the third tier, away from all the other prisoners and his old cellmate "Uley" Burke, the safebreaker. Charlton will have his new cell all to himself. It is in the front of the prison and faces the large jail yard. From the window he can look directly upon Market Street.

"The object of the delay to-day," said Assistant Prosecutor Vickers, "was not to give a sanity commission time to organize, but to wait until the Government has had time to thrash out its diplomatic argument with the Italian authorities over the proper disposition of Charlton. The Federal authorities have thirty days in any event to decide what they intend to do, and at the end of that period the defense has thirty days more. After that, should the extradition be finally arranged, Charlton's lawyers would be permitted to stay the proceedings if they could prove the insanity of their client, since no lunatic who is an American citizen can be sent to any other country to answer for a crime so long as he is insane."

"We have no intention of attempting to alter the status of our client until the extradition matter has been settled," said Lawyer Clarke. "Of course, the present halt in the legal proceedings will not stop our efforts to ascertain the exact mental condition of this boy by means of expert observation."

DRYDOCK DEWEY FLOATED

After Officers in Charge of the Job Were Almost in Despair.

MANILA, Wednesday, June 29.—The dry dock Dewey was refloated this morning, apparently undamaged by its long submersion.

The attempt to refloat the dock yesterday failed and it seemed impossible to accomplish the task with the apparatus at hand. The pumps, however, were kept going, and large gains were made in the flooded chambers and the dock rose gradually during the night, finally floating clear.

The officers in charge of the work are greatly elated at their success. A board is now engaged in a careful inspection of the dock in order to determine the cause of its sinking.

The Dewey, which was towed here from the United States, sank on May 24.

Killed in Hospital Elevator.

Anthony Lawter, 72 years old, a carpenter employed in St. Francis's Hospital at 142d Street and St. Ann's Avenue, was killed yesterday by being caught in an elevator in the institution. Three of the sisters made an effort to save him, but were unsuccessful.

LACKAWANNA RAISES SINGLE-TRIP FARE

It Holds That Postponement of Advance Applies Only to Commutation Tickets.

OTHER ROADS DELAY ACTION

Jersey Board Considers Its Jurisdiction—Westchester Commuters Apply to Up-State Board.

In spite of the request from Chairman Knapp of the Inter-State Commerce Commission that all Eastern railroads contemplating an increase of passenger rates postpone the taking effect of advances in schedules until Aug. 1, it was learned yesterday that the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western has already begun collecting single trip and round trip tickets at a material advance, although it has postponed the taking effect of its increased commutation rates until July 20.

Officials of the Lackawanna said yesterday that the Chairman's request said nothing about trip or excursion rates and applied only to the commutation advances.

In Trenton, N. J., yesterday the State Board of Railroad Commissioners at their weekly meeting discussed the merits of the Commuters' Association's complaints against the Erie's proposed increases. The question of whether the State Commission has power to stop the advance in rates on the Erie by means of the Legislative act of 1898 was gone into at length. W. H. Corbin, counsel for the railroad company, argued that the act which authorized the consolidation of the Erie and the New York, Susquehanna & Western Railroad, subject to certain restrictions, was not now in force, having never been renewed after the first year. The board reserved its decision as to whether it had power to prevent the increased rates from becoming effective on the scheduled date.

In an effort to obtain relief through the up-State Public Service Commission, the Westchester County Commuters' League has arranged for a hearing before that body in Albany to-morrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, and a delegation of some thirty members of the league will be on hand to plead the cause of the commuters. The delegation will argue for a postponement of the increased rates announced by the New York Central and the New York, New Haven & Hartford until Aug. 1, at least.

In New Rochelle an attempt was made to obtain an injunction from Supreme Court Justice Keogh restraining the New York Central and New Haven Roads from putting their advanced rates in effect July 1. Justice Keogh told the commuters' counsel that the Supreme Court had no jurisdiction in the matter, as it was a subject for the Public Service Commisison to decide.

In Trenton yesterday the Commuters' League of New Jersey, headed by Howard Marshall of East Orange, presented to Gov. Fort a memorial asking that he call a special session of the New Jersey Legislature to give additional powers to the Public Utilities Commission, so that it could supervise commutation rates.

Another request to the Governor for a special session was made by Edward A. Wilson of Atlantic City, N. J. Mr. Wilson asked that the Legislature be called to pass legislation to improve the State road between Somers Point and Absecom.

President Baer of the Central Railroad of New Jersey issued a statement to commuters yesterday in which he said that his railroad had agreed to postpone its advance in rates to July 30 in response to the request of the Inter-State Commerce Commission. A refund will be granted to these persons who have bought commutation tickets for July at the advanced rates.

HUTCHINS SUCCEEDS ANGELL.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., June 28.—Harry Burns Hutchins was to-night elected President of the University of Michigan, to succeed Dr. James B. Angell.

President Hutchins was born in Lyndon, N. H., April 8, 1847. He received his early education at the New Hampshire and Vermont Conference Seminaries and at Wesleyan University, at Middletown, Conn. In 1871 he was graduated from the University of Michigan with the degree of Bachelor of Philosophy. In 1884, after having practiced law for a number of years, he was elected Jay Professor of Law at Michigan. His success in this department was such that in 1885 he was called to Ithaca, N. Y., where he organized the Cornell Law School and became its Dean.

Smith Gray & Co.

Foremost Clothiers Since 1845.

Your savings are from $4.50 to $10.00 on many thousands two and three piece Smith Gray suits right now—right now when vacation season demands summery, comfortable, seasonable clothes.

There are included blue serges, fancy blues, worsteds in light and tropical weights, velours, cassimeres, crashes, homespuns and flannels; every popular shade of fabric and all the smart Smith Gray models, including soft roll English models; the sizes are for men, young men and boys.

These special reductions are the result of our recent reorganization that delayed our season's production to the extent that our assortment is now nearly double what it should be at this season of the year. There is a suit here for you for service anywhere; now is the time to come in.
